OIL OUSTER SUIT OVER "CRACKING" PROCESS DROPPED

Attorney-General of Missouri Dismisses Anti-Trust Action Against Standard and Other Companies.

RECENT U. S. SUPREME COURT RULING CITED

In That Case the Right of a Corporation Holding Patents to Fix Sales Prices Was Upheld.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, July 9.—Attorney-General N. T. Gentry filed a motion in State Supreme Court this afternoon t. dismiss an anti-trust suit pending there against the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, the Texas Co., the Standard Oil Co. of Kentucky and the White Eagle Oil and Refining Co., on the ground the trade restraint and price fixing charges in the suit could not be established as antitrust law violations, under a recent decision by the United States Supreme Court.

The suit against the four companies, in the nature of quo warranto proceedings to oust them, has been pending since December, 1925, and against the Standard of Indiana alone since September, 1924, without a hearing to take evidence on the charges.

Gentry based his action upon a decision of the United States Supreme Court in the case of Federal Government against the General Electric Co., decided on Nov. 23, 1926. In that case the United States Supreme Court upheld the filing of sales prices by corporations holding patents on their products. It also held that the owner of patents could sell licenses for their use and could place territorial restrictions upon the licenses.

Based on "Cracking" Contracts.

The antitrust suit in Missouri against the Standard of Indiana and the other three companies was based chiefly upon charges that contracts entered into by the Standard of Indiana with other oil companies, licensing them to use the Standard of Indiana's patented process for "cracking" petroleum in manufacturing gasoline, violated the Missouri antitrust laws.

These contracts excluded the licensees from selling gasoline manufactured under the "cracking" process in the 11 states which the Standard of Indiana reserved as its trade territory. The Standard of Indiana denied the territorial exclusion clauses in the contracts ever had been enforced and asserted they were a "dead letter."

Gentry said that, under the United States Supreme Court decision, the companies would not be guilty of violating the antitrust laws in the acts charged against them.

Statement of Gentry.

"The only complaint that the state can now have is that a clause in the contracts made by the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, with other companies is a technical violation of the anti-trust law," Gentry said. "This clause or provision has never been enforced by the companies and they are now willing to eliminate it from all of their contracts."

Before filing the motion to dismiss the case Gentry conferred with R. Brewster of Kansas City, of counsel for the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana.

In former anti-trust cases in Missouri the existence of the machinery or means for carrying out a combination in restraint of trade or price fixing has been classed as a violation of the State anti-trust law, even though not actually put into operation. Under the Federal Court decisions the mere existence of the means has not been classed as a violation of the anti-trust law unless actually used, it was said.

History of the Case.

Former Attorney-General Jesse W. Barrett instituted an anti-trust proceeding against the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana in September, 1924, following an extended investigation of alleged restraint of trade and fixing of gasoline prices in Missouri.

Barrett's action was in the form of a motion asking the State Supreme Court to set aside an order that had issued on June 30, 1913, suspending a writ of ouster ordered against the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana in March, 1909, in a case in which the company was convicted of violating the Missouri anti-trust law. This motion to set aside the suspension

BARBER KILLS MAN THEN ENDS OWN LIFE

Frank Mathenia Stabs John Hollenbeck With Ice Pick in East St. Louis.

After stabbing John Hollenbeck, 38 years old, a switchman, to death with an ice pick in East St. Louis last night, Frank Mathenia, 31 years old, a barber, ended his own life by slashing his throat with a razor.

Hollenbeck died at St. Mary's Hospital, East St. Louis.

Mathenia had been living at a rooming house at 3810 Waverly street, operated by Hollenbeck's wife. According to police, the two men quarreled over rent.

Mathenia stabbed Hollenbeck five times. Then he went upstairs for his razor, slashed his throat and returned downstairs. He fell beside Hollenbeck's body.

Hollenbeck resided at 1607 North Thirty-sixth street, East St. Louis.

MASKED MEN FLOG WOMAN AFTER FORCING WAY INTO HOME

Husband and Sister Held Prisoners —Victim Tells Sheriff Band "Wore Klan Costumes"

By the Associated Press.

FLORENCE, Ala., July 9—While her husband and sister were forcibly held in their farm home near here, Mrs. Bertha A. Slay, 28 years old, was taken from her bed, bound to a barrel and severely beaten by a band of masked men last Wednesday night, it became known here tonight.

The sheriff, who is conducting an investigation, said Mrs. Slay told him the men "wore klan costumes" and beat her "because she would not confess to some scandal in the neighborhood."

The men forced their way into the house late at night, the woman told the sheriff.

Limbs cut from trees were used by the floggers, she said, "until the men became tired" when they took a "strap like a fan belt from an automobile" and continued the whipping.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., July 9.—"Flogging in Alabama must cease," said Gov. Bibb Graves here tonight, when informed that a woman had been beaten by a masked gang in Florence, Ala., Wednesday. "I'll look into this case and see that the offenders are brought to justice," he said.

ANNUITIES OF BENNETT HEIRS EXEMPT FROM INCOME TAX

Appeal Board Holds They Are Not Necessarily Current Income.

WASHINGTON, July 9.—Annuities bequeathed by James Gordon Bennett to his niece, the Countess Henrietta d'Aramon; his stepson, Ronald de Reuter, both of Paris, and Mrs. Sybil Whitehouse of Newport, R. I., today were held to be exempt from income tax by the Board of Tax Appeals.

The annuities of $10,000 to the Countess, $20,000 to De Reuter and $5000 to Mrs. Whitehouse were taxed by the Internal Revenue Bureau, but the board held that they were not subject to taxation inasmuch as Mr. Bennett's will contained no directions that they be paid out of the current income of the estate.

Two Girls Rescue Sailor.

CHICAGO, July 9.—Ruth Kurtz, 14 years old and her sister, Pearl, 13, today saved Owen Hagerty of Cleveland, O., a sailor, from drowning in the Calumet river. Hagerty, only a short distance from shore in deep water, went down twice when the two sisters, swimming nearby, went to his rescue and succeeded in pulling him back to the bank.

JOHN DREW'S BODY CREMATED AFTER BRIEF SERVICES

Ceremony for Veteran Actor at San Francisco Hastened Because of Daughter's Threatened Breakdown.

COULD HAVE SAVED LIFE, SAYS DOCTOR

Thespian, Who Died After 39 Days of Illness, Refused to Leave Stage for Early Treatment.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 9.—John Drew, to whom Americans paid tribute as "the dean of actors," died at a hospital here today after a 30-day fight against arthritis, rheumatic fever and septic poisoning that gradually sapped his vitality. He was conscious to within an hour of his death, and his passing was described as painless, as in sleep.

Brief, simple services were held in the secluded little Cypress Lawn crematory Chapel a few hours after his death, because, it was explained, Mrs. Louis Deveraux, the actor's daughter, was on the verge of collapse after her long vigil at his bedside. The services were attended only by the three relatives who were with Mr. Drew when dath came, Mrs. Deveraux, her husband, Jack Deveraux, and John Barrymore of Hollywood, the actor's nephew.

Ashes to Be Taken to New York.

A short message of tribute and condolence was given by Dr. Webster W. Jennings of St. Luke's Episcopal Church. After the services the body was cremated. The ashes will be taken to New York by Mr. and Mrs. Deveraux early next week. There memorial services will be held and a crypt in Philadelphia will be the final resting place of the urn.

"This is but another act, and I am playing my part," Mr. Drew said, during the early stages of his illness. "Now, doctor, I would like some strawberries and cream today."

It was this cheerfulness, this unwillingness to relinquish "his part" that amazed Dr. Lawrence H. Hoffman, one of the attending physicians.

Displayed Remarkable Vitality.

"In my 30 years of practice I have never attended such a remarkable patient," the physician exclaimed. "The ordinary person would undoubtedly have succumbed to the first of the series of relapses Mr. Drew suffered. His will power and vitality were phenomenal. At no time did he complain, never did he lose his cheer and interest in things about him."

Telegrams, radiograms and cablegrams were received from all parts of the world, expressing the grief of friends and admirers over the noted thespian's illness and death.

During the first 10 days of Mr. Drew's illness he insisted on having the newspapers read to him.

He Expected to Recover.

Shortly after his arrival at the hospital he issued a statement in which he said, 'I want my friends throughout the world to know how grateful I am for the kindly interest they showed in my welfare since I was taken ill—it warms my heart to see how old friends remember. I am going to pull through this and I know there are many years still in store for me."

But the physicians held out little hope. The poisons of arthritis and rheumatic fevers could not be eliminted. The source of trouble, they explained, lay in affected teeth. Had these been extracted while the actor was in Vancouver, when he had X-rays taken of the teeth, his system probably would not have been poisoned. But Mr. Drew was playing the lead in "Trelawney of the 'Wells'" and did not want to relinquish his part, so moved with the company southward.

At Portland he was forced to cancel engagements, and O. P. Heggie, English member of the company, took the role.

Among the several expressions of sadness here today, following Mr. Drew's death, was one from Mayor James Rolph Jr., speaking for San Francisco:

"John Drew lived a gentleman and died a gentleman. Quiet, unassuming, brave, surrounded by loving relatives and friends, he closed his eyes and passed on, leaving an immortal memory in the hearts of hundreds of thousands of theater-goers. San Francisco mourns John Drew, and to

WOMAN, 65, HIT BY TRUCK, DIES IN HOSPITAL

Driver Says Mrs. Mary Walsh Walked In Front of Machine on Cass Avenue.

Mrs. Mary Walsh, 65 years old, of 2612 Cass avenue, died last midnight at City Hospital of a skull fracture suffered yesterday afternoon when struck by an automobile truck as she was crossing the street near her home.

Mrs. Walsh was crossing from the north to the south side of Cass and stepped directly into the path of the truck, according to the driver, Audrey Kennedy, 37, of 4050 North Nineteenth street. The truck, property of the Union Ice Cream Co., was proceeding east on Cass when the accident occurred.

Kennedy was arrested and released on bond. He will be rearrested for the Coroner.

Boy, 4, and Youth Hurt When Hit by Auto.

Dominick Palermo, 4 years old, of 1832 O'Fallon street, suffered a fractured left leg and bruises about the head last night when struck by an automobile in the street in front of his home. He was taken to City Hospital. The driver of the machine, Lee Franklin, a Negro, of 2017 Carr street, was arrested charged with careless driving.

Carlo Marco Jr., 17, of 1407A North Kingshighway, suffered a fractured shoulder and possible skull fracture at 8 p. m. when he walked against the side of an automobile while crossing the street near his home.

RIOT OVER NATIONAL ANTHEM INJURES 21 IN BUENOS AIRES

Action of President in Leaving Balcony Angers Crowd of 10,000 Before His Palace.

By the Associated Press.

BUENOS AIRES, July 9.—Twenty-one persons were injured in a riot before the Casa Rosada, the presidential palace, tonight, when 10,000 Argentineans thronged the Plaza 25 De Mayo in protest against the music of the national anthem, recently revised by the Government, and became irritated because President de Alvear, they thought, had ignored them.

Police, mounted and on foot, were stoned in an attempt to charge and disperse the manifestants. Firemen cleared the plaza by playing heavy streams of water on the rioters. The riot occurred just after the military parade, held on the occasion of Nueve Julio, the Argentine Independence day.

President de Alvear, having reviewed his soldiers, was about to withdraw from the balcony. This was construed by the crowd as tantamount to being ignored. When the chief executive, learning the throng's real purpose, returned to the balcony he was greeted with catcalls and shouts to resign. Police tried then to intervene, but were powerless.

SCIENTISTS AND GUIDE CLIMB 11,000-FOOT GLACIER IN DIM LANTERN LIGHT AT NIGHT

Brave Blizzard in Canadian Ice Fields to Scale Three Peaks in 36 Hours and Explore Head Waters of Columbia River.

By the Associated Press.

JASPAR PARK, Canada, July 10.—One of the most dangerous feats in the annals of Canadian mountain climbing has been achieved by Alfred J. Ostheimer Jr. of Philadelphia and Hans Fuhrer, a Swiss guide, in the Columbia ice field, "Roof of the Continent."

In 36 hours of arduous climbing with death lurking along their trail, they made two first ascents of peaks 11,000 feet high and opened a new route to one of the 12,000-foot class peaks of the great Columbia range. Much of the climbing was done at night, under dangerous ice and snow conditions and bitter cold. A lantern and a flashlight were their guide.

Heads Scientists' Party.

Ostheimer is head of the American scientists' party which is now at the ice field and will explore this vast and virtually unknown area this summer. With Fuhrer he reached the edge of the great ice field in a blizzard, but the two proceeded to climb the North Twin, 12,085 feet high, the third peak in the range. Marching all night they ascended Mount Stutfield, 11,370 feet high. Then, in danger of freezing, if they stopped, they forged on by lantern and flashlight over the broken ice field. In the early morning they reached the summit of Mount Kitchener, 11,500 feet in altitude, and thence may their way back to camp—all in 36 hours of steady climbing. Word of their feat was brought back to Jaspar by courier.

The party of scientists, who set out from Jaspar 18 days ago to explore this region, has already achieved important results. They have been following the footsteps of the first fur traders on the trail they blazed along the headwaters of the Columbia River down to the Pacific Coast.

Besides Ostheimer, the party consists of John Delaittre of Minneapolis, Minn., and W. R. McLaurin of Boston. The outfit comprises two Swiss guides, two packers and a cook. Besides studying the geology and making maps of the region and classifying the fauna and flora of the area, the party will also attempt a thorough survey of the Clemenceau ice field, lying north of the Columbia field.

ODEON TO BE REMODELED AT A COST OF $100,000

Theater Damaged by Fire to Be Ready for Symphony Orchestra Season Next Winter.

Plans for rebuilding, remodelling and redecorating the Odeon at a cost of $100,000, work to begin this week and be completed in time for the Symphony Orchestra season next winter, were announced yesterday by Edward E. Christopher, architect, who is City Building Commissioner. The building was damaged by fire last spring.

The new Odeon will be three stories instead of six as formerly. Entrance will be at the southwest corner into a marble lobby with an arcade of seven shops. Entrance to a dance floor, 42 by 80 feet, will be on the north side and entirely separate.

Enlarged exits and double fire escapes will be built and new elevators installed.

FLYER ENDS GOOD WILL TOUR

Maj. Dargue Sees Stimulus to Commercial Aviation.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 9.—Maj. Herbert A. Dargue, leader of the 20,000 mile Pan-American good will flight, today landed at Bolling Field after flying over 34 states and Canada. He visited 100 cities. Maj. Dargue saw in the flight just completed a stimilus to commercial aviation.

"The fact that we kept up to a schedule of landings and visits which had been announced two weeks prior to our departure is a wonderful demonstration to commercial aviation of the reliability of the airplane," said Maj. Dargue.

Promise Robert Laughlin They Will Return What Is Left of Car to Designated Spot.

At the point of a pistol, Robert Laughlin of 8900 Lackland road, Overland, St. Louis County, son of Randolph Laughlin, attorney, was forced to give up his gray Packard sedan to two men in front of 5522 Waterman avenue last night.

As Laughlin drove to the curb at 8:40 p. m., a coupe carrying two men drew up. One of the occupants got out and took possession of the other car, also taking $4 from Laughlin.

"Is it insured?" asked the robber. Informed that it was, he said: "You'll find what is left of it at Union and Waterman in the morning."

WHITE HOUSE DOG NEAR DEATH

Prudence Prim, Collie, Ill With Distemper.

By the Associated Press.

RAPID CITY, S. D., July 9.—A bit of gloom seems destined to cast itself over the summer White House as Prudence Prim, one of the White House collies, is not expected to live.

The veterinarians at Fort Meade, S. D., where Prudence Prim was taken when she fell ill a few weeks ago with distemper, have given up hope for her.

The beautiful white collie is a companion of Rob Roy and the two dogs have long been the most loved pets at the White House.

FEDERAL ORDER PROHIBITS BLOCK BOOKING OF FILMS

Trade Commission Rules Practice Illegal, Tending to Crowd Out Small Independent Producers.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 9.—Block booking of motion pictures is illegal, the Federal Trade Commission held today in an action against the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation.

The commission issued an order requiring the corporation and its chief officers, Adolph Zukor and Jesse L. Lasky, as individuals, to cease and desist from the practice of requiring motion picture theaters to take all films in a block or group or none at all and from other practices held to be in restraint of trade.

The respondents are required to file a report within 60 days as to the manner in which they have complied with the order. Further proceedings will depend upon the character of that report.

Specifically the commission's order prohibits the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation and Zukor and Lasky from:

"Continuing a conspiracy among themselves or with other persons to lessen competition and restrain trade in interstate and foreign commerce in the production, distribution and exhibition of motion picture films.

"The practice of block booking—leasing films in a block or group, or none at all, without regard to the character of the pictures or the wishes of the motion picture house.

"Acquiring or threatening to acquire theaters for the purpose of intimidating or coercing an exhibitor of films to book and exhibit films of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation.

Conspiracy Charged.

With respect to the "conspiracy" which the order prohibits, the commission said:

"The respondents, Adolph Zuker and Jesse L. Lasky and Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, have conspired and confederated together from time to time with other persons unduly to hinder competition in the production, distribution and exhibition of motion picture films in interstate and foreign commerce and to control, dominate, monopolize or attempt to monopolize the motion picture industry."

In its findings of fact the commission sets forth that "on June 30, 1926, the interests of the Famous Player Lasky Corporation in 368 theaters were as follows: In 128 theaters, 100 per cent; in 13 theaters more than 50 per cent and less than 100 per cent; in 128 theaters, exactly 50 per cent, and in 99 theaters, less than 50 per cent."

Further the commission found that in five cities—Jacksonville, Miami, Tampa, Dallas and Phila-

ENVOYS IN CLASH OVER SHIP ISSUE NEARLY BREAK UP GENEVA PARLEY

Lord Cecil Bangs His Fist on Table in Tumultuous Scene and Calls American Proposal 'Nonsense.'

WITHDRAWS REMARK ON GIBSON'S DEMAND

Private Conversations to Go on Today Among Delegates in Hope of Saving Naval Meet From Failure.

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, July 9.—The tripartite naval conference almost broke up today. Reliable information concerning the happenings at a secret session of the Executive Committee this morning has it that Lord Cecil went so far in the course of the tumultuous discussion of the cruiser problem as to bang his fist on the table and exclaim: "This is perfect nonsense."

Lord Cecil exploded in this fashion after Rear Admiral Hilary P. Jones of the American delegation had quietly delivered an explanation of the American proposal concerning cruisers, Hugh S. Gibson, head of the delegation, who already had listened to a reproach made at an earlier session by Cecil, is understood to have risen to his feet at this point and to have declared with firmness that unless Lord Cecil withdrew this remark, Gibson would be obliged to leave. Cecil withdrew it.

An earlier incident of the hectic session was furnished also by Lord Cecil, who is reported to have asserted with some heat that the Americans always were unreasonable because they always wanted to have their way.

Britisher Adds to Discord.

Vice-Admiral Field of the British delegation also is understood to have contributed to the discord between "the high conflicting parties" when, after the delivery of an American argument that cruisers necessarily must be measured by total tonnage, he exclaimed: "Total tonnage? Why, it means nothing more to the average mind than mere gallons!"

Such were the outstanding incidents of the meeting, which only served to increase the conviction among the participants and observers that things were going very badly in the three-power disarmament conference.

Gibson insisted that nothing tangible could be achieved unless the delegates "could break the back" of the cruiser difficulty. He made it clear that anything the British desired to lay down in warships or building programs must be translated into terms of total tonnage.

At the end of the session, the British tried to drive home a proposal that the projected naval treaty be confined to building programs in cruisers instead of being concerned with warships already in existence, and returned to their old demand that a definite agreement be reached on the number of 10,000-ton cruisers which the United States, Great Britain and Japan would be permitted to possess.

Definite Limit Is Sought.

This did not harmonize with the American idea of the treaty, because the American delegation, like the Japanese delegation, wants to set a definite limit on total tonnage as the only possible logical, common sense arrangement. Nevertheless, this British suggestion is being studied assiduously both by the experts and the plenipotentiaries.

Private conversations continued this afternoon among the delegates and doubtless will be resumed tomorrow, despite the Sabbath, because all seem fearful that Monday, unless the tension is lessened, the conference actually may collapse.

W. C. Bridgeman, first Lord of the British Admiralty, has insisted on a plenary session Monday so he may expound in public the British thesis on cruisers. He has served notice on Gibson that on this public occasion he will address to him a series of questions touching on conference problems. He refuses, however, to disclose th nature of these questions.

Crisis May Come Tomorrow.

Unless the situation improves by Monday, it is conceivable Gibson may definitely ask the British delegation to say "yes" or "no" as to whether it is disposed to reduce its cruiser figures. This would mean that Bridgeman would be expected to answer and to indi-

FORD ATTORNEYS NOT CONSULTED ON APOLOGY TO JEWS

Cameron Says, So Far as He Knows, Sapiro's $1,000,000 Libel Suit Will Go to Trial Sept. 12.

SETTLEMENT OUT OF COURT REPORTED

Motor Car Manufacturer and Editor of Dearborn Independent Decline to See Reporters.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Mich., July 9. — It was indicated today that Henry Ford, in apologizing to the Jewish people for the anti-Semitic articles in his Dearborn Independent, acted voluntarily and on his own motion. Apparently he consulted none of the regular Ford legal counsel.

In negotiating with Jewish leaders, Ford appears not only to have taken firm hold himself, but to have ignored the attorneys who represented him in the $1,000,000 libel action of Aaron Sapiro, one of the outgrowths of the writings.

It appeared also that Ford had ignored W. J. Cameron, editor of the Independent. Cameron, on the witness stand in the Sapiro suit, assumed sole responsibility for the writings in the Ford periodical, saying that Ford declined to be drawn into a discussion with him of editorial policies. Cameron was back at his desk today. Yesterday, immediately after publication of the Ford repudiation, he accompanied Henry and Edsel Ford on an "inspection trip" over the Detroit, Toledo & Ironton Railroad. Since then Ford has not been available to interviewers and Cameron has sent out word that "he has nothing to say."

Sapiro Suit Still Pending.

The Sapiro suit is still pending, and, so far as Stewart H. Hanley of Ford counsel knows, it will proceed to trial on Sept. 12. Hanley, who was associated with Senator James A. Reed in Ford's defense, made this statement today in reiterating his previous assertion that a desire to settle the Sapiro suit out of court had nothing to do with Ford's disclaimer and apology.

"The issue in the Sapiro case," Hanley said, "was confined by specific ruling of the court to articles referring t Mr. Sapiro. The 'Jewish question' as a whole was not an issue."

Disposing of a suggestion that a dread of appearing on the witness stand may have had some influence in prompting Ford to issue his disavowal of anti-Jewish articles, Hanley said: "There's nothing to it. Mr. Ford was quite willing to appear on the stand, despite the fact the subpena served on him was not entirely regular. If the mistrial had not come he would have appeared and when the case proceeds he will be a witness."

William Henry Gallagher, chief of Sapiro's lawyers, said that he figured in the negotiations and added that Walter F. Lynch, of Chicago, a law associate of Sapiro, had been in Detroit for a fortnight in connection with them.

The Ford proposal for peace with the Jews was taken to Louis A. Marshall, New York attorney, and prominent Jewish leader, by two former Detroiters, Earl J. Davis, one time assistant United States Attorney-General, and Joseph Palma, now of New York. Neither, heretofore, has figured in any Ford legal proceedings.

No Mention in Independent.

No reference to Jewish people or to the Ford repudiation is contained in today's issue of the Independent. "Mr. Ford's Page," a regular feature of the periodical, and which Cameron on the witness stand admitted he wrote, is devoted this week to a discussion of "the limitations of education."

Gallagher, who yesterday announced that he expected satisfactory terms for out-of-court settlement of the Sapiro suit would be arrived at, declined today to add to that statement. In his original statement Gallagher emphasized that his client sought not monetary enrichment, but "vindication of himself and his people."

"This," the statement added, "has been achieved. To carry on the litigation would serve no useful purpose."

What the "satisfactory terms" for termination of the suit might embrace, covered a wide range of speculation. None of the attorneys involved in the case would discuss for publication a suggestion that the terms would be payment by Ford of Sapiro's expenses in the suit. How high these expenses have mounted could not be learned, but it is generally understood they represent a considerable fraction of the $1,000,000 asked by Sapiro in his bill of complaint.

Denies Bernstein Libel Suit Against Ford Has Been Dropped.

YONKERS, N. Y., July 9.—Emphatic denial that the libel suit brought by Herman Bernstein, writer and publisher, against Henry Ford had been settled, or that negotiations for a settlement were under way, was made today by Samuel Untermyer, counsel for Bernstein since the filing of the suit three years ago.

LEADING EDITORIAL COMMENT ON FORD'S APOLOGY TO JEWS

Almost Incredible That He Didn't Know Better, Says Kansas City Star, and New York Evening World Agrees.

FOLLOWING are some of the editorial comments on Henry Ford's disavowal of and public apology for anti-Jewish articles appearing in his magazine, the Dearborn Independent:

Kansas City Star—It seems almost incredible that fantastic attacks on people of Jewish stock should have been made in Henry Ford's paper for years while Mr. Ford was ignorant of the absurd nature of the charges. It seems almost equally incredible that Mr. Ford's editor should have proceeded with this major campaign without the knowledge and acquiescence of the owner."

Yet both situations are set forth by Mr. Ford in a signed statement. Granting that the published is a true statement of facts, all we can say is that Mr. Ford is in a class by himself in his conduct of his weekly paper. We can conceive such a confession from no other publisher on earth.

As for the campaign that was carried on in the Dearborn Independent every intelligent person knew it was grotesquely false. It was a real evil in American life that such charges could be made with the supposed backing of a man of Mr. Ford's standing. Happily that source of domestic discord is now ended.

New York Evening World: It is sometimes said facetiously that "it is a strange editor that reads his own paper,' and in the confession of Henry Ford that he is amazed, after four or five years of constant propaganda against the Jews in his Dearborn Independent, to find that such articles have appeared is a case in point.

Mr. Ford is utterly astounded to find that his name and his paper and his money have been used continually for years to give dignity to the foulest attacks upon millions of his fellow Americans. It seems incredible. His implication that through all these years, with an editorial of his own featuring every issue, he has not been curious to inquire into the contents of his journal, must be accepted, but it is passing strange. It seems impossible that no one should have mentioned the matter to him before. With the charge commonplace for several years that these articles, which he sponsored, were fanning the fires of religious and racial bigotry, with the claim constantly advanced that they filled the arsenals of the klan, with a suit brought against him in the courts, it is one of the wonders of the world that he never thought of looking at his paper. A busy man, no doubt, and yet he has time for long vacations, and it would have taken such a little time to have glanced over one issue.

The blame is placed upon the editor "upon whom I relied implicitly," and the editor is so amazed at the declaration just made by the owner that an inquiry is promised to see "just what is back of this." It does seem unthinkable that an editor would have launched upon such a crusade of intolerance and hate without having a distinct understanding with the owner.

However, whether Mr. Ford has been as ignorant as he says, or has merely awakened to the enormity of his offense against Americanism, the recantation is welcome and the pledge that the fortune of the second richest man in America is no longer to finance these inflammatory articles against a race is gratifying. They were unworthy of Mr. Ford as they would have been unworthy of any real American.

New York Telegram: It took him seven years to get around to it, but Henry Ford finally backed up, withdrew his charges against the Jews and has abandoned his contribution to the fomentation of race prejudice.

It could easily have been found out at the beginning that the so-called "Portocols of the Wise Men of Zion" were forgeries, and hence that the attack was not founded on fact. If Ford had taken the trouble to investigate before letting the Dearborn Independent run wild, much misery and unhappiness might have been saved to millions of his countrymen.

However, it is better late than never, and Ford's repentance should not end with a mere apology. He might, in justice, now devote some of his vast influence and enormous resources toward building a better understanding between all of the people of this country without regard to their race or creed.

Jewish Editor Says Ford's Apology Partly Atones for Wrong.

"The Jewish people are prepared to forgive, though to forget will be difficult; the feud is ended now, for Israel's mission is peace," says the Modern View, St. Louis Jewish periodical, in commenting on the apology of Henry Ford for anti-Jewish attacks appearing in the Dearborn Independent.

"The richest man in all the world, asking pardon of his Jewish fellow men and brothers," continues the article, "is a noble and inspiring exposition of the soundness of our country and its high ideals—and a heartening example of true Christianity. The Jewish people will be generous in so construing it."

Holding that Ford's apology was not obligatory or compulsory, although some will hold that it resulted from fear of lawsuits or boycotts or of jeopardizing Coolidge's candidacy, the writer of the article accepts his action as "a manly act that partially atones and expiates the wrong."

"We prefer," says the writer, "to accept the apology of Henry Ford at its face value, and as thoroughly sincere. Why not? Cannot a man, even with many millions, be honestly mistaken and misled?

"It is one of the conditions of huge wealth to be dependent on others for labor and for ideas. These subordinates may serve their master well or ill. In Henry Ford's choice there was neither wisdom nor good judgment, as far as conduct of the Independent was concerned. The blame appears to be on them, although the odium rightly rests on Henry Ford, for he approved the evil utterances by not repudiating and disavowing them much sooner."

Pointing out that most of the Jewish people have ignored the vituperations, the writer observes that such dignified contempt was fitting, but that "there is joy and satisfaction in perusing the announcement that the un-American and unwise anti-Jewish campaign is now closed and regret confessed, for that which can be undone wholly never, but which will be ended now."

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., July 9.—The Bartlett Trust Co., which was closed Dec. 28, last, with $1,900,000 in deposits, made its first payment yesterday. E. C. McKissick, liquidator, was authorized by Circuit Judge L. A. Vories to pay 25 cents on the dollar. The first payment will aggregate $470,228, and McKissick said he had $1,400,000 in farm loans for other payments as fast as the notes are paid.

BYRD AND CREW LEAVE PARIS ON WAY TO AMERICA

Big Crowd at Station to Bid Commander and Companions Goodby—Made Citizen of Calais.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, July 9.—Commander Byrd and the members of the crew of his trans-Atlantic monoplane "America" said farewell to Paris today, leaving on the "Golden Arrow" Express train for Calais shortly after noon. There were no formalities, but a big crowd was on hand at the station to cheer the aviators.

The Commander and his party arrived unostentatiously from their hotel and went directly to their seats in the train. Sheldon Whitehouse, the American Charge d'Affaires, was at the station to say farewell in the name of the Embassy.

During their stay at Calais, Byrd and his party called at the City Hall where he was made a citizen of the town and signed the Book of Gold. Three weddings were held up during the ceremony waiting for the Mayor.

From Calais Byrd and his party went to Dunkirk, arriving in a pouring rain.

To Visit Prince of Wales.

Commander Byrd and the Prince of Wales were under the same roof for several hours this evening at Le Touquet but they did not meet. The prince was in the play room of the Casino, while the commander was the guest of honor at a banquet given by the mayor.

The prince expressed the desire to meet Commander Byrd, but was unable to go to the banquet room, while Byrd could not leave the banquet. However the two will meet tomorrow. It will not for the first time, as the commander was the guest of the prince on Long Island several years ago. Byrd retired after midnight while the prince remained in the baccarat room of the Casino having a fine run of luck.

Byrd Made Dunkirk Citizen.

Dunkirk paid its most handsome respects to the aviators. Byrd was made an honorary citizen of the city. For Lieut. Noville, Dunkirk was a familiar sight, as he was stationed here a short time during the World War before being sent to Italy.

Byrd's companions were given special medals by the city, and H. Adams Gibbons, representative of Rodman Wanamaker, sponsor of the flight, was presented with a work of art.

All along the route from Calais to Dunkirk, the villages were gay with flags and noisy with cheers.

Prefect Hudelot of the Department of the North, and Mayor Valentin of Dunkirk accompanied the flyers by special train to the fashionable beach of Le Tourquet, where they were banqueted tonight.

From Dunkirk they went to Etaples, accompanied by half a hundred of their fellow countrymen, members of the American Chamber of Commerce of Paris. The special train was welcomed by four young women in provincial costume. One of the young women gave Commander Byrd a huge wreath of blossoms and the band struck up the national anthem.

This obliged Commander Byrd to stand at attention, while at the same time French custom demanded that he kiss the cheeks of the young woman who had given him the flowers. After a short period of embarrassment the commander succeeded in satisfying both French and American customs.

They plan to arrive at Cherbourg Tuesday, to board the Leviathan that afternoon. They will occupy the suite on the liner used by Queen Marie of Rumania on her American trip last year.

In his farewell speech over the radio, he told the people of France that he and his companions regretted leaving the country where they had received such wonderful hospitality.

The last full day in Paris of Commander Byrd and his companions was concluded amid unabated enthusiasm. Thousands of persons, despite weeping skies, waited outside the building where the airmen dined last night—their last function in Paris. The commander was so touched by this tribute from the man on the street that he went out on the balcony and thanked them amid rousing cheers.

TSINGTAO SIEGE BROKEN, ADMIRAL WILLIAMS SAYS

Asiatic Fleet Commander Reports Collapse of Chen's Forces.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 9.—Operations of the forces under Gen. Chen, which were threatening Tsingtao, have collapsed, the Navy Department was advised today by Admiral Williams, commanding the United States Asiatic fleet.

The dispatch said Gen. Chen's forces had become disorganized and that the fate of the General himself was undetermined.

Admiral Williams said the forces of Marshal Sun and the First Russian Brigade which were under command of Gen. Chu Yu-pu, were successful "in suppressing the rebellion." Regular passenger service on the railroad from Tsingtao to Tsinan was resumed yesterday.

The Admiral added that no American forces had been landed in Tsingtao.

Recent reports from China have said Gen. Chen, a Northern Chinese leader, had gone over to the Hankow Nationalists.

A dispatch from Pekin says that an official count on June 19 showed 419 Americans in Tsingtao, the majority of them missionaries from interior posts.

LEVINE WILL PAY DROUHIN $150,000, REPORT IN PARIS

French Public and Press Resent Pilot's Desertion of Farman to Fly Columbia Back to New York.

By ALFRED M. MURRAY,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

Copyright, 1927, by the Press and Pulitzer Publishing Cos. (New York World and Post-Dispatch.)

PARIS, July 9.—The Paris left behind today by Commander Richard E. Byrd and his party was a city in the throes of a passionate controversy over the situation created by Maurice Drouhin, famous French aviator, in deserting his own trans-Atlantic flight and signing a contract to fly with Charles A. Levine to New York.

Critics of Levine and Drouhin in their new partnership centered their jibes today on what they consider a trap that Drouhin has fallen into in his explanations of the new connection.

Drouhin, they say, has explained that he signed with Levine because he wanted to make the flight as quickly as possible and his own Farman biplane which he had intended to fly to New York was not ready, but it is pointed out, the Farman Blue Bird is ready and awits only the pilot's final tests. Yevine's monoplane, the Columbia, must undergo thorough overhauling and probably will not be ready to attempt its return flight for three or four weeks.

To Get $150,000, Report.

The figure of $150,000 for a year's work with Levine has been mentioned in aviation circles as the consideration Drouhin received for signing the contract. The report has not been denied.

The feeling is strong, under what amounts to a civic or national fervor, that strenuous efforts should be made to prepare a French machine with a French crew for the trans-Atlantic flight. The French Aero Club is taking the lead in this and is trying to obtain the consent of the Belgian Aero Club for the use of a Breguet plane now being prepared for a nonstop flight from Brussels into the Belgian Congo. If this consent is obtained, the French pilot, Coste, probably will command the ship.

French Press Aroused.

It was declared by L'Echo de Paris that "we must declare emphatically that however flattering Levine's proposition was for our aviators, it will not satisfy French public opinion. We know the Germans are preparing for a Berlin to New York flight with a German crew in a German plane with German engines.

"The Paris-to-New York flight must be accomplished by French aviators in a French plane with French engines. It is up to the French Government to do its duty. The national interest is at stake. French constructors must make sacrifices if necessary in the interest of the air industry."

Le Gaulois took a similar attitude, asserting that apart from national prestige, a French pilot's success in the Columbia would be considered as a defeat of the French aeronautical industry and the world would say, "France has fine pilots but the material is inadequate."

L'Auto stated "Levine's intentions may be good. The result is nevertheless that at a cost of $150,000 he has taken from a French firm a pilot it had selected for the Paris-to-New York flight."

On the other hand, Le Soir asked, "What importance has the nationality of the plane if the pilot is French?" This view also is supported by Le Petit Journal.

Other Pilots Available.

The Farman firm, which manufactured the Blue Bird and had arranged to have Drouhin pilot it, has addressed a letter to the press stressing the point that it would have been easy for Levine to have found another French pilot without taking one from the firm which was preparing for the Paris to New York flight.

The situation has stirred up a popular campaign for the restoration of the under secretariat of the air, which was suppressed by Premier Poincare. It is probable that the agitation will result at least in a Government department for the control of aviation until the time is considered right for an air ministry.

Overhauled Motor Taken to Europe for Levine's Plane.

NEW YORK, July 9.—Because of a delay in obtaining certain spare parts for the monoplane Columbia, John Carisi, factory superintendent for the Columbia Aircraft Corporation, canceled his passage on the liner France today and booked for a trip to France on the Aquitania, sailing tonight.

In addition to carrying with him the overhauled motor for the Columbia which was used on the plane's endurance flight, Carisi is take with him two propellers.

CONFESSION CLEARS DEATH OF WATCHMAN

Negro Tells of Scuffle in Which T. O. Harrington Was Killed May 30.

Garfield Thomas, alias Will Jackson, a Negro ex-convict, confessed to police last night that he had taken part in the scuffle in which Timothy O. Harrington, unarmed night watchman for the Missouri-Pacific railroad, was killed the night of May 30. The case has been given up as insolvable up to Thomas' arrest.

The Negro was arrested yesterday at Poplar Bluff, Mo., on information gathered by Detective Fred Holman. Taken to Police Headquarters on arrival here, he told his story freely.

He and another Negro had been walking along the levee the night of May 30, Thomas said. They reached Poplar street and had turned west when a white man jumped from behind one of the steel pillars supporting the elevated tracks there, and cried out: "Put up your hands." Thomas said he did not know the man was a watchman and that he lunged for the man's revolver.

At the same time the other Negro whipped out a knife and rushed at Harrington. The three fought and fell to the ground, the revolver was discharged and the watchman was hit. Thomas ran in one direction and his companion in another.

He admitted carrying off Harrington's pistol, and said he later threw it into the river.

Thomas was a river roustabout who fled St. Louis, Holman traced him through a description given by a woman.

Body of Man Taken From River.

LOUISIANA PAIR FACE EARLY TRIAL FOR MURDER PLOT

TRAPPER ACCUSED AS ACTUAL SLAYER

He Denies It—His Trick of Cutting Deer Carcass Said to Have Been Used on Victim's Body.

MORGAN CITY, La., July 9.—A special session of St. Mary parish grand jury will be called next Tuesday to look into the death of James J. Leboeuf, Morgan City business man, whose body was found in a lake early this week.

Mrs. Ada Leboeuf, the widow, and Dr. Thomas Dreher have confessed, Sheriff Charles Pecot announced, that they conspired to bring about the death of the husband, and declared that James Beadle shot Leboeuf while the latter was riding on the lake.

Beadle has denied that he did the shooting, or that he destroyed the boat in which Leboeuf met death. Sheriff Pecot said he planned to confront Beadle with two witnesses who said they saw him cut the boat to pieces.

Dr. Dreher's admonition to his wife "not to worry" because "about nine-tenths of what you have heard is not true," and the statement of James R. Parkerson, retained as counsel for the physician, that "an adequate defense" would be forthcoming, indicated that the three defendants would fight conviction for the crime to which two of them have confessed. If indicted, they will be tried July 26. District Attorney Emile Villemot says he will demand the death penalty.

Story of Illicit Romance.

The story of the romance of Dr. Dreher and Mrs. Leboeuf is one of years of association. The two became acquainted when Leboeuf was a struggling young business man and Dr. Dreher had only the nucleus of the practice he enjoyed up to a few days ago.

Dr. Dreher was a graduate of Tulane University, suave, cultured, pleasantly indulging in society in the hope that he would soon gain a comfortable practice. Leboeuf, when he died, had just begun to realize his dream of being considered a self-made man. He was not a college graduate, but he had ability, honesty of purpose and a native shrewdness.

Dreher had married a young woman from Ohio, who soon became a social factor in Morgan City and her rearing of her three children endeared her to the hearts of the townsfolk. Dreher came from Clinton, La., and his family was an old and respected one.

Leboeuf was born and reared in the vicinity of Bayou Lourse. He married Ada Benner, who came from the upper end of St. Mary Parish, where her family were known as sugar people.

Leboeuf's Rise to Competence.

All his life Leboeuf had been a quiet fellow. After years of effort in various fields he rose to a position as manager of the local utilities. He owned his own home and a good automobile. He had $5000 in insurance and money in the bank. He had four children. His wife alone, his friends say, caused him worry.

She was born in St. Mary Parish. She is a blonde, and not vivacious; rather she is cool and collected, attractive and comely, but not beautiful. She comes of good family. Her sister married Louis Blackman, chief of police of Morgan City; three brothers, Thomas, Lawrence and Emory Bonner, all live in Morgan City and are highly respected. Her children with the exception of Joseph, 21, who is an operator for the All-America Cable Co. here, are youngsters.

Beadle, whom Mrs. Leboeuf and Dr. Dreher name as the actual slayer—and who denies the charge—is a little man weighing about 120 pounds. For several years he was an odd job man for the doctor and for Leboeuf. Each of them used him frequently as guide on hunting and fishing trips.

Trick of Cutting Deer Carcass.

It was during one of these trips that his ability to cut a deer in such a way that the carcass, once sunk, would not rise again, was demonstrated to Dr. Dreher. This ability, the doctor declared in his confession, was called into service the night when Leboeuf died from the charge of a shotgun fired from the dark into his left breast.

Dr. Dreher and Leboeuf had been casual acquaintances for years. Then they became fast friends. The two hunted and fished together constantly. They met socially and during business hours. It was natural that their wives and families should be extremely friendly. It was not at all unnatural that Dr. Dreher should call frequently at the Leboeuf home. This calling continued for more than three years, but—and this started gossip in the town—the doctor's visits were made when Leboeuf either was at work or out of the city, seldom when he was at home.

This calling continued for more than three years, but—and this started gossip in the town—the doctor's visits were made when Leboeuf either was at work or out of the city, seldom when he was at home.

his sorrowing family our people offer sincerest condolences."

DREW'S INCLINATION TO STAGE HERITAGE FROM HIS PARENTS

COMING from a family which, through three generations holds what is probably a record for continuous activity upon the stage, John Drew acted his way from an inconspicuous beginning to a position as one of the outstanding figures of the theatrical world. He was regarded by many as the leading exponent of polite comedy, classical and modern.

Mr. Drew's inclination to a stage career was a heritage from his parents, both of whom were players of note. His father, also named John Drew, was an Irish comedian of great talent and ability and in the delineation of Irish characters was unexcelled. His mother, Louisa Lane Drew, was regarded as one of the most versatile actresses of the American stage.

In addition to their famous son, the couple had a daughter, Georgie Drew, who had a successful stage career and who became the wife of Maurice Barrymore. Their children, Ethel, John and Lionel Barrymore, all became stars of the stage.

When John Drew reached the age of 20 his mother, who had personally directed his preparation for a stage career, was manager of the Arch Street Theater, Philadelphia. That made it rather easy for the young man to get a start. For his debut, in 1873, he was cast as Plumper in the comedy "Cool as a Cucumber." Then for two years he played in many small parts "without making any particular impression either with the audiences or myself," as he later explained it.

It was not long after, however, that Mr. Drew's strong histrionic instinct began to show in his work and he exhibited versatile ability similar to that which marked his mother's career, identifying himself thoroughly with a great variety of characters. Throughout his career of more than 50 years he was credited with having created more roles and impersonated more characters than any other player of note on the American stage.

Mr. Drew's real climb to fame began when he placed himself under the management of Augustin Daly and made his New York debut at the Fifth Avenue Theater as Bob Ruggles in "The Big Bonanza." In that play Fanny Davenport, a famous stage beauty, was the leading lady. There followed two years of constant plugging for recognition, after which he joined Edwin Booth's company and played a long succession of secondary roles in Shakspearean plays. He also appeared with Clara Morris in "Leah, the Forsaken."

Also Played in London.

During the season of 1878-79 Mr. Drew toured the country with his brother-in-law, Maurice Barrymore, in "Diplomacy," and afterwards returned to Daly's Theater, remaining under the management of Daly until 1892. With Ada Rehan as leading lady, he played in a number of successes, including "Divorce," "Love on Crutches," "The Great Unknown," "The Second in Command" and "Love's Labors Lost." As a member of Daly companies he played engagements in London in 1884, 1886 and 1888.

While Mr. Drew had been the leading man of the Daly companies for several years, his first opportunity as a star came from Charles Frohman in "The Masked Ball" in 1892, his success in that play being shared by Maude Adams. He continued under Frohman's management until 1915 and appeared in a new play regularly each season on Broadway. In several of them he toured the principal cities of the United States.

Some of the vehicles in which Mr. Drew achieved fame were "Rosemary," "A Marriage of Convenience," "The Mummy and the Hummingbird," "Jack Straw" and "A Single Man." One of his favorite characters was Petruchio in "The Taming of the Shrew." Among the most notable of his latter day successes were "Major Pendennis," "The Gay Lord Quex" and "The Cat Bird."

John Drew was born in Philadelphia Nov. 13, 1853. He was educated in private schools and the Episcopal Academy, Philadelphia, studying at the latter institution until he was ready to make his stage debut. In 1880 he married Josephine Baker, an actress of Philadelphia. She died in 1918. They had one daughter, Louise Drew, who gained distinction on the stage.

Mr. Drew often was characterized as the best dressed man on the stage. He was fond of society and his knowledge of it served him well in many of his roles. So often did he portray the character of one exhibiting the manners and characteristics of a gentleman that this stage figure came to be known to theater-goers as a "John Drew role."

Last Appearance in St. Louis.

Mr. Drew's tour this year was with the "All-Star" revival of Pinero's old-fashioned romance, "Trelawney of 'Wells.'" He appeared in the role of Vice Chancellor Sir William Gower, K.t. He was associated in the production with many noted stage figures, among them Wilton Lackaye, Herletta Crossman, Effie Shannon, Lawrance D'Orsay, Mrs. Thomas Whiffen (who is 82 years old) and John E. Kellard.

This company appeared at the American Theater in St. Louis, April 26.

The same company was appearing at Portland, Ore., recently when Mr. Drew was forced by his illness to withdraw from the cast and go to San Francisco for medical care.

DRAMATIC SCENE AT LAST STAND OF BIRGER GANG

Trial of Three Men for Murder of Mayor Joe Adams to Open in Earnest Tomorrow.

(By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.)

BENTON, ILL., July 9.—The Joe Adams murder trial will open in earnest here Monday, when the difficult task of forming a jury will be taken up again.

An old gray courthouse in the square of a coal-mining town will gather the actors and spectators, sheltering them in a bare rural courtroom. Gangster, bootlegger and thief, farmer and miner, lawyer and Judge, townsman and city visitor will rub elbows in the sweat of scenes too intense for politeness.

Joe Adams himself was a forthright man who lived a life of few pastel shades. He was the Mayor of West City and West City has gusto on its own account. It suggests a background of filling station, barbecue stand, dance hall, saloon and quiet streets where a man might be machine-gunned in broad daylight without bothersome eyewitnesses. Joe Adams was murdered on a Sunday afternoon, and there were no known eyewitnesses.

Last Stand of Birger Gang.

Consider, then, the three defendants in this trial, Charlie Birger, Art Newman and Ray Hyland. These three are making the last stand of the Birger gang.

The Southern Illinois lawlessness, most observers agree, is nearly ended. There may be fitful outbreaks again, but the old days when the gangster was king are passing.

During the three days of preliminaries last week spectators stared at the trial's central figure as if he were a swiftly fading apparition soon to be seen no more. They wanted to remember Charlie Birger, the notorious gangster, as the fated character in a tragedy. His reputation has been monstrous, his fate is generally regarded as being ugly and certain.

Personality of Chief Defendant.

What they saw and will see during the swift-moving drama of testimony is a tall, rather sparely built man about 40 years old. He is dressed neatly in a gray suit and wears a gay necktie. Casually viewed he is rather handsome, but when interviewed he shows neither intelligence, education nor grace. His language is hard, his mental processes slow and the look of his gray eyes is chilling.

Sharing the lime-light with Birger is his comrade in crime and former friend, Newman. Looking much younger than Birger, Newman manages to conceal the bitter hatred he feels for his former chief. He is a shrewd little man, hard as nails. For 13 years he was a coal miner. He is boyishly frank. At the trial of his enemies, the Shelton brothers, at Quincy, Newman stood the fire of defense counsel for a whole day. "Are you a crook, Mr. Newman?" they asked him. "Yes," he replied, calmly, "and so are the Sheltons."

At the very start of things in this trial Newman outsmarted half a dozen defense lawyers. They wanted him tried separately from Birger, but Newman, knowing Birger would load all the guilt on him if that happened, overrode his attorney's advice and insisted on going to trial.

Probable Trend of Case.

Birger's answer to the murder charge is expected to be a sweeping denial. Newman, it is believed, will be frank. He hopes by this to save his life and to send Birger to the chair. He admits both objectives. Knowing all the secrets of the Birger gang, he sits, a dapper, easy figure in the courtroom. He is waiting for his chance. Birger gangsters have said that there were but two men in his gang whom Birger feared: Connie Ritter, now a fugitive, and Newman.

The third defendant, Hyland, known as "Izzy the Jew" looks just that. There are no highlights to Izzy. His sloping forehead, thick lips and swarthy countenance give a sinister cast to a face otherwise jovial. Izzy laughs at Birger's jokes. It was Izzy, according to the State's charge, who drove the car in which rode the gunmen who killed Joe Adams. Even in the gang Izzy was not trusted with anything which required mental adroitness.

Birger and Newman and Hyland—three crooks thrown together in a murder trial. Were it not for guarding deputies Birger and Newman would be at each other's throats. They have cursed one another in court. When each takes the witness stand their hatred will flare, and when thieves fall out—the State's Attorney laughs up his sleeve.

FUNDAMENTALISTS RULE UNIVERSITY; MODERNISTS QUIT

Twenty Resign From Des Moines U. Faculty When Baptist Union Takes Over Control of School.

By the Associated Press.

DES MOINES, Ia., July 9.—In possession of a university for the first time in the many years of its existence, the Baptist Bible Union of North America, a fundamentalist organization, will reopen Des Moines University here in September. The faculty is to be composed exclusively of men and women who have subscribed to 18 articles of fundamentalist faith.

The new status of the university, which has been under Baptist control for many years, but only recently under control of the union, is preliminary to a program which eventually will require the faculty to be affiliated with the fundamentalist group of the Baptist faith, Dr. T. T. Shields, president of the union, and head of the board of trustees of the university, said. For the time being, however, members of any religious denomination, so long as they adhere to fundamentalist principles will be retained. About 12 members of the faculty will stay.

For a week, members of the special faculty committee have been conducting a weeding out process among the faculty. All replacements are being made on the basis of subscription to the 18 articles of faith, a program directed by Dr. Shields. This work will be completed next week.

Each member of the faculty interviewed by the committee was asked, among other things, if he believed literally that the whale swallowed Jonah.

Among the principal tenets of the 18 articles of faith are: Belief in the Bible as the infallible word of God; that it was written by men supernaturally inspired; belief in only one living and true God; in divinity of the Holy Spirit, in Genesis account of Creation, in the virgin birth of Jesus Christ, and in the resurrection and return of Christ.

A new president of the university with proved fundamentalist convictions will be named shortly, Dr. Shields declared.

For about a year the university has been without a president, following resignation of Dr. John W. Million to enter business.

Heading the list of resignations of which there have been nearly 20 is that of Dr. Howland Hanson.

"I knew this Bible union group had been criticising me for years. I knew it to be inconsistent of me to remain with the university after such criticism, and that it would be inconsistent of the board to ask me to. Therefore it was a sort of mutual agreement between us. We both recognized the incompatibility of the situation."

Among those to resign from the faculty is Dean E. O. Kagy of University College of Pharmacy, who has held that position for 19 years. Dean Kagy recently affiliated with the Unitarian Church.

AIR TOUR PLANES AT TULSA

Will Leave Oklahoma Today for Omaha, Neb.

By the Associated Press.

TULSA, Ok., July 9.—The thirteen planes entered in the national air tour arrived here late today on the return trip to Detroit and will take off tomorrow for Omaha, Neb., making a stop at Wichita, Kan.

Leaving Dallas, Tex., this morning the airmen swung northward to Oklahoma City and stopped there for luncheon. The flight here from the Oklahoma capital was uneventful. Floyd P. Clevenger, piloting an Eaglerock plane, was the first to land in Tulsa.

150 DROWNED IN FLOODED SAXON TOURIST REGION

Stricken Areas Lie Along the Elbe and Its Tributaries, the Mueglitz and Gottleuba Rivers.

By the Associated Press.

DRESDEN, Saxony, July 9.—Fully 150 persons have lost their lives in a great flood in Saxony, which, without warning, swept in a wave seven feet high and threw towns and villages in the affected area into chaos in less than three minutes. It is feared many tourists are among the victims.

The property damge today was estimated at 12,000,000 marks (about $2,800,000). The bodies of hundreds of drowned cattle were reported to be menacing the health of the population in the inundated regions.

The stricken areas include two valleys in the favorite tourist district along the Elbe and its tributaries, the Mueglitz and Gottleuba rivers in the so-called Saxon Alps, with Pirna, well known to American tourists, as a center, and including Glashutte, the center of the celebrated German watch industry, where a 400-year-old stone bridge, the pride of the city, was washed away. Rail traffic was completely paralyzed throughout the area and telephone communication was being re-established today only with great difficulty.

The disaster came so swiftly it was impossible for many of the victims to take refuge on their housetops or to find other means of escape.

Heart-rending scenes were enacted everywhere. Children today were wandering in search of their parents, while distracted relatives and friends were trying to identify victims. It was the worst flood disaster to strike Germany this summer in a season already filled with weather catastrophies.

The Saxon Government, which sent four Cabinet members to the area and the Reichstag at Berlin which, before adjourning today authorized the Government to render financial and other assistance, are doing their utmost to relieve the distress, while Saxon police and Federal troops, aided by a technical emergency corps are aiding in salvage work.

Among several villages which were completely carried away by the floods was Oelsengrund.

The town of Berggiesshubel, which was in the direct path of the storm was literally swept away. More than 50 dead have been recovered from the ruins.

Nothing remains of the village of Neuendorf, where most of the inhabitants perished. Great masses of lumber from the saw mills smashed everything in their path, causing enormous damage.

The first indications of the coming disaster were given at 8 o'clock Friday night when calls for help came from the Burgomaster of Gottleuba, which was hit by a cloudburst late in the afternoon.

STATE BUREAU TO SUPERVISE HOUSING TRUST LIQUIDATION

Gentry Gives Work Being Done by Cantley to Building and Loan Official.

JEFFERSON CITY, July 9.—Liquidation of the housing trusts remaining in Missouri should be completed under the supervision of new Bureau of Building and Loan supervision instead of the State Finance Department, Attorney-General Gentry ruled in an opinion issued today to State Finance Commissioner S. L. Cantley. The ruling was requested by Cantley.

Gentry held in effect that the housing trusts had been under the Building and Loan Division of the Finance Department, and this was made a separate department by an act of the 1927 Legislature, creating the new Bureau of Building and Loan Supervision. Gentry ruled Supervisor Roy McCoy, recently appointed to head the new department, should file motions in the receivership cases pending in St. Louis to be substituted as receiver and relieve the finance commissioner.

cate by that answer whether any useful purpose could be served by continuing the Geneva negotiations.

In the meantime the Japanese show a tendency to side more vigorously with the British in restricting as far as possible the number of 10,000-ton cruisers. Their naval interests would be advanced by such restrictions, because if the United States possesses relatively few high powered cruisers, Japan's position in far eastern waters would be strengthened, as many of the cruisers owned by the United States must be reserved for protection as convoys.

There are increasing indications here of the widespread interest of the American people in the conference developments. A western woman wrote Gibson she hoped he would not lose sight of the special value of heavy cruisers and would not forget that many American women believe the United States has the right to possess such cruisers.

From Fort Atkinson, Wis., came a letter saying: "Hope you will stand by the United States' cracked cannon as long as she holds."

SHOCK CAUSES MAN TO FALL TO DEATH

Touching Wire Results in Skull Fracture for M. J. Cassidy Jr. at Work on Crane.

A fall from the electric crane he was operating, caused by coming in contact with a high voltage wire, proved fatal yesterday for Maurice J. Cassidy Jr., 20 years old, the son of the secretary of the Building Trades Council. The accident occurred on the factory site of the Asbestos Shingle Co., 9215 Riverside drive, where Cassidy was employed as a hoisting engineer.

Cassidy was at the top of his crane, about 25 feet from the ground, when he straightened suddenly, lost grasp of his controls and fell headfirst. He struck a concrete pavement, fracturing his skull, and causing almost immediate death.

Police who investigated the accident said Cassidy had come in contact with a high voltage wire, thereby receiving an electric shock that stunned him. Physicians who examined his body found no visible electric burns.

HEARINGS ON FLOOD CONTROL

Federal, State and City Officials to Assemble Here Tomorrow.

The executive committee of the Chicago Flood Control Conference will appear before the Mississippi River Commission Tuesday to consider flood control. Hearings will be held by the commission tomorrow and Tuesday at the Federal building. Interested United States Senators, Congressmen and Governors of the Mississippi Valley have been invited to attend.

Members of the commission and the Chicago Committee will be guests of the Chamber of Commerce at a luncheon Tuesday at Hotel Statler. Mayor Thompson of Chicago will speak.

Annual Novena of Saint Ann.

The annual novena in honor of Saint Ann in her Shrine, Page boulevard and Whittier street, will begin next Sunday and close on the evening of the feastday. The sermons will be preached by a Redemptorist missionary, the Rev. Michael Pathe, C. Ss. R.

FOCH'S NAME PERPETUATED

PARIS, July 9.—Marshal Foch's name is to live on, although there is no male line. The only son of the Commander-in-Chief of all the allied armies, a lieutenant, was killed in the war. Col. Fournier, husband of one of the Marshal's two daughters, has been accorded the right, by presidential decree, to give his children the name Fournier-Foch.

This authorization was given by the Council of State at the request of the Minister of Justice, but had to be made effective by President Doumergue.

FEDERAL INQUIRY INTO PRACTICES OF LAWYER

Signatures on Petition Filed by Jacob Mellman Alleged Forgeries.

Federal Judge Faris yesterday ordered an inquiry into the practices of Jacob Mellman, an attorney. An alleged forgery of signatures to a bankruptcy schedule and paupers' oath on behalf Mellman's client, Sam Stein, 3516 Bell avenue, former clothing store owner, came to the attention of Judge Faris in a hearing of a request of Stein for reinstatement of his first involuntary bankruptcy proceedings filed in January, 1926, and dismissal of the second proceeding instituted July 1.

Judge Faris dismissed the first proceeding for failure to pay costs Mellman, whose office is in the Title Guaranty Building, then filed the second petition. Attached to it was a pauper's oath purporting to bear Stein's signature and to have been witnessed by Miss Monica Ripley, a notary public in the Merchants-Laclede Building.

Stein and Miss Ripley both testified before Judge Faris yesterday the signatures were forgeries. They wrote their own signatures for comparison with those on the bankruptcy papers.

Mellman, who had been notified of the hearing, was not in court. He had informed Judge Faris that as an orthodox Jew he refrained from his professional duties on the Sabbath. In addition, Edward Schwartz, an attorney, appearing for him, said he was ill.

Judge Faris reinstated Stein's first involuntary bankruptcy petition and dismissed the second.

MRS. DODGE WEARS MOURNING

Sails for Honolulu, Where Lieut. Williams Was Killed.

By the Associated Press.

SAN PEDRO, CAL., July 9.—Mrs. Horace E. Dodge, left for Honolulu today dressed in deep mourning after the steamship Calawaii had delayed its departure 15 minutes to accommodate her.

Notwithstanding her denial that she was engaged to wed Lieut. Charles S. Williams, who was killed when his plane plunged into the sea near Honolulu last Wednesday, Jack Hill of Detroit, spokesman for the wealthy divorcee, said that the friendship between the pair probably would have materialized into an engagement had the aviator lived. Hill denied reports that Mrs. Dodge was going to the islands to attend funeral services for Lieut. Williams, but admitted she would arrive there in time for the services, should she desire to attend.

would have reinstated the ouster order. Barrett based the motion on alleged restraint of trade and price fixing by the company, in violation of what was in effect a parple from the former case.

Attorney General Gentry dismissed this motion on Dec. 11, 1925, and on the same day filed an entirely new anti-trust suit against the Standard of Indiana, the Texas Company, the Standard Oil Co. of Kentucky and the White Eagle Oil and Refining Co. The new suit charged a combination in restraint of trade and to fix prices. The Supreme Court was asked to forfeit the charters of the companies and oust them from business in Missouri. The new suit was based on the evidence gathered by Barrett in his investigation.

Nature of the Contracts.

Evidence collected by Barrett in his preliminary investigation tended to show that the Standard of Indiana had entered into contracts with 21 other companies, licensing them to use the patented "cracking" process. They contained a provision excluding the licensees from selling gasoline manufactured under the process, in the Standard of Indiana's territory. In some instances cancellation of the license was provided as a penalty for invading Standard of Indiana territory.

Existence of these contracts was admitted by Standard of Indiana officers in the preliminary hearings, but they declared the territorial exclusion clauses never had been enforced.

After Barrett's motion was filed in Supreme Court a special commissioner was appointed by the court to take testimony but no hearings were held because other anti-trust suits were occupying the time of Barrett's department.

No Testimony Taken.

When Gentry filed the new suits the special commissioner was reappointed but no hearings were held to take testimony and the case dragged along for months. Gentry had indicated he would begin the hearings last summer but his appropriation for prosecution of anti-trust suits was exhausted and action was deferred until the 1927 Legislature made a new appropriation.

The 1927 Legislature appropriated $20,000 for the Attorney-General to use in anti-trust suits during 1927 and 1928 but this appropriation was held up by Gov. Baker because of inadequate funds, subject to release later if funds became available. Hearings were conducted recently in another anti-trust suit pending against 19 plumbing companies in St. Louis, through arrangements to meet the expenses later when money becomes available.

delphia—the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation directly or through subsidiaries, has controlled all or nearly all of the first class moving picture theaters.

Block booking is treated in detail in the findings, with this statement in conclusion:

"The purpose and necessary effect of such distribution policy is to lessen competition and to tend to create a monopoly in the motion picture industry, tending to exclude from the market and the industry small independent producers and distributors of films and denying to exhibitors freedom of choice in leasing films."

The original complaint of the commission included besides Famous Players-Lasky Corporation and Zukor and Lasky, six corporations and four individuals. The complaint was dismissed as to all of these. They were: Realart Pictures Corporation; the Stanley Company of America; the Stanley Booking Corporation; Black New England Theaters, Inc.; Southern Enterprises, Inc., a. 1 the Saenger Amusement Co., and Jules Mastbaum, Alfred S. Black, Stephen A. Lynch and Ernest V. Richards Jr.

BODY OF SUPPOSED FUGITIVE RECOVERED

Taken From Lake Near Where Danville (Ky.) Man's Car and Hat Were Found.

Special to the Post-Dispatch

DANVILLE, Ky., July 9.—The body, believed to be that of Charles E. Henderson, who has been considered a fugitive since his disappearance seven months ago, was recovered from Herrington Lake today. It was found a few yards from a bridge where Henderson's bloodstained automobile was discovered abandoned the morning of Dec. 10 last.

The first theory was that Henderson had been robbed and murdered, but when a shortage of $25,000 was discovered in accounts of the Central Wholesale Grocery Co., of which he was manager, an international search for him was begun.

The body was found by three fishermen in a boat. It was about eight feet from shore and was held stationary near the surface by a small limb.

BODY OF SUPPOSED FUGITIVE RECOVERED

Taken From Lake Near Where Danville (Ky.) Man's Car and Hat Were Found.

Special to the Post-Dispatch

DANVILLE, Ky., July 9.—The body, believed to be that of Charles E. Henderson, who has been considered a fugitive since his disppearance seven months ago, was recovered from Herrington Lake today. It was found a few yards from a bridge where Henderson's bloodstained automobile was discovered abandoned the morning of Dec. 10 last.

The first theory was that Henderson had been robbed and murdered, but when a shortage of $15,000 was discovered in accounts of the Central Wholesale Grocery Co., of which he was manager, an international search for him was begun.

The body was found by three fishermen in a boat. It was about eight feet from shore and was held stationary near the surface by a small limb.

The fishermen, Price Elliott, T. J. Mays and Liga Logan, all of Danville, notified Boyle County officials. James Bean, Deputy Sheriff, took from the pockets of the dead man a pocket book containing several business cards and an identification card bearing Henderson's name. No money was found.

Officials say failure to find the body sooner was due to the fact that it was held by the limb under the surface of the water, which during the winter was much higher than at present. The lake has fallen 20 feet, it is said, within the last few weeks.

Henderson disappeared the night of Dec. 9. He left his home to take a servant home in his car, but failed to return. Early the following morning his car was found on Chenault Bridge. In the car were a blood-stained hat and handkerchief. Blood was found also on the bridge railing nearby.

The lake bottom was dragged and divers made unsuccessful attempts to locate the body. Later, when the shortage became known, rewards were offered for Henderson, dead or alive.

Henderson was president of the Chamber of Commerce and active in lodge work. Mrs. Henderson is the daughter of Cleli Coleman, Kentucky Commissioner of Agriculture.

ALEXANDER LOEB FUNERAL SERVICES THIS AFTERNOON

Funeral services for Alexander Loeb, vice president of the Marx & Haas Clothing Co., who died Friday night, will be held at Temple Shaare Emeth, Lindel boulevard and Vandeventer avenue, at 2 o'clock this afternoon. Burial will be in the new Mount Sinai Cemetery.

Mr. Loeb died without knowing of the death of his brother, Dr. Hanau W. Loeb, dean of St. Louis University Medical School, who died Wednesday afternoon. Both suffered from heart disease. Alexander Loeb, who was 60 years old, had been confined to his home, 5112 Westminster place, for six months.

Among the various offices which he held at different times were president of the Jewish Sanatorium of St. Louis, president of the Westwood Country Club and a director of the United Jewish Charities. He is survived by his widow, three sons and a daughter.

Re-roof for the last time with these everlasting shingles right over your old roof

Leave the old roof on. Lay these beautiful everlasting shingles right over it. No fuss, no dust, no litter of torn-off shingles on the lawn. No danger from rain while the work is in progress.

Then forget your roof. It will be everlasting—no costly repairs. It will be fireproof—you need never fear flying sparks. You re-roof for the last time when you re-roof with Johns-Manville Rigid Asbestos Shingles.

Flame-proof!
Time-proof!
Beautiful!

Try an' burn it!

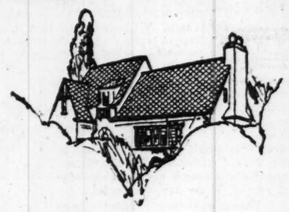
JUST as this shingle defies the white-hot flame of the plumber's blow-torch, it defies the menace of flying sparks and burning brands that are the cause of most great fires.

Not merely "fire-resistant" but fire-proof. Why accept anything less, now that Johns-Manville has made the cost of complete safety so low.

No repairs

And there is further economy in a roof of Johns-Manville Rigid Asbestos Shingles, because no painting or repair cost will ever be necessary.

You roof once and for all with these shingles of indestructible asbestos and Portland cement. The first cost is the last.



A new beauty

You will welcome the interesting beauty of these everlasting shingles. Their hexagonal shape gives you a roof of broken line diagonals that is a refreshing change from the stiff straight lines of ordinary shingles. The shingles may be laid with either side to the weather—one side is a restful gray, the other a blend of soft warm coloring. Remember, these shingles will never wear out, warp, curl or change color. They are solid, substantial, permanent.

An education in shingles

An interesting demonstration of shingles awaits you at the office of every Johns-Manville dealer shown on this page. Let the nearest one make the famous blow-torch test for you. Let him show you the "storm-anchor" construction that holds these shingles tightly to your roof. Let him show you their beautiful coloring. Let him show you just how they look on a roof. These shingles are different—they are well worth investigating.

Baking Demonstration This Week of Estate Gas Ranges

¶ When the oven of a Gas Range is built like a double boiler (an exclusive feature of Estate Ranges), then baking results are most interesting. Better—in so many ways! You'll enjoy this demonstration by a factory expert—it will be held Monday and all week.

Thermostate Control
—that regulates oven heat and makes perfect baking a certainty—is another feature that Estate Ranges offer to modern housewives.

Moderate Prices!
They'll surprise you when you realize the exceptional merit of Estate Ranges. Three models—from 14 to 18 inch ovens—with heat control—at $84.95 to $91.95—without heat control, $71.50 to $78.95.
Terms $5 Cash, Balance Monthly With Small Carrying Charge.

Cabinet Beauty!
—emphasizes the wonderful values that Estate Ranges are—and so do their many refinements—such as removable oven bottom, utensil drawer, concealed hinges and many others.

76 GIRLS AT HEALTH SOCIETY CAMP NOW BEING CARED FOR

All Members of Colony on Mississippi River Bluff Take Part in Daily Hikes.

Seventy-six girls and young women are being cared for at Tuberculosis and Health Society Night and Day Camp, 9500 South Broadway. According to figures which the research department of the society has compiled, it costs $101.49 to restore a girl to health. No one is admitted who is too ill to participate in the daily routine of hiking and other outdoor activities. Eight out of every 10 girls admitted to the camp are permanently restored to health.

Since its establishment, 13 years ago, 1714 girls have attended the camp, with a cost to the society of more than $170,000, according to Mrs. B. F. Bush, chairman of the Camp Committee. Girls who can pay are charged $5 a week; others are admitted free. The society maintains this camp as a preventive measure rather than a sanitarium.

The Night and Day Camp is located in a forest of oaks on a bluff overlooking the Mississippi River. A school is maintained with a superintendent and two teachers for girls of grade school age. A girl usually stays three or four months. After leaving the camp, each girl is under the observation of service workers. Visitors and relatives of the girls are admitted to the camp every afternoon, and open house is held every two weeks, the next such occasion being next Sunday.

FRENCH END CHAMPAGNE ROW

Only Wine From One District to Bear the Name.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, July 9.—The Battle of Champagne seems to be over. Parliament thinks it has settled a wine war that caused riots at Ay 20 years ago and has lasted ever since.

Wine-growers of the champagne district, around Rheims and along the Marne, used violence at that time to prevent champagne makers from bringing in wines from the neighboring Aube and Upper Marne departments and bottling them as champagne, after the usual process of putting the fizz in them. They objected later to the sale of these wines as "second zone" champagne, charging that the "second zone" became smaller and smaller on the labels. Courts have been busy for years trying to settle the quarrel. Finally all agreed to let one deputy, Edouard Barthe, a famous expert, settle the question. His report, limiting champagne to the traditional champagne district and defining the type has been written into the law, and peace seems restored.

STYLE SHOW PAGES TO DANCE

Models and Ballet Members Rehearse Daily for Pageant.

The pages of the Style Show, symmetrical and chic young women, who previously have been held down to the purely ornamental task of turning the leaves of the style program, next month will come into their own on the stage with a ballet number prepared especially for them.

This year's Fashion Pageant at the Garden Theater will be held Aug. 4 to 17, inclusive. Models and members of the ballet are rehearsing daily in a studio at Grand boulevard and Franklin avenue.

BRITISH FLYER PLANS U. S. FLIGHT WEDNESDAY

Capt. Courtney Expects to Land in New York at Night Time.

By the Associated Press

SOUTHAMPTON, England, July 9.—Sir Arthur Whitten Brown who, with Sir John Alcock, first flew across the Atlantic, will witness the take-off of Capt. F. T. Courtney, the British ace, from Southampton waters on the latter's initial hop in the flight which is designed to bring Courtney fame as the first aviator to span the Atlantic westward.

All preparations have been made to start for New York Wednesday in the Duralumin Dornier flying boat, the "Whale," it is stated by R. B. Wainwright, Courtney's business manager. Wainwright will accompany the aviator on the first hop, which will take the "Whale" to Valentia, in Southern Ireland, where a base has been established.

Capt. Courtney plans to refuel at Valentia, and then with Navigator Downer and Mechanic Little expects to start late Wednesday or Thursday—the actual time depending on the weather reports—over the 1900 miles of open water between Ireland and Newfoundland. From Newfoundland Courtney will proceed to New York.

The British flyer is prepared to start either day or night, as he has made all plans for a night descent in New York harbor, off Governor's Island, if necessary. Special light will be installed, it is understood, for his guidance in case he needs to land at night.

TELLS HOW DRY LEAGUERS ALMOST ACCUSED COOLIDGE

New York American Revives Old Story Printed in Post-Dispatch March 29.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 9.—The New York American, in a copyrighted article, says that a proposal to issue a proclamation charging President Coolidge publicly with misfeasance or malfeasance in office" was debated and voted on by the Executive Committee of the Anti-Saloon League in Chicago, Nov. 8, 1925. The proposition was defeated, 4 to 5, after a long debate.

Members of the committee voting for issuance of the charges, according to the American, were: Arthur J. Davis superintendent of the New York Anti-Saloon League; L. Breck Musgrove, Alabama millionaire; Superintendent Laughbaum of the Oklahoma Anti-Saloon League, and W. M. Forgrave of Massachusetts.

Those voting against the proposition were: A. H. Briggs, superintendent of the league in California; H. B. Carre of Tennessee; Superintendent Homer Tope of Pennsylvania; Superintendent Shumaker of Indiana, and Bishop Thomas Nicholson, then president of the league.

The story of the so-called "proclamation," in reality a proposed press release, was told in full in the Post-Dispatch of March 29, last, in an article by Charles G. Ross, chief Washington correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

Byrd's Ex-Pilot Leaves Hospital.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 9—Floyd Bennett, who was to have piloted Commander Richard E. Byrd's plane to Paris, left St. Vincent's Hospital today, where he has been recovering from a fractured thigh, suffered when the America overturned on a test flight at Hasbrouck Heights, N. Y., in April.

RAILROAD CHIEFS VISIT THE PRESIDENT

Hale Holden and Howard Elliott Tell Him Crop Prospects in West Are Fine.

By the Associated Press

RAPID CITY, S. D., July 9.—A group of railroad executives called at the summer White House today during a regular inspection of their properties in this territory and gave President Coolidge a highly encouraging report on Middle Western crop prospects.

Railroads are massing their forces for the movement of a bumper crop, they told Mr. Coolidge, which in their opinion will break all records. If unforeseen contingencies fail to intervene, they considered that business would be accelerated generally but they added that, while business is not so brisk now, no artificial stimulation or legislation was necessary to aid it in holding its own.

The officers here were Hale Holden, president, and Charles E. Perkins, general manager of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, and Howard Elliott, chairman of the board of the Northern Pacific Railroad. The two latter also are directors in the Burlington, which is controlled by the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern lines.

The enthusiastic reports on crop conditions was listened to attentively by the President who sat with his guests for a half hour on the front porch of the lodge.

"I have never seen crops looking so well west of the Missouri River," Holden said. "The Lord has certainly smiled on the West this year. We are storing cars now in this region, particularly in Nebraska, to handle what seems certain to be a record crop. Grains especially are looking well."

The Burlington men came into the Black Hills today primarily on an inspection trip and while there was some thought of further development of railroad and hotel facilities in this immediate vicinity, none would make a forecast in this connection.

POLICE SEEK MAN WHO LURED GIRL ON PROMISE OF JOB

Miss Mildred Henry, Formerly of St. Louis, Charges Stranger Attempted to Attack Her.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, July 9.—Police are searching for a man on complaint of Miss Mildred Henry, 22 years old, formerly of St. Louis, who reported last night that he lured her into his automobile on a promise of giving her employment and then drove into the country where he attempted to attack her. He threw her out of the machine, she said, and drove away with her purse, containing $40.

Miss Henry related the man came to her home yesterday morning and asked her to accompany him to his office for a trial at clerical work. He told her he had read her advertisement for employment in a newspaper.

Miss Mildred Henry formerly resided at a branch of the Young Women's Christian Association at 744 Walton avenue.

BESTWALL

THE SUPERIOR PLASTER WALL BOARD is simply a stronger, better grade of plaster wall board

There are no secret processes or miracles in the making of plaster wall board.

BESTWALL is stronger and of superior decorating quality simply because it is made that way.

BESTWALL is produced by a company that has had more experience in the making of wall board than any other concern in the industry. Experience counts.

BESTWALL makes sturdier walls and ceilings because of the extra fine gypsum plaster core combined with the tough fibrous facing—a Beaver-made product. This same fibre facing makes Bestwall so easy and so economical to decorate.

BESTWALL, being made of rock plaster, cannot burn. It is approved by the Underwriters' Laboratories, Inc. In addition it is a remarkably fine insulator. Muffles sound—resists heat and cold.

BESTWALL costs no more. To secure its extra advantages you have only to specify and insist upon getting Beaver Bestwall. You can't be fooled, if you simply look for the CREAM-colored surface. No other plaster wall board has it. Most carpenters prefer to work with Bestwall because it can be handled more roughly, with safety.

REED INVEIGHS AGAINST INVASION OF STATE'S RIGHTS

Addressing Texas Bar Association Assails Centralization of Power in Federal Government.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

HOUSTON, Tex., July 9.—Senator James A. Reed of Missouri, in an address to the Bar Association of Texas today, made a plea for return in the United States of the "old fundamentals" of government and for a re-birth of "that respect for the Constitution which the fathers of the Republic maintained."

Fundamentals have been forgotten, he declared, in the tendency of officials to extend their authority.

Reed said the purpose of the founders of the nation "was to protect the individual in the enjoyment of the fullest measure of personal liberty. Man was to be the master, government the servant."

"Standing upon intellectual heights seldom attained," he continued, "and surveying the rise, decline and death of liberty, the creators of our Government sought most of all to guard against a return to that pernicious form of government which made the rights of individuals subject to governmental control.

"To preserve these powers in the people, to guard them from invasion, they limited the authority of the Federal Government reserving to the State and the peoples thereof all powers not expressly granted.

"Have we kept the faith? I assert that in thousands of instances men charged with the solemn duty of guarding the Constitution have employed cunning and dishonest artifices to defeat its plain intent and to twist its language to the purpose of usurpation.

"The fathers understood that the centralization of a great mass of power in a single government inevitably results in mis-government, in corruption, and in the impairment of liberty. Yet, our Government had been scarcely established when the movement began for the enlargement of its powers. In some instances that enlargement is not easily distinguishable from usurpation.

"The responsibility, first and last, must rest upon the Congress, upon the courts, upon the Legislatures of the various states, and upon the people themselves.

Where the Courts Failed.

"It was designed that the courts should keep legislative bodies strictly within the limits of the Constitution, but, that power was greatly impaired by the rule early established that the courts would indulge the presumption that the legislative body being the natural guardian of the Constitution, acts should be sustained when by almost any process of reasoning they could be construed as within constitutional authority.

"Congress had the power to raise revenue by an import tax on goods coming into the country. That power was used to keep goods out of the country. The pretense was that the Government sought to raise revenues for its support. The fact was that it intended to decrease its own revenues and to increase the profits of private corporations. But the protective tariff stood and still stands like a robber by the highway levying tribute by aid of the law.

"The right to establish postoffices and post roads has been so used as to bring within the Federal dragnet a multitude of crimes. A business transaction conceived and consummated with the borders of a state, if fraud be charged and a single letter mailed, becomes subject to Federal criminal processes. The pretense is that the Federal Government is trying to protect the purity of the Postoffice. The fact is it is usurping jurisdiction over a crime properly cognizable by the courts of the State where committed.

The Federal power to regulate interstate commerce, has been stretched almost to the breaking point, first to regulate the shipment of goods in commerce; then, to prescribe the character of equipment employed as instrumentalities of commerce; then to embrace the individuals engaged in operating those instrumentalities; then the regulation of hours of labor and wages; and finally to substantially guarantee dividends on the capital invested.

Theft of goods from a railway car is as much a local crime as a theft from a house in the immediate vicinity. Yet the power to regulate interstate commerce has been exercised to bring this local offense within Federal jurisdiction.

The same power has been extended to include the punishment of the theft of an automobile in one state and its transportation into another, although both acts are directly cognizable by the laws of the States where the crimes were committed.

Pure Food Laws.

"The sale of impure foods is naturally a matter to be regulated in the market where they are offered. But the Federal Government, under the pretext that it is regulating interstate commerce, proceeds frequently by high-handed methods, to seize and condemn goods upon the pretense that it is regulating commerce between the States. The fact is, it is usurping police powers properly belonging to the States.

"The guarantee that a citizen shall be tried by a jury assembled from the vicinage has been largely nullified.

"In alleged conspiracy cases, it is established that the venue may be laid at the place of any overt act. Commonly, the government selects the particular venue most favorable to a conviction. Frequently citizens are dragged to trial thousands of miles from their homes and from the place where the alleged conspiracy was formed and executed. This particular abuse has recently brought a vigorous protest from Federal judges.

"Indeed, it appears that while we have not reached the boundaries of legislative usurpation, we are at last approaching the limit of judicial patience. This is manifest in several decisions."

Senator Reed cited several decisions to illustrate the latitude of the courts in sustaining law. He referred to a Supreme Court decision of 1924, adding:

How Prohibition Operates.

"That case holds that the constitutional amendment granting the power to the United States to prohibit the sale of intoxicating liquors for beverage purposes can be employed to authorize a statute prohibiting a physician from prescribing beer, not for beverage purposes, but for medicinal purposes. The court declares the power to prohibit traffic in intoxicating liquors for beverage purposes includes the power to prohibit traffic in similar liquors, although non-intoxicating. And further, it holds substantially that Congress can do whatsoever it deems necessary to stop the sale of intoxicating liquors.

"The logic of the opinion, in my opinion, is that Congress, having been given power only to prohibit liquors for beverage purposes, can draw to that power the right to prohibit liquors for all and every purpose.

"The only conclusion I can reach from these contradictory opinions is that the Supreme Court of the United States sustains a power when it feels favorable to the law, and denies the existence of a power when it believes the law is of bad import. I would not say, or intimate, that the court is controlled by popular clamor.

"It is no part of my purpose to discuss the merits of either prohibition or woman suffrage. Let them, however, serve as examples.

"The movement toward suffrage was progressing with marked activity in the various States. Not content with this, a Federal amendment was demanded and enacted, in some instances, by methods absolutely unjustifiable.

Curtailing State's Rights.

"The point I desire to urge, is that the highest attributes of sovereignty is the right of a State to determine the qualifications of its own electors. When that power was taken from the States and conferred upon the Federal Government, there resulted a corresponding curtailment of State sovereignty.

"We now have a demand that the Constitution be further amended so that every State must grant to every woman exactly the same rights granted to men. And, this demand is made after the women have the full right to vote in the election of members of their own General Assemblies, and thus secure the enactment of statutes agreeable to the people of the State.

The Logic of Prohibition.

"Again, I do not propose to discuss the merits of prohibition. It may be conceded at the outset that the use of intoxicating liquors is a great evil. But, so is the commission of any other kind of crime. Murder, arson and other heinous offenses are surely as much to be condemned as the sale of a bottle of beer. Yet, as to these grosser and more frightful crimes jurisdiction is left in the States whilst Congress is given jurisdiction over the lesser evil. The logic of the situation is that if the Constitution ought to have been amended to punish the sale of liquor within the respective States, a similar jurisdiction should be granted over every kind and character of crime.

"If that were done, there would indeed be little reason for continuing State Government, for as much power would be concentrated at Washington that the tail might well go with the hide.

Too Much Centralization.

"If the march toward centralization be not soon arrested state governments might as well cease to exist, for all authority will have been assumed by the Federal agencies and tribunals.

"Courts and quasi-courts exist with authority of pry into the business and private affairs of institutions; to examine their books and papers, and to hale them to Washington for examination.

"The theory is that no human being has sense enough to regulate his own conduct; to live his own life; to provide for his own wants; to rear his children, or to bury his dead, but, that all wisdom is concentrated in certain legislative bodies composed of individuals who have sought and temporarily obtained office, and whose average intelligence is frequently less than that of the communities from which they come.

"The adherents of this philosophy regard every obstacle to the enactment into law of their pet theories as a bar to human progress. Accordingly, they treat the Constitution with contumely, and employ every conceivable artifice and circumvention to undermine its precepts.

"The right of local self-government is absorbed into the state, and the power of the states in turn absorbed into the Federal Government—each step lessening the rights of the individual to control himself or to compel public officers to truly represents his sentiments."

GOOD GAINS MADE IN LIVE STOCK MARKET

COMPARATIVE RECEIPTS.

	*Past Week.	Prev. Week.	Year Ago.
Cattle and calves	21,479	26,253	33,440
Hogs	66,357	76,400	61,053
Sheep	20,675	16,121	20,933
Horses and mules	277	458	366
Totals	108,768	119,238	115,792

*Holiday Monday.

Livestock markets scored good price gains at the St. Louis National Stockyards during the week just closed. Hogs finished at the best level since May and some classes of cattle equaled the highest since 1920. Moderate receipts contributed to the improved selling. Monday's holiday reduced the session to five days.

The sharpest advance in cattle was in butcher stock. Best cows and light yearling steers and heifers moved up 50c to 75c in active trading and bologna bulls annexed 50c to quotations. Canner and cutter cows strengthened about 25c. The best fed steers were again in good demand and values scored a further advance of 25c or more. Western grass steers were strong throughout, although plain native grassers weakened slightly. Two cars of choice Hereford heifers fed in Ralls County, Mo., made a new high for the season at $14 per cwt. Several other cars of good-weight bullocks registered in the $13 column and the bulk of all native steers of various weights commanded a relatively high bulk of $10.25 to $12.15. Average native beef steer prices are from $2 to $2.50 higher than this season's trade for the past five years and $4 above the July level in 1921. Due to a high market and unusually good quality, values for Western grass steers this season are unequaled in more than six years. Shipments from Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas during the week aggregated 122 cars, sales of which were largely in a spread of $9 to $10. Yearling steers made a new 1927 high at $12.25. Straight heifers also pushed into new high ground for the season at $11.25. Grass heifers also sold well. Best cows pushed to a bulk of $8.50 to $7.50, and choice animals were quotable up to $9.25. Cutter cows closed at $4.75 to $5.50, and canners at $3.75 to $4.50. Top bologna bulls reached $7, veal calves also made a spectacular rise to $13.75, this figure being obtained Friday. The previous week's closing top was $11.75. Stocker and feeder cattle were quiet throughout the week and almost steady.

Lamb Supply Moderate.

With a moderate supply and good demand, lamb prices at the close of a week of active trading with prices trending stronger, show a gain of 25c to 50c from the 25c. At the close of last week the bulk of lambs sold at $13.75@14 with a few at $14.00 as compared with $14.25 this week and a few down to $14.00. The supply was mostly native stock. There were a few loads of Tennessee and Kentucky lambs of choice quality in mid-week. Few arrivals came from southwest territory. Bulk of lambs sold for the week at $13.75 to $14.25. Medium grades made $11.00 to $13.00. Culls were in moderate supply although the demand was only fair. Most sales on that class were made at $8.50. Skins, $3.50 to $7.00. Aged sheep were in fair supply and held to a steady level under a moderate call. Ewes weighing under 120 pounds, $5.50; 120 to 140 pounds, $5.00; over 140 pounds, $4.50 and less. Choppers and bucks made $3.00 to $3.50; canners $1.00 to $2.50. Wethers and yearling lambs were absent except in odd head lots. Quotations slaughter stock: Good to choice spring lambs, $13.50 to $14.25; medium to good, $11.50 to $13.50; plain to medium, $10.50 to $11.50; cull and common, $8.00 to $10.00. Good to choice yearlings, lambs (dry lot fed), $10.50 to $11.50; medium to good, $9.50 to $10.50; plain to medium, $8.50 to $9.50; culls $7.00 to $8.00; skins, $4.50 to $6.50. Grass-fed kinds discounted. $1.00 to $1.50 under dry fed kinds. Good to choice aged western wethers, $8.00 to $9.00; good fat southern kinds, $7.50 to $8.50; thin to fair kinds, $4.00 to $6.50. Good to choice mutton ewes, $4.50 to $5.50; plain to good $4.00 to $4.50; choppers and bucks, $3.00 to $3.50; canners, $1.00 to $2.50. Fat goats $3.00 to $4.00. Fair to good kids, $4.00 to $7.00; thin to fair kids, $1.50 to $3.00.

Lighter Hogs Do Better.

Although lightweight swine show a considerable improvement over a week ago, heavy and extreme heavy hogs, the higher, are not as well advanced as the lighter weights. Order buying demand was good and when order buyers were in the market trading was active and tending higher. Packers stocked up fairly well when prices were low and were shifting the advancing trade. The latter part of the week they stayed out of the market until way past the usual trading time and when they entered were very bearish. Top for the week ago was $9.45 as to $10.00 at the close of the present period. Bulk of butcher hogs sold a week ago at $9.35 to $9.40 as to $9.90@$10.00 Saturday. Most of the light lights sold for the week at $9.65 to $10.00. Droves weighing 220 lbs. and down sold active and higher throughout the period, weightier kinds however, were in slow call. Low spot on heavy hogs last Saturday was $9.40 as to $8.50 Friday. Pigs and light lights were in good demand throughout the week and values are moderately higher for the week. Best kinds weighing 90 to 130 lbs. made $9.75 to $9.25 last Saturday as to $9.25 to $9.75, a gain of 50c. The reason for the higher prices in light weight pigs is attributed to a very good stocker demand and only a moderate supply. Inferior grades sold down to $7.00. Sows featured a slow inquiry although prices show some advance. Best kinds made up to $7.75 as compared with $7.50 a week ago. Bulk sold for the period under review at $7.40 to $7.65. Stags sold from $7.00 for medium weights to $7.75 for fancy lights.

Horses and Mules.

Horse and mule receipts were small during the week, demand quiet and prices unchanged. Arrivals did not exceed 300 head and included quite a number of horses of very poor quality. Outlet was restricted largely to big mules. Pack mules and mules suitable for Spanish shipment. All classes of horses were nominal, trade evidently awaiting the opening of the range horse season July 15 before resuming normal operations. There continues some export business. Several cars of mules left for Germany during the week and a large Spanish order of 1000 head was completed.

Good to choice draft $135@165; medium to good draft $75@125; good to choice chunks $75@100; medium to good chunks $50@65; choice southern horses $25@50; fair to good southern horses $20@25; smooth-mouthed southerns $15@25; plugs $5@15.

Mules, 1 to 17 hands, $175@250; mine mules, 15 to 16.2 hands, $125@160; cotton mules, mares, fat, good hair, 16 to 16.2 hands, $125@150; cotton mules, mares, fat, good hair, 15 to 15.2 hands, $100@125; cotton mules, mares, fat, good hair, 14.2 to 15 hands, $85@100; cotton mules, mares, rough haired, 15 to 15.2 hands, $65@90; cotton mules, mares, rough haired, 14.2 to 15 hands, $45@65; horse mules $150@20 per head less than above quotations; farm mules, broke, good bone, 15.3 to 16.2 hands, $110@135; medium farm mules, $80@110; farm mules, thin, half broke, 15.2 to 16 hands, $50@75; small common mules, $15@40.

LIVESTOCK ELSEWHERE

CHICAGO, July 9.—(United States Department of Agriculture.)—Hog receipts 5000; generally steady, quality considered; top $9.90; bulk 100 to 200 pounds $9.65@9.90; bulk 220 to 250 pounds $9.10@9.60; butchers 250 to 300 pounds $8.75@9.10; bulk packing sows $7.50@7.90, practically no marked on pigs; shippers took 1000; estimated holdover 4000.

Cattle receipts 200; compared with week ago, best steers, yearlings and fat she stock 25c to 50c higher; top heavy steers $14.40; best medium weight $14.25; long yearlings $14; lighter yearlings $13.15; bulk all weights and ages $10.50@13.75; grass cows mostly $6@7.50; fed kinds $8.50@9.50; grass heifers largely $8.50@9.50; fed kinds $11@11.50; top $12; mixed yearlings $12.50 down; all cutters closing $4.50@5.50; fully 25c higher; bulk 500 lbs. other; vealers $10.50@2 higher; bulk better grades $13@14; top $14.50.

VEGETABLE MARKET

New Potatoes About Steady to Easier.

ST. LOUIS PRODUCE ROW, July 9.—Prices were about steady to easier in the new potato market. There were 20 bulk loads of home-grown cobblers in, but there was little doing otherwise, it being a Saturday market, with dealers making little attempt to move supplies. Home-grown bulk cobblers sold at $2.40 to $2.65 per 100 pounds and home-grown boxed cobblers and ohios sold at $1.40 to $1.60 per 60-pound box loose. Sales, otherwise, per 100 pounds, on track, invoice weights—2 cars Oklahoma cobblers (spotted) at $2.40, 2 cars do (dd) at $2.35—late yesterday. WHEAT MARKET CLOTHED IN BLACK RUST FEAR

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 9.—Increasing uneasiness over black rust in the northwest gave an upward trend today to wheat. Predictions were current that serious crop damage will appear about the middle of July in domestic wheat and during the last of July in Canada, if weather conditions are of a kind to promote rust development.

Closing quotations on wheat was unsettled, ¾c to ¾c net higher, with corn showing ⅝c decline to ⅝c gain, oats

NEW YORK, July 9.—The Evening Post in its copyrighted weekly financial review, says:

"All eyes in the financial district are turned on the secret conference now in process between Sir Montague Norman, Governor of the Bank of England, Dr. Hajalmar Schaecht, president of the German Reisbank; Dr. Charles Rist, deputy governor of the Bank of France; Benjamin Strong, Governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York and various Government officials of high authority at Washington. Precisely what will come out of this first conference in this country of the central bank heads nobody knows but the presumption is strong that at least informal agreement will be reached on several matters of international concern. Uppermost among these perhaps might be mentioned the return of France to a gold basis but it is reasonable to suppose that these leaders will seize the opportunity to exchange views on such topics as the world gold movement, foreign loans and currency stabilization. How much of the conferences reached at these conferences will be made public immediately remains to be seen but leaders here and abroad look upon the meeting as one destined to strengthen the financial ties between leading countries.

Trade Stabilization Problem.

"If the conferees actually work out a plan for the stabilization of the French franc it may be presumed that the gold basis set for the franc will be in the neighborhood of 4 cents. The mighty and effective efforts of the French Government since late 1926 to hold the franc at about this level when, except for interference at home, it might have gone higher, shows that all things considered French leaders seek stabilization at a level very close to the present market. Not the least interesting of the developments in France since the franc was pegged at about 4 cents has been the remarkable stabilization of commodity prices. Naturally enough when the franc was falling sharply commodity prices were rising, and when that currency rose in value prices fell. Changes in the general price level in France have been exceedingly smaller since late last year when France began to stabilize its currency.

Several Influences at Work.

"While foreign developments at the moment exceed in importance those purely domestic no evidence is at hand that our stock market will be very much influenced by what happens. This is not to say that our own trade position is free from foreign influences. It also happens that the primary force behind several changes that lie at the heart of our prosperity are foreign. Several domestic influences have been at work to lower commodity prices in this country over the last two years—among which might be mentioned the excess productive capacity in industry—but the fact remains that a still more powerful influence for price recession here has been the fall of world prices. The gradual return of Europe to hard money after its prolonged period of currency inflation inevitably has checked the price advance abroad and depressed business over there. That was the medicine every European country knew it must some time take to cure the evils that always go with inflation. It is wild theory that the decline in commodity prices overseas has induced a decline here. That fact becomes plain when a segregation is made in the trends revealed by the Bureau of Labor statistics lists in domestic, export and import commodities. No very great change has occurred in the prices of domestic commodities.

Price Level Decline Basis.

"A pronounced decline has been under way for a long time in the value of our export commodities, on the other hand and since late in 1926 a still more pronounced has come in the trend of our import commodities. To a large extent these declines have been induced by conditions abroad and the shrinkage in values of the commodities explains largely the fall in general price level. In the circumstances it would be premature to assume that the recent stabilization in commodity prices here as revealed by the averages, represent a permanent condition. Except for the rise in cotton, corn and wheat, offsetting continued declines elsewhere, there would have been no appearance of an upturn in the price level a month ago.

BRITISH SITUATION AS WRITER SEES IT

Trade Depression Continues Midst Political and Financial Uncertainties.

Special to the New York Evening Post and the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, July 9.—Arthur W. Kiddy, editor of Bankers' Magazine and financial editor of the London Morning Post, in financial review of week, says:

"The conservative Government at the end of this week presented a somewhat tired appearance, and its blunders, in view of the possible election next year, must be included among the disturbing factors. The formation of a strong upper chamber has been vitally needed here for years, but the Government's faulty tactics in recent proposals may easily postpone reform and play into the hands of the Socialists.

"Similarly the technical details of Churchill's finance bill, because it is bristling with officialism and increasing power of bureaucracy, would also play into the Socialists' hands if they were in power. The inquisitorial methods concerning the income tax is a feature of this bill.

"The fact is that the Government, in its desire to catch a few evaders of the income tax law, has taken a course calculated to injure general business.

"Meanwhile, with the trade depression continuing, all these factors will work against the Government if the policy and conditions do not change soon, because the Government's own supporters are becoming divided.

"To political must be added financial uncertainties. There is keen interest in the outcome of the discussion of the Central Bankers in New York, but no amount of discussion or even co-operation between central banks can change economic facts.

Dangers in Remedial Measures.

"Moreover, without undervaluing the importance of such co-operation, there is some danger that remedial measures adopted by old countries handicapped by post war problems, may by obscuring their condition lessen the stimulus to effort that the stern revealing of economic facts might call forth.

"At the moment of cessation of the World War, Europe's obvious task was to reduce the friction of gears between the coal and production, import less and export more. But these essential requirements were ignored, some placing faith in reparations and other in post war prosperity, with the result that neither economic nor political stability was attained.

"Beyond certain points affecting international gold movements and bank rate, it is not considered that the central bank can go far, while the latter is largely dependent on the fiscal measures of the Government and the industrialists of its own country.

"However sound and far seeing the view of the expert banker may be, the political and social forces in the respective countries must ultimately be the dominant factor in settling economic questions.

"As a consequence, London is considering the monetary outlook, has found it necessary to consider chiefly the unfavorable trade position here and the overwhelmingly favorable tendencies in America.

Secrecy Tends to Obscurity.

"It must also not be forgotten that the secrecy which is inevitable in the appointment to active co-operation of central banks tends to the obscurity of the financial situation, and to give to a privileged individual, and the central bank returns have long ceased to be reliable guides to a situation that cannot be described as a satisfactory feature, especially in the present uncertain period.

"In spite of America's reported congestion in new loan flotations, some groups on your side of the Atlantic are still apparently inclined to bid for foreign loans at a low figure. It is asserted also that the recent visit of the Commonwealth of Australia loan was partly due to the fact that America competed for it."

Wall Street News and Comment

—SPECIAL DAILY—

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 9.—The stock market today was a specialty affair, with major speculative activity again on the upside. Pools, encouraged by the prospect of continued ease of money rates, lifted nearly a score issues to new high ground. Owing to the absence of many traders from Wall Street, trading was relatively light, the day's sales aggregating only 706,900 shares.

One of the most interesting business developments of the day was the publication of building statistics by the F. W. Dodge Corporation, showing that building and engineering contracts in June in territory east of the Rocky Mountains set a new high record in excess of $630,000,000, with contemplated New York in excess of $700,000,000.

Contrary to expectations, the unfilled orders of the United States Steel Corporation showed an increase of 2,305 tons in June. Wall Street generally had looked for a decrease of about 150,000 tons, because of the reported slackening in demand last month. U. S. steel common closed fractionally lower at 130¾.

Buoyancy again developed in a number of the high priced industrials. Commercial solvents soared nearly 2 points, Mathieson Alkali jumped nine points to a new peak price at 118⅝, and extreme gains of 4¾ to 6¾ points were recorded by United Drug, Air Reduction, Union Carbide, International Silver and Manhattan Electrical Supply, most of which reached new high ground.

Houston Oil, after touching a new peak price at 174½, dropped down to 167, closing at 168 for a net loss of 4¾ points. Mack Trucks and U. S. Cast Iron Pipe also were conspicuously heavy.

Nash Motors responded to the declaration of an extra dividend by climbing 5¾ points to 68¾. Chandler-Cleveland preferred and General Motors each moved up about a point. Gabriel Snubbers, and Reynolds Spring touched new peak prices at 48¾ and 9, respectively.

Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis, which recorded a 20-point jump yesterday, added 10 more points today, selling at 200 for the first time. Western Pacific common and preferred were heavily bought and sold before the close, each advancing about 3 points. Lehigh Valley and Kansas City Southern were heavy on profit-taking.

After five successive week deficits in reserve, the New York Clearing House today reported excess reserves of $3,004,990. Aggregate reserve totaled $646,470,000. The detailed statement of actual condition of this day showed decreases in total of loans, special time deposits, discounts and investments dropped $141,332,000; reserves in the Federal Reserve Bank of member banks, $6,700,000; net demand deposits, $253,435,000, and time deposits, $7,044,000. Cash in own vaults increased $8,354,000, and circulation $71,000.

Foreign exchange trading was quiet, with the principal rates holding around parity. Demand sterling was quoted around $4.86. Demand sterling was quoted around 3.91⅝ to 3.916 and French francs around 3.92 cents.

UNFILLED STEEL ORDERS SHOW UNEXPECTED GAIN

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 9.—For the first time since December an increase in the unfilled orders was shown in figures for the United States Steel Corporation in its figures for the end of June. The gain, while amounting to only 2,305 tons, was regarded as significant, inasmuch as a decrease of something like 150,000 tons had been generally predicted. The gain probably was due to some large orders, including a substantial tonnage of rails, taken near the end of the month.

Unfilled orders on June 30 aggregated 3,053,246. The small increase compares with a decrease at the close of May of 405,191 tons.

The unexpected upward trend has occasioned some predictions in Wall Street that unfilled orders may be the turning point of the year will end to advance. Brief buying, notably in the Chicago area, is cited as arguments favoring this contention.

Steel shipments in June are estimated at 900,000 tons, against 1,150,000 tons in May, indicating incoming business of about 900,000 tons, against about 950,000 tons in the preceding month. Corporations operations in June averaged around 76 per cent, starting at about 81 and declining to the neighborhood of 74 per cent.

CUT OF 12.4 PER CENT IN COTTON ACREAGE

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 9.—Cotton in cultivation on July 1, totaled 42,683,000 acres or 12.4 per cent less than in cultivation on June 25 last year, the Department of Agriculture announced today in its first estimate of this year's acreage.

Last year's first estimated acreage was 48,730,000 of which 47,087,000 acres were picked, producing 17,910,258 equivalent 500-pound bales.

This year's acreage in cultivation on July 1 by States follows:

Virginia, 73,000; North Carolina, 1,814,000; South Carolina, 2,580,000; Georgia, 3,622,000; Florida, 70,000; Missouri, 307,000; Tennessee, 954,000; Alabama, 3,329,000; Mississippi, 3,390,000; Louisiana, 1,656,000; Texas, 17,035,000; Oklahoma, 4,168000; Arkansas 3,287,000; New Mexico, 106,000; Arizona, 140,000; California, 128,000. All other States 24,000.

The acreage in Lower California, Old Mexico (not including California figures, nor in United States) is 110,000 and the acreage of all other States is made up of Illinois, 3000 acres; Kansas 1000, and Kentucky, 2000.

The acreage in Arizona of Pima Egyptian long staple cotton is estimated at 46,000 acres.

LARGER COTTON ACREAGE CUT THAN EXPECTED, PRICES RISE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 9.—The feature in the cotton market today was the Government report, placing the acreage in cultivation on July 1 at 87.6 per cent of last year's or 42,683,000 acres, compared with 48,730,000 acres under cultivation on the first of June 25 last year. These figures showed a greater curtailment than expected on the average, and were followed by active buying which carried prices for new crop months into new high ground for the season. December sold up to 17.68, or 32 points net higher, and closed at 17.58, the general market closing steady at December advance of 19 to 23 points.

The market was quiet and rather irregular before the report was issued. The opening was steady at an advance of 3 points to a decline of 2 points, prices showing variations of about 3 to 4 points shortly after the opening in response to higher Liverpool cables and reports of further rains or showers in the Eastern belt. The bulge met considerable realizing, however, and before the report was issued prices eased off to 17.10 for January. While the reduction of 12.4 per cent in acreage as indicated by the Government report was within the range of recent private figures, the market had probably been prepared for a decrease of around 11 per cent and the actual figures brought in active covering.

Every buying wave also reported which appeared to be partly for foreign account during the forenoon, some placing faith in the report itself. Offers were active and rather excited, October selling up to 17.48 and January to 17.22 or 25 to 33 points higher than the close of the general list. Offers increased slightly as the market approached the 17.48 level for January, and last prices showed reactions of 7 to 11 points from the best.

The attention of the trade was centered on the acreage figures, but there was some early comment on private reports that recent higher temperatures in the South had been a check on the activities. General prospects for further showers in the Easter nbelt, however, were considered an unfavorable feature in that respect, and later reactions were attributed chiefly to realizing.

'Fashion' and 'Rose Marie' Two Distinct Novelties For the Summer Stages

Mrs. Mowatt's Old Comedy Not Seen Here Since 1851 While Tuneful Opera Gets It's First Out-of-Doors Production.

"ROSE-MARIE," the tuneful composition of Rudolf Friml and Herbert Stothart, will follow "The Red Mill," which has its final performance tonight, as the sixth production of Municipal Opera's ninth season with six members of the Municipal Theater cast having appeared in previous productions of the Arthur Hammerstein opera.

Like "The Song of the Flame," "Rose-Marie" was fairly recent in a New York hit. Its dramatic and musical contents are impressive in their sweep that the Municipal Theater Association is presenting the opera in keeping with its program of giving St. Louisans the best works available.

As a result, the production tomorrow night will mark its first presentation at popular prices anywhere in the world, the admission scale being half what was charged in the legitimate theater. Though Hammerstein plans to send "Rose-Marie" here again next fall he released the rights to the work because he feels that its Municipal Opera presentation will create new audiences for its regular theatrical presentation.

The title role of "Rose-Marie" tomorrow night will be in the hands of Myrtle Schaaf, the prima donna, who sang the same part for nine consecutive months in Chicago. Allan Rogers, appearing as John Jim Kenyon, likewise has appeared in that role before, having been a member of the New York cast; while John Cherry as Hard Boiled Herman, John Dunsmore as Sergeant Malone of the Northwest Mounted Police, and Dorothy Seegar as Lady Jane have all played their parts in previous productions.

To add to the production, the Municipal Theater has especially engaged Mira Nirska for the part of Wanda. To her will be entrusted the colorful fan dance. She performed the same role with the London company of "Rose-Marie."

The score possesses such hits as "Rose Marie," "Indian Love Call," and "Totem Tom Tom," not to mention half dozen other tunes which are rich in melody. The beauty of the music is that the songs flow out of the story and carry forward the action.

TUESDAY evening, July 12, will see the first presentation of "Fashion, or Life in New York," at the Garden Theater. The old play is intended as the novelty of the present season at the Garden Theater. Last season "Don Juan" proved to be the dark horse. To be sure, "Fashion or Life in New York," has been seen in St. Louis before. But probably very few will remember it. Not that it did not attract attention at the time. Quite the contrary. It was one of the most successful productions and its author, Mrs. Mowatt was here with her play. That was in December, 1851, and the play was given at the old Olympic Theater. In her "Autobiography of an Actress," Mrs. Mowatt refers to her St. Louis visit as follows:

"In St. Louis I was strongly urged to accept a re-engagement; but the impossibility of reaching Philadelphia in time, if I extended my stay, compelled me to decline. Before my engagement drew to a close, I received a letter from his honor, J. M. Kenneth, Mayor of the city; requesting, in the name of the citizens of St. Louis that I would remain to receive a complimentary benefit. The flattering terms in which the letter was couched rendered the temptation to accept the invitation no inconsiderable one. But the remembrance of the family assemblage who awaited my coming in Philadelphia, and the Christmas festivities with which my absence would interfere, prevented my altering my original resolution."

OF course in those days there were no twenty-four hour trains, so that 10 days or so before Christmas she had to decline a pleasant and profitable extension of her engagement in St. Louis.

The rise of Mrs. Mowatt to authorship, the stage and fortune, were almost as melodramatic and miraculous as her play, "Fashion." Her husband was a publisher. His business was going badly at about the time when she was advised by friends to write a comedy. The result was "Fashion" which was handed to the "Mr. Simpson, manager of Park Theater" in New York. He liked it and arranged for immediate presentation. The play ran for weeks and weeks and brought fame and fortune.

About that time Mr. Mowatt failed in business. Mrs. Mowatt was urged by her manager to become an actress. Knowing the prejudices of her own world against the stage folk, she at first hesitated. But her association with the players had convinced her that "Mrs. Grundy's talk about artists was groundless." Her husband who had met the players during rehearsals did not oppose his wife's adopting a stage career.

SO just when the family fortune needed bolstering, fame and fortune came. Mrs. Mowatt was successful as an actress not only in her American tour but in her tour to England.

"Fashion" was successful in its day because it was an American play. It is a play of manners. Americans who had made money were turning into snobs. Everything foreign, no matter how absurd it may have been when adopted to the American scene, was praised. The new rich made themselves ridiculous. The men,

Forty Years of Light Opera in St. Louis

By DAVID E. RUSSELL.

David E. Russell, associated with light opera in St. Louis for 25 years, has been the manager for the Municipal Theater Association since its inception in 1919, during which time he has seen the Municipal Opera grow into an internationally known enterprise.

VIRTUALLY every city of size in the United States, I suppose, has asked itself from time to time why it doesn't undertake something like St. Louis' Municipal Opera. But in spite of their queries, only Atlanta and Pittsburg have succeeded, though even their enterprises are in no way comparable to that of St. Louis.

And the reason is not difficult to find. For St. Louis has an inbred affection for light opera—an appreciation born of half a century of the finest repertory operatic production. For 25 years I have been connected with it, and even when I came to St. Louis a substantial operatic tradition had already been created.

This tradition is so much a part of St. Louis that it has survived in spite of the wave of jazz that has wrecked light opera in this country. For the war with its emotional nervousness led us to take up jazz and fall out of the mood for the light, languid melody of Viennese opera.

St. Louis, however, had a firm background of light opera, and with the establishment of Municipal Opera on a civic basis again took it to its heart.

Had it not been, however, for those pioneers who introduced light opera into Uhrig's Cave and those men who offered light opera almost continuously since then, we might not today be enjoying the summer pleasures of the Municipal Theater.

BUT back almost half a century ago Chris Nunz, who operated Uhrig's Cave, sought some way of stimulating the sale of beer. Naturally he thought of the old country's beer garden where the Germans and Austrians enjoyed soft waltzes over their stein.

Fortunately, St. Louis' large German population provided the audiences. Tom McNary convinced Nunz of the possibility, and so Pat Short and Collins brought in the Ford Opera Company to offer the standard operas of the day, such works as "Olivette," "Billee Taylor," "Chimes of Normandy," "The Mascotte" and "Patience."

Under this prosperous management there was also presented for the second time in this country and the first in the West, Gilbert and Sullivan's "The Mikado," for they were not bothered by international copyrights in those days.

Spurred by the success of Uhrig's Cave, they opened a second company at Second and Carondelet, which was known as the "Second and Carondelet Summer Garden." Seemingly, according to the old-timers whose stories I have heard, St. Louis could support only one, for their second venture did not succeed.

Another significant venture was the Kensington Garden at Union and the present Hodiamont tracks. And the old time spectacle, "Paine's Fireworks," for which a lake had been created, had been offered there, and George McManus, the father of the man who now draws "Bringing Up Father" for the Post-Dispatch, seized upon the opportunity. His most outstanding production was of "Pinafore," for which he erected a real boat on the lake, probably the most realistic presentation of the Gilbert and Sullivan work in history.

Later the Kensington Garden was turned into minstrelsy with McIntyre and Heath appearing for seven weeks. But this never succeeded. The venture ran into a month of miserable weather, and could not overcome the handicap.

SNYDER'S GARDEN was another spot where beer and light opera were served together. But St. Louis' next outstanding light opera undertaking was the old Delmar Gardens, located where University City now stands.

Here in the open air, drama and high-class opera were offered in opposition. On one side was a drama with Nat Goodwin, Mrs. Leslie Carter and James O'Neill packing them in. On the other was the light opera theater with Raymond Hitchcock, De Wolf Hopper, Grace Van Studdiford, drawing the crowds. Then, as now, St. Louis was the true summer theater center of the United States.

The drama end of Delmar Gardens presented many interesting things. Nat Goodwin appeared there for the last time in Augustus Thomas' "In Missouri," and James O'Neill, who had been playing "Monte Cristo" for 40 years, appeared for the last time there in this classic.

Many an opera star of today got his start in the light opera offerings of Delmar Gardens operated by Turner Lewis and later by J. J. Jannopoulo. Frank Moulan, one of the best light opera comedians and now stage director of the Roxy Theater in New York, Bernice Mershon, a youngster of 17 then, and others appeared at the Delmar Garden, it being almost impossible to find a performer of 40 or 45 years who has not played there.

Other operatic ventures included several successful seasons by Henry W. Savage in the Exposition Music Hall, where the Public Library now stands, and a season by Joseph Sheehan in the Odeon building. It was here that the late Thomas Conkey got his start in the chorus.

THE most recent undertaking, outside of the Municipal Opera, was that of the Park Opera Company, playing in what is now the Pershing Theater. Few people realize, perhaps, that the Park Opera Company holds a world's record, that of offering 157 consecutive weeks of light opera, and had there been any more standard works to play it might still be running. But those three years exhausted the supply of operas.

Then came in 1917 a season of Gilbert and Sullivan in the Park Theater. But the war interrupted any possibility of further success. And it remained for Municipal Opera to carry on the tradition of St. Louis light opera.

The city had on its hands the empty theater in Forest Park and Mayor Kiel called in the city leaders to find a means of using it. Light opera in the old tradition was suggested, and in 1919 Municipal Opera was established.

Only during the first part of the season was there any difficulty. Then St. Louis began to respond to love of light opera, and every season has witnessed its development to even greater heights than those of Uhrig's Cave, the Delmar Gardens and the Park Opera Company.

For almost 10 years the legitimate theater has not given us true comic opera. Jazz shows, musical comedy, and revues temporarily

Public Is Not Excited Over Talk of Slashes In Movie Pay Envelopes

A Cut in Admission Charges at the Theaters Would Cause More of a Stir Among the Cash Customers.

THE motion picture public, the customers who supply the cash to keep the theaters going, refuse to get excited over the news that is coming out of New York and Hollywood regarding tremendous cuts in salaries. To be sure there have been no cuts so far worth mentioning but even if they come picture audiences fail to see where they will be benefited one way or the other. Now if some of the theater managers announced a cut in admission charges to a figure less painful than the prevailing quotations that would be something else again but one can rest assured that there is nothing of the sort in sight. Only mild interest, too, is being shown in the fact that the Grand Central is going to close at the end of this week. Originally set for last Saturday the closing has been put off for a week and it may be a month before the house reopens with pictures which may—and again may not—run for several weeks at a time. The Grand Central will not be a "run" house unless it has something which will run and pictures which will draw cash to the box office for more than a week are few and far between.

THE threat sent out from Hollywood, that the salaries of the most brilliant movie stars and directors were to be cut, seems to have been but a hollow echo. Already, many of the leading producers have expressed a willingness to debate the matter, to hold it in abeyance. Meanwhile it is reported that payrolls of the combined studios in the Hollywood area, whose heads are members of the Association of Motion Picture Producers, the organization ruled by Will Hays, were cut about $350,000 during the past week.

It is not likely that the star who is a box-office attraction, or the director, whose name has been identified with his, will have to submit to a reduction in salary. The star can always quit and when that happens, another producer, anxious to annex a box-office asset, will snap up the temporarily liberated artist. The same holds true in the case of directors.

After all, there is no reason why an artist, whose very presence in a film play attracts the public to the theater, should not receive a large compensation. Very few stars are over-paid. Their salaries are based upon their drawing capacity and the book-keeping of modern movie land is accurately gauged to determine true worth.

IT is a fact, however, that many movie "executives" are drawing down staggering pay envelopes every Saturday for no reason that is apparent to the naked eye. They contribute little or nothing to the creative side of picture making, yet they have won berths that are lined with gold. They can be replaced without causing even a ripple in the daily routine. A cut in salary in this direction might do little harm to the motion picture industry.

But the star—the magnet, the living contact between the public and the industry—must be preserved and although salaries that read like telephone numbers are paid every week to these stars, the great majority of them earn every cent they get, and they show their worth in visible revenue. A picture that nets the producer a cool profit of one million dollars, for instance, may have netted the star a gross of $50,000 or $100,000, and often it is the very presence of that star in the picture which has contributed most to its success.

THE star who is drawing $5000 a week today may be presumed to be sitting on top of the world. But this is not exactly true. Behind today's success, there stretches, usually, bleak years of struggle. The peak is reached and held for a brief time as we record time in the lives of men and women and then the descent begins. The star's drawing power decreases and it shows in the box-office.

It is then that the producer says: "She's not pulling 'em in any more; let her out!" Out she goes, and a new star rises on the lot, to glimmer a while and finally flicker out. And with every star, the producer's profits come rolling in. For the producers there are many stars; for the stars, there is only one youth and it is short.

They're worth all they get in their heydey and movie economy can be achieved without depriving the star of his or her rightful return, based, always, on the earning power he or she has for the employing producer.

EMIL JANNINGS, according to word from New York, in "The Way of All Flesh," his first American made film, reverses the old myth which has insisted that an old world star might shine brilliantly in his own land, directed by those who knew how to handle him and supported by fellow artists who understand his technique, but that almost certain failure would greet his first bow in an American film. Different methods of direction, different methods of playing and a number of other reasons were offered in explanation. In a sense, certain importations helped bear out the belief. Pola Negri, for instance, has never achieved the heights of artistic rendition in Hollywood that she achieved at the UFA studios in Berlin. She has never duplicated "Passion" or "Carmen." Whether the fault is with Pola or her directors is a matter of debate.

The truth of the matter is, though, that true art, actual art, cannot be stifled. It remained for Jannings to prove this in "The Way of All Flesh," which came to the screen in New York last week.

Mr. Jannings' performance in his first American film is as great, the Eastern critics say, if not greater in spots, than any performance he ever gave in Europe. He achieves this remarkable feat in a vehicle that does not do him justice for the story is but a hackneyed variation of the Enoch Arden yarn. Yet Jannings transforms it into breath-taking art.

Fortunately, the producers saw fit to allow that tale to run to its logical climax, which is tragedy. As far as the story is concerned, th is its one saving grace.

"The Way of All Flesh" may not please you because it isn't exactly pleasant, but it is art as far as Jannings is concerned and marks a vivid performance on his part

LUTHER M. JEE of Shanghai, China, representative for First National Pictures in that country and president of the Shanghai Chapter of the Rotary Club, is in New York talking over plans for the distribution of films in his native land. Mr. Jee, who is a graduate of the University of California and Harvard, in a recent talk, gave an interesting picture of conditions now existing in China. He said:

"China is going through a lot of trouble at the present time, but we believe that China will come out all right and forge ahead as she has done in the past four thousand years of her existence.

"Colleen Moore is the model of our Chinese flappers," he said. "Milton Sills sets the standard for manliness among the Chinese youths and Harry Langdon is amusing the younger generation.

"We have a territory there larger than the whole of the United States, with transportation facilities very limited. We distribute pictures two thousand miles into the interior, taking 40 days from Shanghai, the seaport on the Pacific. We distribute from the borders of Siberia, that is, in Manchuria in the north to the borders of India in the south, so that you can readily realize the territory that we have to cover.

"Just before I left, I was comparing the releases we are making in Shanghai, with the releases made in the British Isles, and I find that our releases in Shanghai, China, are much earlier than the releases in London. We are taking out to China a selected group of pictures because there are certain types of pictures which are not suited for the Chinese audiences."

TWO NOVELTIES FOR THE SUMMER STAGES

in their simple good-heartedness, indulged their women. Titles were considered more worthy than sturdiness. Things Americans are accustomed to today, appeared un-American, outlandish and even indecent.

So this American play appealed to the imaginations and hearts of the people in the early fifties of the last century. They laughed at the follies of their neighbors. Strange to say the play when revived in New York and Chicago last season made as strong an appeal as it ever did.

TO be true to the spirit of the times which the play represents, old songs have been unearthed and will be given as part of the production. There may be perhaps many a heart string pulled when these songs are heard again. Among the songs are "Walking Down Broadway," one of the earliest of geographical songs and perhaps the first song in which slang use of "O K" was made. "Call Me Pet Names, Dearest," is used in "Fashion" as a duet. A hard-boiled song of the day, also used in this play, was "Not for Joe," which will be used in the Garden Theater production. While Volstead may think he has made America dry, "The Little Brown Jug," wettest of songs, will bring back memories of days gone by. "The Gipsy's Warning," which starts with the line, "Do not trust him, gentle lady, though his voice is low and sweet," has proved uproariously funny in this day of flapping and petting and necking and long rides in swift autos. Last, but not least, is "Jim Along Josie" with its lilt and fun.

Thomas Woods Stevens has introduced a novelty in the play in the Goodman Theater production. He presents an interlude in which Edgar Allen Poe, the great American poet and critic of his day, and Anna Cora Mowatt, the great American dramatist and actress of the time, discuss "Fashion." Poe, of course, has his ideas about the play. He expresses these frankly to the authoress and she makes answer in her own manner.

FORTY YEARS OF LIGHT OPERA ON ST. LOUIS STAGES

swept away the old form. But once again the pendulum is swinging—not to the former type of light opera, but to an excellent musical opera, with such works as "Rose Marie," "The Song of the Flame," "Blossom Time" and "The Vagabond King."

St. Louis' response to "The Song of the Flame" should show the producers and composers that the audiences are eager for the finer things—for operas of the type on which the old summer gardens were founded.

What Is Going On — Behind the Screens — Out in Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, July 9.

GLORIA SWANSON drew a long breath of relief today, when the last obstacle in the primrose path of "Sadie Thompson" was removed and the making of this troubled picture finally got under way.

For a long time it looked as though "Rain" would be impossible, that its name was mud so far as the screen was concerned. Changing the name was the first step toward winning the consent of Will Hays. Just what difference this makes isn't quite clear to the innocent bystander. Whether Sadie herself has been changed for the better remains to be seen. But if she is too good she will be good for nothing as a character study, and so Miss Swanson isn't likely to spread the whitewash with too lavish hand. It may be that sufficient concession has been made to pious demands by making the missionary of the play a reformer in the picture. Lionel Barrymore is playing this part, and if he is required to reform Sadie he certainly has a big job on his hands.

The next hemming and hawing will be over "The Shanghai Gesture." When Florence Reed finishes her run in the play at a Los Angeles theater she will be ready to dash right out to Hollywood and repeat her performance before the camera. But before that happens there will probably be many conferences and more arguments.

The Actors' Equity Association is looming up as a big factor in the salary war between motion picture producers and film players. Among these players are many members of the association, and their attitude is generally defiant. Most of them declare they will not submit to a cut in wages. Meetings are being held and plans are being made.

It is possible that Equity members were not taken wholly unawares. At any rate Secretary Frank Gilmore has been here several weeks. His presence has reminded more than one person of the actors' strike in New York eight years ago. Everybody is wondering what may happen in Hollywood.

William Beaudine, now a director at First National, was recalling the time when pictures meant more work than pay. During his first year and at a salary of $150 a week he made 59 pictures. But to make more than one a week in the long ago wasn't so much, for it was then that the gay dogs were wont to say: "A picture a day keeps the Sheriff away."

There's no place like the studio barber shop for companionship, gossip, philosophy, laundry, cigars, candy and last week's New York newspaper. Here the actor can get anything from a haircut and shave to credit. The small-town spirit lives again and bay rum smells as it used to smell and bites as it used to bite. There's the same old kick in the double-jointed chair that jerks you back with the creaking violence of those years when men were men and barbers supermen.

The studio barber is the movie actor's best friend. He will make him up in a jiffy and perform such wonders as would astonish Lon Chaney. Sometimes the barber's fame spreads until his shop is too small to hold him.

For a long time Jack Pierce "fixed up" actors who came to his little shop. He was so clever at it that Universal decided he was just the man to be put in charge of make-up for "The Man Who Laughs." So he's in the movies now, with no less a title, if you please, than master of make-up.

Taking his hand from the plough, Jim Jefferies has forsaken the life of a farmer to give a real punch to "One Round Hogan." In this Warner Brothers' picture the old-time heavyweight champion will be seen with Monte Blue as a father with a wallop. First of all he will take Monte to a training camp and hammer him into shape.

Meanwhile, Jess Willard sits in his real estate office here taking on all comers.

The screen play of Emil Jannings' new starring production, tentatively called "Hitting for Heaven," has been completed. The original was written by Josef von Sternberg with a setting of the impoverished, crowded London slums. In the new vehicle Jannings will have Fay Wray and Olga Baklanova playing opposite him in featured feminine leads.

Oscar Smith, who handles the shoe polish on the bootblack stand in the Paramount studios between jobs as a player of bits, has been given his big chance. He will have a role in "Beau Sabreur," playing a heroic Sengalese soldier named Djikki. Oscar can't pronounce that name, nor can he tell you his screen nationality, but he's sure he can play the role.

When Herbert Brenon takes his "Sorrell & Son" Company to England on July 16, he will have native Englishmen in three prominent roles of the cast. H. B. Warner, who plays Stephen Sorrell, the father, was born in London. Both Norman Trevor, who plays Thomas Roland, and Lionel Belmore, who plays the meek husband of the Angel Inn's mistress, were likewise born in England.

Old Timers at the St. Louis.

A quintet of old-time minstrels, Tommy Hyde, Irving Karo, Dan Marshall, Bill Cawley and Nat Talbot, who were featured for years with "Honey Boy" Evans' Minstrels, have reunited for a vaudeville tour under the title of "The Original Honey Boys" and will be featured at the St. Louis Theater this week.

GUGGENHEIM FUND LOANS TO PROMOTE AIR PASSENGER LINES

Money to Be Advanced Only to Firms Now in Operation in the U. S.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 9.—Harry F. Guggenheim, president of the Daniel Guggenheim fund for the promotion of aeronautics, announced today that the trustees of the fund have authorized equipment loans for the operation of passenger air lines in the United States.

The loans will be made only to existing operating companies for the purchase of modern, multi-engined planes of maximum safety and comfort so that an actual demonstration of performance and safety will be available as an incentive for further development of passenger air lines in the United States.

Planes bought under the equipment loan provision must be designed to fly should one of the motors be disabled. The route or routes over which the new equipment will be flown must be approved for passenger carrying by the aeronautical division of the Department of Commerce.

Multi-engined passenger carrying planes are expensive, the trustees of the Guggenheim fund found, and lack of financial support has held back the development of this phase of aeronautics in the United States.

GUGGENHEIM FUND LOANS TO PROMOTE AIR PASSENGER LINES

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 9.—Harry F. Guggenheim, president of the Daniel Guggenheim fund for the promotion of aeronautics, announced today that the trustees of the fund have authorized equipment loans for the operation of passenger air lines in the United States.

The loans will be made only to existing operating companies for the purchase of modern, multi-engined planes of maximum safety and comfort so that an actual demonstration of performance and safety will be available as an incentive for further development of passenger air lines in the United States.

Planes bought under the equipment loan provision must be designed to fly should one of the motors be disabled. The route or routes over which the new equipment will be flown must be approved for passenger carrying by the aeronautical division of the Department of Commerce.

Multi-engined passenger carrying planes are expensive, the trustees of the Guggenheim fund found, and lack of financial support has held back the development of this phase of aeronautics in the United States.

TRAINING CAMP SETS ATTENDANCE RECORD

More Than 1800 Recruits at Jefferson Barracks Get First Taste of Duty.

More than 1800 young Americans reporting at Jefferson Barracks last Thursday will swing into their first weeks' intensive training as members of the Citizens' Military Training Camp tomorrow.

Following the ordeal of hopping on first one leg and then the other for the approval of army doctors and the changing of civilian attire for khaki Thursday, the youths spent comparatively quiet days Friday and Saturday. The principal procedure was a mass formation on the Barracks parade ground Friday afternoon for the administration of the oath of allegiance. The oath carries no military obligation beyond the training period, however. The historic colors of the Sixth Infantry, with battle streamers beginning with the war of 1812, was also turned over to a C. M. T. C. color guard at the ceremony.

The fact that the students were issued laundered khaki clothing gives them less the appearance of the "rookie" than would ordinarily be expected. The first formation, however, revealed a number of plow-following gaits, that only a month of athletics and "squards right" will remedy.

Record Enrollment.

Every student will be required to enter some branch of competitive athletics and swimming will be compulsory for all nonswimmers. Experts among the students will be given life-saving demonstrations under Red Cross instructors with a view to qualifying them as life guards.

The polite methods employed by instructors would be a revelation to most World War veterans. Instead of the familiar, "Git up there, you," one hears, "Close up, boys keep the alignment, please," and other polite commands. Regular army sergeants quartered with the students smothered their disgust in the folds of their blankets when the youths, excited by their first experience in camp, began stirring about an hour before reveille Friday.

The generally considerate treatment accorded the students is reflected in the enrollment at this year's camp, the largest ever held at Jefferson Barracks. Preparations had been made for 1750 youths. More than 1800 reported, 93 of whom did so without orders. The casuals were accepted along with the regularly assigned candidates and were divided among the seven companies.

Entertainment Features.

The program for the month's activities includes a number of entertainment features, chief among which are dances in an outdoor pavilion every Tuesday and Friday night. Young women sponsored by the Red Cross will be taken to and from camp in special street cars accompanied by chaperones. Outdoor movies will be held three nights a week and as the training progresses there will be intercompany baseball games and a field meet at Washington University stadium July 29. On July 14 the students will be taken on an evening trip down the river on one of the excursion boats and on July 18 and 30 they will be guests at big league ball games at Sportsman's Park. One evening will be spent at Forest Park Highlands and on the evening of July 30 the students will present their own vaudeville show. An orchestra and other talent is already being organized, many of the youths have brought saxophones and other instruments to camp.

Four Additional Camps.

Due partly to the unusual interest in the present camp the War Department has announced that four additional camps will be held in August for boys in the Seventh Corps Area, comprising the states of Missouri, Arkansas, Iowa, Minnesota, Kansas and Nebraska. These camps will be held at Fort Leavenworth, Kan.; Fort Crook, Neb.; Fort Des Moines, Ia., and Fort Snelling, Minn.

As in the present camp, which closes Aug. 5, the training is open to youths between the ages of 17 and 24 years and is without cost to the students, who receive Government transportation to and from camp. The four subsequent encampments will open Aug. 1 and continue for 30 days.

By J. L. Dem

CRETE, Ill., July 9.—The Arden Earl Sande, came out of the East to stalwarts in the $25,000 added Lincol this afternoon.

Chance Play registered his success over Flat Iron, with the peerless Princess Doreen in third place.

Thirteen horses started in the race, making it worth $25,600 net to the winner.

Trio Dominates Race.

The trio that finished in the money was at all times cut in front. Chance Play, racing restrained, had command from almost the start, with Flat Iron and Princess Doreen closest in pursuit. Sometimes the margin of advantage varied, according to Sande's whim, but in the stretch he allowed the Harriman racer full play and he sprinted away sufficiently to allow Sande to look over his shoulder and note Peternell's futile efforts on Flat Iron to cut down the lead.

The start found the entire band in fairly good order, with Chance Play at once sprinting into the lead and securing the position of advantage next the rail. Princess Doreen at this stage was second, with Flat Iron, which had been tardy at the start, finding his racing legs and also coming into a prominent place.

The leading trio then raced necks apart until the lower turn was reached, where Chance Play began drawing out and Princess Doreen giving way to Flat Iron. The latter made a determined bid when straightened in the stretch but it was ineffectual and of short

Chance Play broke well and under skillful handling raced into the lead, and, under restraint for three quarters, moved into further lead when called on and held Flat Iron safe during stretch. Flat Iron began slowly but gained good position at the first turn, responded gamely to urging but was not good enough for the winner. Princess Doreen was well up in early stages, had to do her best near end to outstay the fast coming Rhinock. Latter closed a good gap. Jock tired in the last furlong. Hydromel began poorly and was always far out of it. Percussion went well. Cotologomor closed a good gap. Kentucky Cardinal had no mishaps. Display was gaining at the end.

The $2 mutuels on Chance Play paid $10.08 to win, $5.34 to place and $4.34 to show. Flat Iron paid $5 and $3.86. The show price on Princess Doreen was $5.

By J. L. Dempsey.

CRETE, Ill., July 9.—The Arden Farm's Chance Play, ridden by Earl Sande, came out of the East to conquer a band of Western stalwarts in the $25,900 added Lincoln Handicap at Lincoln Fields this afternoon.

Chance Play registered his success over Flat Iron, with the peerless Princess Doreen in third place.

Thirteen horses started in the race, making it worth $25,600 net to the winner.

Trio Dominates Race.

The trio that finished in the money was at all times out in front. Chance Play, racing restrained, had command from almost the start, with Flat Iron and Princess Doreen closest in pursuit. Sometimes the margin of advantage varied, according to Sande's whim, but in the stretch he allowed the Harriman racer full play and he sprinted away sufficiently to allow Sande to look over his shoulder and note Peternell's futile efforts on Flat Iron to cut down the lead.

The start found the entire band in fairly good order, with Chance Play at once sprinting into the lead and securing the position of advantage next the rail. Princess Doreen at this stage was second, with Flat Iron, which had been tardy at the start, finding his racing legs and also coming into a prominent place.

The leading trio then raced necks apart until the lower turn was reached, where Chance Play began drawing out and Princess Doreen giving way to Flat Iron. The latter made a determined bid when straightened in the stretch but it was ineffectual and of short duration. He, however, had no difficulty outstaying Princess Doreen, which in turn had to be urged hard to retain third place from the fast coming Rhinock.

Sande Gets Cheers.

The latter had been one of the rear guard during the first three quarters but came gallantly through the stretch. Display, the other Easterner, did not cut much figure in the race and the outstanding disappointment in the Western brigade was Hydromel. The winner of this season's American Derby was always in the wake of many of the others but it might have been the result of his getting away poorly.

Sande's return to the judges' stand was a signal for an ovation seldom accorded a jockey and the cheers of the multitude continued to follow him during the entire trip to the jockeys' room after he had weighed in. Sande rode one of his most brilliant races. He was always in command but he kept his mount close to the rail during the entire trip and saved much ground, as well as his mount's energy, for any eventuality that might arise during the last part of the race.

It was a splendidly run race, devoid of any interference, and the fast pace that was maintained for the entire trip was responsible for

New, for Dempsey.

FOR the first time since he flattened Jess Willard at Toledo eight years ago, Jack Dempsey is second choice in the betting. Tom Kearney, who will bet against anything once, and who will be at the ringside Sept. 21, locally is making Sharkey the 3-to-5 favorite in the betting on the coming fight. Dempsey he quotes at 6 to 5 against.

Probably, if Eastern sentiment in favor of Sharkey continues, th St. Louis "Big Store" will have to offer even heavier odds than that. Sentiment at this time is strongly against Dempsey, despite the glowing reports of his condition.

Professional opinion of prize fights appears as futile as the casual guess, when confronted with the task of answering the many questions involved in Dempsey's case.

The best reply to the hope that Dempsey will win his fight Sept. 21 or that he will beat Tunney later, is that since 1873 no heavyweight fighter who lost his title once, ever regained his prestige or his crown.

Spark Is Gone.

IT is not that Dempsey is old or his condition deteriorated. The old machine is probably just as stout as ever. But the spark is not there. The cylinders are intact, but the firing apparatus is deficient. The timer is weak and the spark plug cracked.

In automobiles, these can be replaced. But when the spark is gone out of the human machine it usually has gone for good.

In Dempsey, the spark was youthful ambition and eagerness. Today Dempsey finds it impossible to summon that deep and keen interest in his task or to experience the thrill of ambition.

Nor can mere desire for huge financial gain supply an adequate substitute.

Almost, Not Quite.

JIM CORBETT was closer to a comeback than any heavyweight we can recall. Following his defeat by Fitzsimmons in 1897 Jeffries acquired the title from Fitz and then he fought Jim Corbett.

For 23 rounds Corbett was himself and beat Jeffries to a whisper. Then he was knocked out. To make it sure, one year later Corbett was again flattened by Jeffries.

Corbett's good showing in his first Jeffries bout was due to the fact that he had kept at the fight game and, unlike Dempsey, had not let any year pass, even after his title defeat, without a battle to his credit.

BERLENBACH AWARDED TECHNICAL KNOCKOUT IN COMEBACK BOUT

NEW YORK, July 9.—Paul Berlenbach, former light-heavyweight champion, won a technical knock out over Gus Berger of Brooklyn tonight in the fourth round of their 10-round bout at the Ridgewood Grove Sporting Club.

The fight proceeded at a fast clip for the first three rounds, with Berlenbach, who is essaying a comeback campaign, having the better of things. Berger was in a bad way in the fourth from a series of hard body punches when the referee halted the bout and sent the Brooklyn fighter to his corner.

COEN DEFEATS DREWES; WINS TENNIS TITLE

15-Year-Old Kansas City Boy Beat 3 Experienced Star Players in Central States Tournament.

That astonishing young gentleman, Wilbur F. (Junior) Coen of Kansas City yesterday added to his already imposing list of tennis titles that of Central States Singles Champion by defeating with surprising ease the veteran Ted Drewes of St. Louis, who holds the National Municipal Courts title. Junior, who will be 16 years old next December, won his victory in straight sets, by scores of 6-1, 6-3 and 6-0. Five hundred persons watched the match at the Triple A Club.

Wray Brown and Fred Josties won the doubles title of the tournament, defeating Karl Kamman and Charles Barnes, 9-7, 6-4 and 6-1.

Coen's victory over Drewes crowned a series of achievements over older and more experienced players which stamp him as a tennis marvel. On Thursday, Coen accomplished the downfall of Harris Coggeshall with a brilliant victory after three hard fought sets, winning 6-1, 1-6, 6-3. Friday, the blond haired, fair skinned boy rose to even greater heights to advance to the finals at the expense of Wray Brown, the best player in the district and one of the cleverest exponents of scientific tennis in the middle west. Coen defeated him by scores of 5-7, 6-4, 6-3, 6-1.

Easily Defeats Drewes.

Accordingly, his victory over Drewes was not unexpected but few of the spectators were prepared for Junior's excellent exhibition in winning the title by which he proved himself a veritable master of technique to outplay his opponent. Drewes, tall and angular, who can reach almost half way across the court, was forced to abandon his net game and play in the backcourts in a futile effort to handle the Kansas City boy's accurate sideline placements which Wray Brown, defeated semi-finalist, declared the outstanding feature of Coen's game.

Drewes showed the effects of a strenuous week as he stepped on the courts while Coen covered his ground with more ease and no apparent nervousness. Drewes however, took the first game but lost the next six of the set. He opened the next set the same way and also won the fourth and seventh. In the final, Coen made a clean sweep for a love set with 24 points to 7.

Drewes has played much better tennis than he did in the final and missed shots that he usually makes with little difficulty. Coen, however, looked unbeatable.

The point score:

FIRST SET.

	Pts.	Games
Coen .....244 444 5—31		6
Drewes ....422 021 3—14		1

SECOND SET.

Drewes ..422 544 401—23	3

THIRD SET.

Recapitulation—Coen: Sets 3, games 18, points 85. Drewes: Sets 0, games 4, points 44.

Besides his newly acquired Central State title, Junior Coen is National Boys Champion, both of indoor and outdoor courts, Kansas City District champion and Missouri Valley Boys champion. He holds with Carl Meyer the Kansas City doubles title and won the mixed doubles in Kansas City with Miss Emma Tobin, Kansas State champion. A protege of William T. Tilden II, he shows the results of expert training.

Wray Brown and Fred Josties had little difficulty with Kamman and Barnes in the doubles after the first set in which they were extended to win 9—7, to take the next two in succession 6—4 and 6—1.

WILBUR F. COEN, Kansas City, gained his honors yesterday by defeating the veteran Ted Drewes. Previously he had defeated Wray Brown, former first ten ranking player.

Dempsey Tunes Knockout Punch but Takes Almost As Much as He Delivers

Dave Shade, Middleweight, Stings Former Champion—Will Rest Over Sunday—Promoter Tex Rickard Says Jack Is in Better Shape Than He Was for Tunney Bout.

By the Associated Press.

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, SARATOGA LAKE, N. Y., July 9.—After the regular daily workout, feature of a slow 10-round training drill, Jack Dempsey today hung up his boxing gloves to rest over Sunday, in his preparation for the match with Jack Sharkey, July 21.

A host of fistic celebrities crowded into the private workout today and saw Dempsey try with little success to knock out three of his sparring partners. Of the trio only Jack Hildebrand failed to finish his round after twice hitting the canvas from short left hooks to the chin. The New York boy suffered the same fate yesterday.

Two Others Groggy.

Two other heavyweights, Petro Corri and Italian Jack Herman, who also met with disaster yesterday, managed to weather today's storm, although both were groggy when the bell ended the round.

Jack Hatti, elusive little featherweight from New York, worked fast for three minutes and nimbly sidestepped whenever danger loomed. Jack tried hard to put away Larry Gains, Negro heavy of Toronto, but missed fully a dozen straight rights to the head that would have turned the trick.

Dave Shade, California middleweight, bounced two stinging rights to Dempsey's head and so angered Dempsey he chased Dave around the ring, hammering short hooks to head and body. Jack completed the workout with several rounds of wrestling, ring calisthenics, bag punching and pulley boxing.

Rickard Views Workout.

In Jack's audience was Tex Rickard, New York promoter of Dempsey's comeback melee with Sharkey.

"Dempsey certainly looks better than he did at Atlantic City while training for the losing battle with Gene Tunney last fall," Rickard said.

REINHART AND RHEM BEAT BRAVES, 6-3, 4-2; SCHUBLE PLUGS UP GAP AT SHORT

McQuillan Routed Early in First Game and Then Champions Count Four Runs Against Charley Robertson at Start—Double Plays Feature Second Contest—O'Farrell's Men in New York Today.

By W. J. McGoogan,
Of the Post-Dispatch Sport Staff.

BOSTON, July 9.—Art Reinhart and Flint Rhem pitched the Cardinals to a double victory over the Boston Braves here this afternoon. Reinhart won the first game, 6 to 3, and Rhem the second, 4 to 2.

Heinie Schuble, the new shortstop from Danville, played both games for the champions and made an impressive showing. He had three hits in eight times at bat and handled 10 chances faultlessly and participated in three double plays during the afternoon. His throwing was strong but a trifle wild, probably due to nervousness in his first big league appearance.

Lester Bell, injured yesterday, was out of the lineup today and Toporcer played third and did better at the far corner than he did at shortstop.

Five Hits Off Reinhart.

Reinhart was a splendid pitcher in the first game. He held the Braves to five hits and three of them came in the ninth inning when the Cardinals held a lead of five runs. He walked five batters. In addition, he hit safely three times out of four, one of his swats being a double.

For eight frames Reinhart held the Braves scoreless and yielded but two hits. His chance for a shutout was spoiled in the eighth when Bottomley uncorked a wild throw trying to head off a runner at third. The ball rolled to the stand and the man scored.

In the ninth the Braves bunched three hits, one of them a triple, and scored two runs. Reinhart seemed to be weakening in this round and with two runs in, a man on third and only one out, Herman Bell warmed up in the bullpen. But Toporcer made a fine stop of Hogan's grounder and his throw to Frisch was relayed to Bottomley in time to complete the double play and end the contest.

McQuillan Easy for Champions.

Bancroft was so well pleased with the showing of Kent Greenfield, an ex-Giant, yesterday, that he chose another former New Yorker, Hugh McQuillan, to pitch the opener. But McQuillan was no puzzle to the champions and they pounded him for 10 hits and six runs in the seven innings he toiled. Off Goldsmith, who followed McQuillan, the Cardinals got another hit. During the game everybody on the team with the exception of Toporcer hit safely, Reinhart getting three hits and Schuble two.

Three of these hits were bunched in the third inning, and with two errors by the Braves and two sacrifices, netted the champions four runs. They scored another in the fifth and another in the seventh.

There was some good fielding behind Reinhart, a stop by Schuble being particularly noteworthy. Farrell drove one at him in the third inning which took a nasty hop over his head, but the youngster reached up with his gloved hand, pulled the ball down and with a quick throw to Bottomley caught the runner at first.

Charley Robertson, who was

Cards' Percentage 30 Points Higher Than a Year Ago

RETURN of the Cardinals to winning form suggests a repetition this year of the thrilling 1926 National League pennant race, in which the St. Louis club won out.

Today Bob O'Farrell's men are in third place, four and one-half games behind the first-place Chicago Cubs and four games in back of the second-place Pittsburg Pirates. On this date a year ago, the Cardinals, under Rogers Hornsby, were in third place, three and one-half games in back of Cincinnati, then leading. Pittsburg was second, a game and a half in front of St. Louis.

But this year, the Cards, with 74 games played, are 30 percentage points ahead of their mark on the same date in 1926. Their record a year ago, with 78 games played, was 42 won and 36 lost, percentage .538, against the present mark of 42-32-.568.

GASTON HOLDS ATHLETICS TO FIVE HITS AND BROWNS TRIUMPH, 7-5

Pitcher Poles Homer With Runner on Base; Spencer Adams Stars

Second-Sacker Impresses Fans With His Work in Field and Contributes Three Safeties — Four-Baggers for Rice and Simmons.

By J. Roy Stockton

Milton Gaston held the Philadelphia Athletics to five hits in the second game of the series yesterday afternoon and the Browns gave a convincing demonstration of what they could do with the aid of good pitching.

Howley's men slammed Charley "Lefty" Willis for five hits and six runs and knocked him out with two out in the second inning and scored a 7 to 5 victory.

Manager Howley made a change in his battle front, sending Harry Rice to third again and moving Spencer Adams to second base. Adams played an excellent game at the keystone position and though he was charged with the only Brownie error of the day, he impressed the fans as the best second-sacked in the Brownie camp, with Milllo lacking his full strength.

Macks Off in Front.

The Browns came from behind to win the game, as two extra-base hits gave the Mackmen four of their five runs in the first two innings. Hal singled with one out in the first and after Cobb had flied out, Simmons slammed a long home run into the left field seats. In the second inning, Dykes walked and was forced by Lamar and the latter scored on Boley's triple to right. The infield played in to cut off the threatening run and Adams was just behind the pitcher's box when he tried to grab Willis' sharply bounding grounder. He fumbled and Boley scored.

Adams walked to start the Brownie first, and was forced by Bennett. Sisler singled to left and after Miller flied out Bishop fumbled a grounder from Rice, filling the bases. Williams drew a pass, forcing Bennett over the plate.

Two Brownie Home Runs.

Willis opened the second inning by walking Gerber and Gaston sent a home run into the left field seats. Adams carried on with single to right and was forced by Bennett who inturn was forced by Sisler. Sisler stole second and scored on Bing Miller's single to center, after which Harry Rice parked a home run in the right field seats. That blow sent Willis to the showers and Sammy Gray went in to pitch.

Gaston was a no-hit pitcher for five straight innings after the second. After Boley scored on Adams' error, the righthander turned back 12 batters in succession before walking Simmons in the sixth and he then retired six batters before Hale tripled in the eighth for the fourth Philadelphia hit.

Adams Always in Game.

With Hale on third, Cobb hit a hot grounder to Sisler, who fumbled, but Adams was on the job. He backed up Sisler, grabbed the ball and rifled a throw to Gaston, covering first, in time to retire Tyrus. Hale scored but it was well that Adams made the play, as Simmons followed with a double to right center. That double, though, was the last safety off Gaston, who retired Cochrane on a tap to the box to end the rally and then set down three in a row in the ninth.

Bing Miller doubled in the fourth inning and scored on Williams' single, raising the Brownie total to seven and after that Howley's men were stopped. French batted for Gray in the fifth and Rommel went to the slab and held the Browns to two hits in the last four innings. Schang doubled in the seventh with one out and Adams tripled to start the eighth but Rommel had something in reserve and neither runner scored.

That double by Schang puzzled the fans. The ball hit the top of the pavilion wall, a few feet inside the foul line and bounced to the right, landing in the corner of the grand stand. Schang was trotting around the bases and the 2500 fans were applauding what they thought was a home run when Umpire Hildebrand ran out and stopped Schang and ordered him back to second base. Manager Howley, Assistant Manager Killefer, Coach Austin and the other Browns protested the decision and appealed to the other umpires, but Hildebrand stuck to his decision that it was a double under a ground rule.

After the game Hildebrand explained that the ground rule was made before the game by the two teams, providing that any ball hitting in fair territory and bouncing into foul territory would be a two-base hit. The rule was designed to prevent fluke home runs in case hits bounced over the low grandstand wall.

However, if this rule were followed a ball hitting the roof of the pavilion in fair territory and bouncing into foul territory would be a two-base hit.

Walter Stewart, the young southpaw from Toronto, probably will try his stuff against the Mackmen this afternoon in the third game of the series, with Walberg, also a southpaw, due to pitch for the visitors.

with the Browns at one time, went to the hill against Rhem at the start of the second game and the Cardinals hopped on him immediately for six singles and four runs. That was all they did score, but it was enough, for Rhem turned the Braves back scoreless in all but one inning and held Boston to eight hits. Three double plays, two of them made by Bottomley and Schuble and the other by Frisch, Schuble and Bottomley, helped him greatly.

Rhem's control was good and he walked but one man, although he was in the hole with the count three and two on several of them.

Double Play at Finish.

The game couldn't wind up without a thrill and Burrus singled with one out but Eddie Moore hit into a fast double play. Frisch scooped up his grounder and handed the ball to Schuble, whose fast relay to Bottomley caught Moore at first.

About 10,000 persons saw the twin bill today.

ALEXANDER AND McGRAW TO FACE THE GIANTS TODAY

ALEXANDER is down to face the Giants in the first game of the Sunday double-header at the Polo Gorunds. It is problematical who will pitch the second, but Bob McGraw seems to be the only hurler available.

Lester Bell, who hurt his knee in Friday's game, was out of the lineup in the twin bill winding up the Boston series, Toporcer playing third and Schuble, the new man, getting an opportunity at shortstop.

Schuble's Good Start.

Schuble made an impressive debut at bat for the champions in the third. First up, he lined a single to left and reached third by a fast sprint on Reinhart's single to center. Schuble scored when Bancroft missed Holm's grounder.

The Cardinals added three more runs to their total in this round. Bancroft's error sent Reinhart to third and he scored when Farrell missed Toporcer's roller. Holm stopped at second on this play. Frisch's sacrifice advanced the runners and Bottomley's looping single scored Holm and put Toporcer on third. Southworth's sacrifice fly scored Toporcer. Douthit forced Bottomley.

O'Farrell started the fourth with a double, but stayed on second as Schuble, Reinhart and Holm went out in order.

Schuble made a dandy play on Farrell's grounder. The ball took a nasty hop over his head but the youngster shot his glove up, pulled the ball down and with a fine throw to Bottomley retired the runner. Fournier then drove a liner to right center, but Southworth made a diving catch, turned a somersault and came up with the ball.

Southworth Regains Eye.

Southworth came out of his hitting slump in the fifth and his double to right center scored Toporcer. George had walked to start the inning and stayed on first while Frisch and Bottomley flied out, then stole second. Douthit made the third out on a foul to Moore.

Schuble got his second hit in the sixth on a fly which dropped in center field. Reinhart then lined his second single of the game to center and Schuble stopped at second. Holm lined to Brown and Toporcer rolled to Farrell, who tagged Reinhart.

Second Game Notes.

The Cardinals hopped on Robertson for four runs in the first inning. Holm singled, Toporcer fouled to Burrus, Frisch singled and Holm went to third, to score on Bottomley's single. Southworth scored Frisch with a single. Douthit tapped to Robertson, both runners advancing. Schulte's single scored Southworth and Bottomley and John took second on the throw in. Schuble filed deep to Welsh.

How the Braves Scored.

Two runs for the Braves. Burrus' single after one was out was followed by a walk for Moore. rown tapped to Rhem, both runners advancing, then scoring on Gibson's single.

a Whitney entry.

Handy Mandy, given a confident and good ride, raced for back and wide for first six furlongs, was forced to work her way up on the outside and, finishing fast, overwhelmed the leaders in last furlong. Krick, well up after the first quarter, held on gamely under vigorous riding but was overmatched. Yeddo raced Nedda into defeat in the first mile, took a short lead in stretch but weakened in final drive. Binary Star suffered from repeated blocking in first six furlongs, finished with a rush. Frilette saved much ground in first six furlongs but tired in stretch. Mary Jane had scant chance and almost fell in first quarter. Nedda was done after a mile. Fresco was away poorly.

$2 mutuels paid: Handy Mandy, win $8.60, place $6, show $5.80; Krick, place $18.80, show $10.60; Yeddo, show $7.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

LATONIA, Ky., July 9.—Handy Mandy added greatly to her laurels and made more secure her prominent place among racing thoroughbreds when she raced to victory under 130 pounds in the thirty-first running of the Latonia Oaks at the Latonia track this afternoon.

Handy Mandy, which carried the colors of Hal Price Headly to victory in the Latonia Derby in American track record time just two weeks ago, raced to the second triumph of her career without a full expenditure of effort, defeating E. J. Holland's Krick by a length and a half at the end of the mile and one quarter. Krick led Yeddo by inches while Cole R. Bradley's Binary Star was fourth, four lengths off Yeddo.

Then followed H. P. Whitney's Frilette, Arden Farm's Mary Jane, Nedda, Fresco, H. T. Archibald's Candy Star and Fair Star.

The race had a winning value of $11,020, with $1500 for second, $800 to third and $220 for fourth. Handy Mandy ran the distance in 2:04 2-5, the final quarter being traversed in one-fifth of a second less time than the first two furlongs. The fractional time was :25, :49 1-5, 1:14 3-5 and 1:39 3-5. The winner was second choice to the Whitney pair.

Earl Pool on Winner.

Earl Pool, who rode the filly to victory in the Latonia Derby, also had the mount this afternoon. He accorded her most confident handling and taking her far out of forward contention in the first half mile had her in last place as she started over the fifth furlong. When fully settled in her stride she handled her weight courageously and with a belated whirlwind rush through the stretch completely overwhelmed the leaders of the field, winning with something in reserve.

Closing Day of Meeting.

There was an almost capacity attendance out for the final day of the thirty-one day meeting and the sport had presentation under ideal condition.

The opening race at six furlongs, and in which a dozen of the cheaper grade platers participated, had an interesting running and close finish, Antiquarian defeating Angle Plane a head for the winner's award.

Despite repeated swerving in the stretch, the Island Farm's two-year-old Gold Handle, proved capable of defeating Pellegrino, Wellet and the five other maiden juveniles that opposed him at six furlongs in the second race. The successful youngster was all over the home stretch, but moved along with sufficient speed to remain in advance of his company.

Alleviator, which finished second in his four previous races, finally found a field that he could defeat in the six that opposed him over the mile and a furlong of the third race.

Jockey Lawrence Allen, who returned to the saddle this afternoon after an absence of almost six years, wasted little time handling his first winner as he had Mirafel home in front of the seven others that engaged him at six furlongs in the fourth race. Allen previously had a mount in the second race and closed his afternoon's work after riding Mirafel.

DOLAN IS VICTOR OVER COPIAPO AT EMPIRE CITY

Kentucky II Runs Third in Mount Vernon Handicap —Sun Edwin Wins Whirl Stakes.

By G. F. T. Ryall.
Of the New York World Sports Staff.

NEW YORK, July 9.—Dolan beat off Copiaho and Kentucky II in the Mount Vernon Handicap on the Empire City Track this afternoon, the winner doing the mile and 70 yards in 1:44 4-5. The race was worth $5130.

Only five runners faced the starter. Mote, breaking from the rail position, led as they passed the stand, with Kentucky 11 just off the pace. Mote and Son of John fought it out to the turn off the back stretch where Kentucky made his bid. There was a furious drive for a furlong, where Kentucky was done, and the other two horses went past him. A furlong from home it appeared that Copiaho would triumph, but Dolan had just a bit too much for him.

The fractional times were: :24, :48, 1:14, 1:40 and 1:44 4-5.

Sun Edwin captured the Whirl Stakes, the featured number, which was for two-year-olds at five and one-half furlongs. I Hope So ran second and Sea Rip third. The race was worth $7500 to the winner. The time was 1:07.

WESTERN AMATEUR HANDBALL TOURNEY WILL OPEN SATURDAY

The first Western Amateur Athletic Union handball tournament ever held in St. Louis will open at the Y. M. H. A. courts Saturday, July 16, according to an announcement today of Bob Probst.

The tournament will continue until all matches have been completed, both in the singles and doubles divisions. The event is the result of the activity of local players to stimulate interest in the game and the program further includes competition between teams of local athletic organizations under the direction of the recently formed St. Louis Handball Association.

SIX CREWS TO ROW IN BARGE EVENT TODAY

Six crews are entered in the Junior Barge race to be held this afternoon. The start will be from the foot of St. George Street and the course will extend a mile and a half downstream to the finish at the St. Louis Rowing Club.

The Century, Western, Central, North End, Baden, and St. Louis Rowing Clubs will be represented. Artie Eilers will act as starter and William Beutlege will referee.

*Field.

Stormy Port, away fast and showing most speed, moved into a long lead at once and won with ease and well in hand. Governor Pratt, also away fast, faced pressure in the entire trip and held on gamely. Dr. Rankin began slowly but came steadily in the stretch and finished with a rush. Flair Gold had no mishaps and tired in the stretch. Teco was badly outrun the entire trip. Charmartin was well up in the early stages but bolted at the stretch turn and finished badly lamed. $2 mutuels paid: Stormy Port, win $24.20, place $8.80, show $6.00; Governor Pratt, place $5.78, show $4.04; Dr. Rankin, show $7.10.

THIRD RACE—$1500, claiming, 3-year-olds and upwards, three-quarters of a mile—Start good, won driving, place same. Went to post at 3:14; at post 4 minutes. Winner, b. g., 5, by Hilarious—Paris Queen. Trainer, J. Reed. Time, :22 3-5, :46 3-5, 1:12. Value to winners, $1150, $225, $125.

Bindar Peel	108	9	8	8	8	8	8	8	W. Garner	52.03

Reputation, going in his best form, was forced back slightly in the back stretch racing, but came steadily and fast through the stretch and was up in the final stride. Sir Sweep went into the lead with a rush but was excessively used and began tiring right at the end. Wild Notes raced prominently from the start, but in the stretch from a slow beginning. Pani Roma retired when reaching the stretch. Banter was always outrun.

Two-dollar mutuels paid: Reputation, win $5.76, place $3.28, show $3.26; Sir Sweep, place $3.04, show $2.70; Wild Notes, show $3.66.

FOURTH RACE—$1400 claiming, 3-year-olds and upward, one and a quarter miles—Start good, won easily, place driving. Went to post at 3:40; at post 1 minute. Winner, b. c. 4, by Seaside—War Cross. Trainer, B. John. Time, :24, :49 4-5, 1:14, 1:40 2-5, 2:07. Value to winners, $1100, $200, $100.

Nobody Home	106	6	8	8	8	8	8	8	J. Leyland	32.45

Crossbow was rushed into the lead after going three-quarters and, holding on well thereafter, won with much in reserve. Monarchist showed early speed and held on well in final drive. Finnester was in close quarters while racing on back stretch but responded gamely when urged hard in the stretch. Donna Santa began strong factors. Marengo was done after half mile. Others were never strong factors.

$2 mutuels paid—Crossbow, win $18.08, place $7.86, show $4; Monarchist, place $8.22, show $4.14; Finnister show $2.70.

Bulletin, breaking from another position and racing in his best form, moved into the lead at once and held Sixty safe during the final drive. Sixty showed a fine effort and held on gamely during the stretch. Percentage saved ground and finished well. Oh Suzanna was forced back at the lower turn and could never recover thereafter. Mino was outrun. Prince of Wales never had a chance and was forced back and finally raced wide at the stretch turn.

$2 mutuels paid: Bulletin, win $37.50, place $13.60, show $6.70; Sixty, place $32.60, show $13.40; Percentage, show $8.62.

...Ball Comparatively Easy With Over-...stance in a Heavy Breeze and ...bes Mental Bunker.

...ncountered upon a golf course, the most ...I think, is the wind. In America we do ...mbat more than a fresh breeze, but even ...requires some knowledge of the technique ...

...merous strong breeze arises from its effect ...entirely upon the mind of the player. After mis-hitting a few shots and watching the wind take them yards off the line, one is very apt to become panicky, and thereby spoil any chance of coming through. It should be borne in mind always that the direction of a well hit shot is not at all affected by a moderate breeze until its force is spent and the ball is coming down, and that this little drift can be easily taken care of by a small allowance in lining up the shot. In driving even the small allowance may be ignored unless the wind is very heavy, for the margin of the fairway is sufficiently great.

...ONES.

...On the ...ncoun- ...trokes, ...out of ...in the ...how to ...prime ...in the ...ndwich ...day I ...petition ...I must ...find at ...played ...uld so ...ow that ...ball it ...heav- ...der to ...atever ...which ...ts and ...green ...blast. ...rgorous- ...to putt ...ing the ...amount ...f ball ...kind of ...ecomes ...owance ...und to ...

...d by a

I have found that most players, when driving, do not object over much to a following wind. I can't say that in that respect I am vastly different from the majority. But to smash the ball into the teeth of a breeze is an entirely different matter, and, I think, in that case we are apt to be enticed into error by a feeling that we must hit the ball a paralyzing blow in order to make headway against the wind.

How to Drive Into Wind.

This conception is, I think, entirely erroneous. Greater length into the wind can be obtained by driving the ball in a flight which will bore in and with what we are wont to call overspin. A crashing blow starts the ball off at a terrific pace and the wind pressure against it forces it up and up, and as it rises it perforce loses carrying power, and when it comes to rest is dead. Furthermore, as the ball becomes spent, it is at the mercy of the wind and may be carried far away.

Army Wins Polo Title.

PHILADELPHIA, July 9.—The United States Army team today won the National Junior Polo championship by defeating the Rumson team, 13 goals to 11. It was the third consecutive junior championship for the Army.

TOWER CAMP TIES CENTURYS IN COMMERCIAL

Marvin Coffell, Former Madison Twirler, Hits Homer in Last Inning Which Brings Victory to Kingdom House Over Emmet Juniors, 4 to 3.

The Rock Island team went into undisputed first place in the Manufacturers' League when they defeated the Currans, 13 to 4, while the Triple A nine, previously tied for the lead, was losing to the Peters aggregation, 7 to 6, yesterday afternoon in the Municipal League.

The Railroaders have won nine games and lost only two, while the Triple A has won eight and lost three.

Tower Camp drew to even terms with the Centurys in the Commercial League race by handing a defeat to the league leaders, 16 to 12, due to a punch at bat that was responsible for the removal of Keir, Century twirler, in the third inning. The teams now stand at nine won and two lost.

While these teams were demonstrating a free hitting game in a fight at the top run of the league, the Sunshines and Huttigs, down in the standings, put forth a close exhibition that went to the Sunshines, 4 to 0. Jacoby, pitcher for the winners, allowed but three scattered hits.

Coffell Turns a "Merriwell."

Marvin Coffell, former pitcher for Madison School in the Public School League, who now covers second base for Kingdom House in the Employed Boys' League, won the game for his team when he hit a home run in the last inning against the Emmet Juniors, the game ending at 4 to 3.

In addition to winning the game, Coffell's circuit blow tied the team with the Emmet Juniors for the league leadership.

Thomas, on the hill for McQuays, in the Y. M. C. A. Industrial League, granted only one hit against the Best Clymer outfit, the game going to McQuays, 16 to 0.

The Freight Accountants, in the Missouri Pacific League, maintained their perfect record in the league standings by again winning. They head the league with 10 games won and none lost. Engineers, in second place, are three games behind.

ARCH DUCHESS RANKS WITH BEST 2-YEAR-OLD FILLIES OF YEA

YOUNGSTER TO BE STARTER IN SARATOGA RACE

Earned $7310 for Owner Archibald in Two Starts at Fairmount — Chancellor Looked Good.

By Clement Glaub.

Arch Duchess, black 2-year-old filly, owned by H. Teller Archibald, by her victory in the $5000 added Illinois Stakes, decided at Fairmount Park, June 18, has a right to be classed with the best 2-year-old fillies of the country. The only other filly in the Middle West that can be ranked with the Archibald racer is Leona Stock Farm's Anita Peabody, a frequent winner on the tracks near Chicago.

Arch Duchess was well developed in her training before Trainer George Walker allowed her to face the barrier. The filly was given many trials over the Fairmount course before she was asked to start June 14. The youngser gave a good account of herself by picking up 115 pounds and racing to victory over a band of more experienced 2-year-old racers.

With R. McDermott in the saddle, Arch Duchess went into a long lead at the start and at the half was two lengths in front. She was allowed to settle in her full stride and won going away from Joyous by a length and a half. She traversed the five furlongs over a heavy course in 1:03.

Showed Mettle Again.

After careful preparation she was groomed to start in the Illinois Stakes for 2-year-old fillies exclusively. In this race she met some of the best youngsters in the Middle West. She was pitted against J. H. Mannheimer's Aleader, E. B. McLean's Portia and Soiree and a few other good ones.

Picking up 111 pounds, Arch Duchess, with the apprentice McDermott up, followed closely upon the heels of the early leader, American Thunder. She was allowed to race wide on the turns, but at the half was only a length behind the pacemaker. Coming into the stretch, McDermott made his move and overhauling the flying leader took command and won easily by a length and a half.

Arch Duchess' time for the five and one-half furlongs was 1:06 4-5, only four-fifth of a second slower than the track record.

Arch Duchess earned $7310 for her owner by the victories in her two starts at Fairmount Park.

To Race at Saratoga.

The filly is a daughter of Black Toney-Roya Union by Jonn O'Gaunt and was bred by Coldstream Farm near Lexington, Ky. She was purchased by Archibald at the Saratoga Sales of 1925.

Following the close of the Fairmount meeting, Trainer Walker shipped the crack filly, along with the remainder of the stable, to Saratoga Springs where she will be raced during the fall. Arch Duchess is an eligible for the Futurity and will be pointed for that race.

Among the horses she may meet in this race is Wheatley Stable's crack colt, Dice, winner of four straight races at Belmont Park during the spring.

Cochet Greatest Net Champion Ever Crowned, Tilden Declares

Came From Two Sets Down to Victory Three Times at Wimbledon and Defeated Hunter, "Big Bill" and Borotra.

By William T. Tilden II.

LONDON, July 9.—Henri Cochet of France succeeded Jean Borotra of France as the Wimbledon champion by virtue of as sensational victory in the final round over the defending titleholder. After Borotra held the match point several times, Cochet earned the title by a series of marvellous matches in which three times he came from two sets down to victory.

His victims were Francis T. Hunter, myself and Borotra, in that order. Certainly Cochet proved himself one of the most courageous fighters and brilliant strategists in the game by the marvellous manner in which he rescued seemingly hopeless situations.

The final was a peculiar match. Cochet seemed listless and tired at the start while Borotra, deserting his usual carelessness and acting in the early stages, settled down to an attack from the start. He was in excellent form and for two sets held the upper hand. Cochet never seriously threatened and Borotra tried for the third set, but at 3—4 on his service he served two double faults and with them went the chance for the set which Cochet took at 6—3.

Borotra in Sight of Victory.

Borotra had victory in his hand in his hand in the fourth set, when he launched an offensive that carried him to 4—2 on his own service. But once more Cochet lifted his game and by superlative tactics ran out the four games and the sets were tied at 2 all.

Borotra still had reserve left and by the most vigorous volleying attacks in the match, he reached five games to two with Cochet serving. Here he gained his first match point but netted a low volley and Cochet won game 5—3 Borotra serving. Six or seven times Borotra stood with match point in his hand but each time Cochet saved it with brilliant passing shots or forced an error by severity of his stroke. It was the most courageous hitting at match point I have ever seen.

Finally he gained "advantage," and Borotra lost his nerve and double-faulted weakly. From then to the end it was all Cochet and he fully deserved the most sensational final round match I have ever watched. No greater champion was ever crowned than Cochet. In this tournament he proved himself great in strokes, strategy and courage.

Tilden's Collapse Unexplained.

My match with Cochet was one of the strangest of my whole career. For two sets and half I played the best tennis of my life. Never have I hit so hard nor had better control up to 6—2, 6—4 and 5—1.

It seemed absolutely certain I would win, but Cochet is a clever hard fighter and always dangerous. He had made me run miles and work for every game. Suddenly something snapped in my game. What I will never know. Shots that had been going in went out in deluge. Cochet sensing the chance cleverly made no errors but allowed me to miss and miss.

It was a wonderful and brilliant recovery by a beaten man and an unexplained and probably dumb collapse of a winner. Cochet deserves great credit for his courage and resource.

The Barbless Hook.

SOME four or five years ago a new barbless hook was brought out and in some parts of the country became popular. In and around St. Louis, however, the hook did not seem to catch the eye of the angler. This improved hook is made in England.

The barbless hook is not new, by any means, for the original fish hook had no barb and was in use hundreds of years before it was improved.

Some 50 or 60 years ago some humane and skillful angler brought out a perfectly plain hook without a barb, and advocated its use, but the fishing public was not enthused, for it required a lot of skill to land game fish. The line must be kept taut all the time or the fish will shake out the hook and get away. Later a hook with a protecting snap spring was introduced but no more popular than the others.

The barbless hook is made with a hump, similar to the patent hair pin of a few years ago. This prevents the fish shaking loose, but is very easily removed by the fisherman without injury to the fish.

There is quite a difference of opinion among fishermen as to the merits of this hoo'. Some who have given it a fair trial are loud in its praise, others who have tried it out do not care for it.

Francis Adams, a well-known fly fisherman has returned from a fishing trip on the St. Croix River in Wisconsin, and relates a sad experience. While fishing from a boat accompanied by a friend, the boat was overturned in some unaccountable manner and the friend, Mr. Irving of Kansas City was drowned though Adams nearly lost his own life in his efforts to save his friend.

Increase in Prices.

A letter from Mr. N. R. Huff of East St. Louis, president of Southern Illinois Sportsmen's League, states that the present price of a non-resident hunting license is $25, instead of $10.50 as has been the case for several years past. Huff further states that the League which has always stood for sane legislation, and has fathered several bills, knew nothing about the advance until the bill was rushed through at the last hour of the session. Huff writes as follows:

"This League (S. I. S. L.) knows nothing about the origin of the bill, nor of a contemplated movement on those lines—we have, therefore, no apology to make to our many sportsmen friends of Missouri, for any act on our part, but we do apologize to you one and all for what we claim to be a rotten deal and an unfriendly act of our members of the Legislature who voted into effect this increase of $ just because you are separated from us by a boundary line."

About Current River.

A friend dropped in telling of his first experience on the Current River and the great disappointment to him and his friends. They had no idea of where or how to fish, only having heard that the Current was a splendid fishing stream, so they motored to Van Buren thinking that all they had to do was to drop their baited hooks in the river.

The Current River can only be successfully fished by making a float as it has so many deep holes to be safe for wading.

Jones Is Ready For British Open Start Tomorrow

American Has Become Idol of Scotch—Plays at Glen Eagles Today.

By the Associated Press.

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland, July 9.—Bobby Jones, fighting to retain his British open championship, is the all-absorbing center of interest, in the classic British tournament which starts here in the ancient home of golf on Monday.

There are 206 other competitors but the young Atlantan is the real golfing crusader and, if they held popularity contests in Scotland, Bobby Jones would easily be the victor.

American Flag on Hotel.

The American flag flies over his hotel as if he were a foreign Ambassador, and the other buildings at St. Andrews display it also as a courtesy. His picture is flashed on motion picture screens nightly and gets spontaneous applause. After each practice round he is the center of a struggling mass of Scottish bairns seeking the autograph of the great golfer—and in Scotland there is no one greater than a great master of the ancient game.

Jones put the finishing touches on his practice yesterday with a round of 70 which was the record for this year's practice until George Duncan today turned in a 69. Tomorrow Jones plays at Glen Eagles and early Monday morning plays his first qualifying round on the Old Course where the championship proper will be decided. On Tuesday he plays his second qualifying round on what is known as the New Course.

Jones is not the lone American at St. Andrews. There are a half dozen of his countrymen here, including Jim Barnes, himself British champion only two years ago, and Bill Mehlhorn, Joe Kirkwood and Larry Nabholtz, but they don't attract the attention Jones does on the course.

Nabholtz Drives 300 Yards.

Nabholtz, however, attracted much attention today by sending one of the longest drives ever at the eighteenth hole, over 300 yards and bringing round of applause from the Nabholtz finished off the hole a deadly pitch and a putt birdie three. It was the tenth three that he had in rounds today, but a bad holes kept his aggregate seventies in each round.

MRS. GEORGE KERR MILTENBERGER, formerly Miss Dorothy Zelle Gordon, who was married Wednesday in Bentonville, Ark. —Kandeler.

MISS JANE PIRRUNG, daughter of Mrs. Clifford W. Gaylord, who will be a debutante in the fall. She is spending the summer in Spring Lake, N. J., with her family. —Ashen-Brenner

Gordon-Miltenberger Wedding in Historic Bentonville Church

IN THE historic Presbyterian Church of Bentonville, Ark., dating back to the pioneer days, Miss Dorothy Zelle Gordon, daughter of Mrs. Zelle Porter Gordon of Ferguson, became the bride Wednesday at sunset of George Kerr Miltenberger of the University Club. The church was chosen because of family associations. Mrs. Gordon's brother-in-law, the Rev. A. W. Henderson, pastor, performed the ceremony, and Mrs. Henderson, aunt of the bride, sang the incidental music preceding the service. The auditorium was decorated by friends of the bride, with a mass of summer flowers and greenery, with a background of wild ferns and Queen Anne's lace. Baskets of gladioli, phlox and delphinium were used in profusion about the altar.

There were no attendants. The bride, who was given in marriage by her mother, wore a summery gown of white lace and chiffon, made with short sleeves and round neck, and a white hairbraid garden hat. Her flowers were a shoulder corsage of gardenias, and her jewelry an heirloom brooch of sapphires and seed pearls, worn by her great-great-grandmother at her wedding.

A buffet supper followed at the home of the Rev. and Mrs. Henderson, and Mr. and Mrs. Miltenberger returned to St. Louis, to depart Friday for a motor trip to Chicago. They will go by boat to Buffalo, and later to Boston, to visit Mr. Miltenberger's sister, Mrs. William Lee Ustick, who, with her family, will sail soon to spend a year in Europe.

Mr. and Mrs. Miltenberger will make their home after Aug. 15 at the Forest Park Hotel.

The bride and her mother came to St. Louis two years ago from Terre Haute, Ind., to make their home with Mrs. Gordon's mother, Mrs. Thomas J. Porter. Mr. Miltenberger is a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Miltenberger, and is a great-great-grandson of the late William C. Carr, a pioneer St. Louisan. He is a graduate of Cornell University and is a member of the Bellerive Country Club.

BELVEDERE RESORT, CHARLEVOIX, Mich, July 9.

The colony of St. Louisans at Belvedere, Mich., has grown rapidly during the past week. The last of the winter shutters have come down from the windows and the winding roadways that lead up through terraces are lined with dusty automobiles that have been arriving daily from the South.

Lake Charlevoix laps at the feet of the resort that rises in wooded shelves of land to the west, where forest preserves separate it from the village proper beyond. Several hundred cottages are hidden away among the trees and rustic work of the summer settlement, prominent among them being the fine homes of Mr. and Mrs. R. Vernon Clark, Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Bemis and Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Ferguson, the latter of which has not yet been opened. It is only of comparatively recent date that St. Louisans have been in the majority of the colony. Belvedere started some 50 years ago when a few resort pioneers came up from the south of Michigan to summer at Charlevoix.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick A. Leland, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Garneau and Mr. and Mrs. R. Vernon Clark were the guests of the president of the Wabash Railroad, Mr. J. E. Taussig, on board the new all-steel ferry "Wabash," when it made its maiden trip from Toledo shipyards on June 28. The boat was launched March 19, and on her first voyage stopped at Menominee, Manitowoc and Mackinac Island before arriving at the Belvedere colony. Mr. and Mrs. Clark are in their cottage where they were joined by their daughter, Miss Alma. Their son, Richard, has left the resort to attend a summer term at Culver Military Academy, returning here later in the season. Miss Elizabeth, a daughter, is expected to join her family soon. She has been visiting friends in the East. Mr. and Mrs. Leland are in their cottage, where they were joined by Austin, their son, who has been attending Princeton.

Mr. and Mrs. John Wallace Fristoe and their daughter, Miss Frances, have been in their cottage since June 22.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel S. Pingree and family were the first St. Louisans to open a cottage at Belvedere this summer. They have been enjoying the comforts of their rustic "log cabin" cottage since May 23. Their cottage is one of the oldest at the resort and from its verandah one can look up the full length of Lake Charlevoix.

Mrs. John Francis O'Neil and daughter, Miss Doris, have been occupying their cottage since June 18.

Mr. and Mrs. Waldo A. Layman have been in their cottage since June 30. With them is their daughter, Mrs. Henry Garcia Isaacs.

Mr. and Mrs. August A. Schlafly and Miss Helen arrived at their cottage last Saturday. Next door in a second Schlafly cottage is their daughter, Mrs. William C. Connett, and her children.

Mrs. George F. Meyer and her daughter, Mrs. John McKay, are occupying the Professor D'Ooge cottage. Catherine McKay, daughter of Mrs. John McKay, is abroad this summer. Malissa is spending the summer at the cottage, while George McKay Jr., is attending a boys' camp some eight miles from here.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel P. McChesney recently opened a cottage on the Belvedere terraces. Their son, William Samuel McChesney III, is spending the summer with his family at their cottage.

Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Fox are in their cottage where they were joined by Charles Jr., who has completed his freshman year at Princeton. Charles Fox Jr., and William McChesney will act as spotters

BELVEDERE RESORT, CHARLEVOIX, Mich., July 9.

The colony of St. Louisans at Belvedere, Mich., has grown rapidly during the past week. The last of the winter shutters have come down from the windows and the winding roadways that lead up through terraces are lined with dusty automobiles that have been arriving daily from the South.

Lake Charlevoix laps at the feet of the resort that rises in wooded shelves of land to the west, where forest preserves separate it from the village proper beyond. Mr. and Mrs. John Wallace Fristoe and their daughter, Miss Frances, have been in their cottage since June 22.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel S. Pingree and family were the first St. Louisans to open a cottage at Belvedere this summer. They have been enjoying the comforts of their rustic "log cabin" cottage since May 23. Their cottage is one of the oldest at the resort and from its verandah one can look up the full length of Lake Charlevoix.

Mrs. John Francis O'Neil and daughter, Miss Doris, have been occupying their cottage since June 18.

Mr. and Mrs. Waldo A. Layman have been in their cottage since June 30. With them is their daughter, Mrs. Henry Garcia Isaacs.

Mr. and Mrs. August A. Schlafly and Miss Helen arrived at their cottage last Saturday. Next door in a second Schlafly cottage is their daughter, Mrs. William C. Connett, and her children.

Mrs. George F. Meyer and her daughter, Mrs. John McKay, are occupying the Professor D'Ooge cottage. Catherine McKay, daughter of Mrs. John McKay, is abroad this summer. Malissa is spending the summer at the cottage, while George McKay Jr., is attending a boys' camp some eight miles from here.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel P. McChesney recently opened a cottage on the Belvedere terraces. Their son, William Samuel McChesney III, is spending the summer with his family at their cottage.

Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Fox are in their cottage where they were joined by Charles Jr., who has completed his freshman year at Princeton. Charles Fox Jr., and William McChesney will act as sponsors over a grou pof colony youngsters this summer to whom they will teach swimming, fishing and other out-of-door sports.

T. Kajiwara is at the Hotel Belvedere, arriving on July 3. Mr. Kajiwara is doing some portrait painting for a family at the colony and will make his stay indefinite.

Mr. and Mrs. Peters and children are at the Belvedere Hotel. They arrived the 3rd and will remain there for the summer.

In another week the colony will be filled to capacity. The bathing beaches have been equipped with slides and chutes and hot days, that have been warming the waters of the northern inland lakes for the past week, are finding the white sands of Lake Charlevoix alive with bathers.

FISH CREEK, Wis., July 9.—Group of eighty-five girls arrived here last Wednesday to attend Camp Meenahga for eight weeks of constructive camping under the direction of Mrs. Fanny W. Mabley and Mrs. Alice Orr Clark, both of St. Louis.

St. Louis girls attending this year are Elaine and Vivian Myer, Marian Merrell, Mary Jane Hussey, Jane Moulton, Alice Schaefer, Valle Leonard, Mary Bruce Nichols, Carrol and Betty Mansfield, Elizabeth Leavitt, Betty Wyman, Judith Griffin, Louise Hoyle, Betty Jane Ellis, Helen Meek, Elizabeth Crosby and Ada Crosby, Miss Janet Fish and Emily Boyd of Webster Groves also are here.

Camp counsellors of St. Louis are Miss Laura Layman, Miss Mary Jane Roach, Miss Dean Hancock, Mrs. Harold Beck, Miss Katherine Carr, Miss Alice Clifford Miss Ruth Hafner, Miss Betty Kane, Miss Paige Wright, E. L. Laughlin and Clarke Clifford.

Camp Meenahga is situated on the east shore of Green Bay, within the borders of the Peninsula State Park. Thirty-eight hundred acres of forests and meadows surround the camp. Indian trails offer hikers exercise, while other paths through the woods accommodate horseback riders.

FISH CREEK, Wis., July 9.—Mr. and Mrs. Frank P. Crunden of St. Louis have arrived to spend the summer here. They have as guests their daughter, Mrs. Wallace H. Cole, and her children, of St. Paul. Another daughter, Mrs. Skinner of St. Paul, also has a cottage here for the season.

Mrs. Calvin R. Lightner of St. Louis and her sister, Mrs. Allen V. Cockrell are at their home on Cottage row.

The family of Mrs. Archibald E. Douglass arrived Wednesday to spend the summer here.

The children of Dr. Walter Baumgarten also are spending the summer here. Mrs. Robert J. Terry, also of St. Louis, is in charge of the home until Mrs. Baumgarten returns from the East where she is on a visit.

HIGHLAND PARK, GRAND HAVEN, Mich., July 9.—The terrific heat of the first part of the month was a boon to the Michigan resorts, driving the city folk from the stifling cities to the cooling shores of Lake Michigan. Highland Park has fairly bristled with activity, cars coming in each day loaded with groups of St. Louisans, opening up cottages for the season, taking quarters at the resort hotels or bringing children to camps for the summer.

The season this year opened brilliantly with the biggest motor boat regatta in the history of this section, held July 4 at Spring Lake, a few miles from Highland Park, the home of the country club and many palatial homes. Snappy ships with flying colors and flags of all nations, peopled with women in gay sport clothes, filled the bay. In the evening a display of fireworks entertained thousands lining the banks, filling the small launches and porches of the homes on the lake.

The Spring Lake Golf Club, of which many St. Louis families are prominent members, is the social hub of the resort. The opening dance held last Saturday drew a large crowd. Here the tournaments for both men and women, the card parties and dances given weekly and the excellent cuisine will afford most of the social activities of the summer folk.

"The Barn," one of the most beautiful dancing places in Western Michigan, is receiving summer patrons with a new Japanese garden effect as an interior.

Highland Park will see organized tennis teams this year under the management of Thomas Otley of Chicago. Tournaments are being arranged. Several devotees of the game already are signed up for the meets. They will compete with the Country Club teams and city teams.

Never in the history of the resort has there been so many St. Louis persons registered at hotels; leasing and buying cottages and visiting friends. Some families are repeating their 20 and 30 year sojourns, while many others are coming here for the first time.

The children this year have not been forgotten, for at the "Oval," the big State park, splendid playground equipment has been put in, consisting of swings, teeters, ocean waves and slides. The bathing is excellent and guards and life lines are in readiness.

Among the prominent St. Louis people who motored here this week are Mr. and Mrs. Richard S. Hawes and their family. They are to remain at their cottage, "Slumber Hill," at least a month.

Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Adams are at "Grand Lodge," arriving the first of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. William V. Wilson and their two daughters are established at "The Elizabeth."

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Foristel and their family of five have leased "Jack and Jill."

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel A. Mitchell, who, with the Brenton Van Cleaves, the William Wilsons, the Richard Hawes form a coterie of friends who play a round of bridge and golf together, are at "Michelin." Mr. Van Cleave still is confined in St. Louis, where it is said he is suffering from that childish but painful ailment, "mumps."

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Mead, 6313 Waterman avenue, arrived this week, with their two sons, Edward and Walter. The boys will spend the summer at Camp Cheboygan, while Mr. and Mrs. Meade will occupy their cottage, "Forest Ridge."

Mrs. J. Hugh Powers and three children are at their cottage, "Swinton." Mr. Powers later will spend a few weeks with his family.

Mrs. John F. Weber arrived this week and has opened "Bonnaire" for the season. Mrs. Weber last year built a beautiful cottage adjoining her property and has rented it for the season.

One of the greatest drawing cards for many St. Louis families is Camp Cheboygan on Pottawattomie Lake, a few miles east of this city, famous as an old Indian hunting and camping ground. It is conducted by John Elliot Noon, master in St. Louis Country Day School. More than half the boys are members of this school. Their families bought summer homes or leased cottages and many of the parents have bookings for accommodations at nearby hotels during the summer. The camp this year has hopes of a visit from Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, world-famous flyer, who is a friend of Earl C. Thompson Jr., a son of Earl C. Thompson, one of the St. Louis men who backed Lindbergh. Earl has flown with the Colonel. Lindbergh has promised to stop here when he goes to Detroit this summer.

Another boy well known to St. Louis people is Frederick R. Ellis, nephew of Victor J. Miller, Mayor of St. Louis.

The list of the St. Louisans at camp now is as follows: Gerard Fordyce, 19 Washington Terrace; Jack Gelzer and Phil Gelzer, of the Gatesworth Hotel, whose mother, Jay Gelzer, is a short story writer, at present in Hollywood arranging for the production of some of her work; Harold W. McCarthy, 4515 Maryland avenue; Donald Putney, 5554 Cabanne avenue; a son of the Rev. Dr. R. D. S. Putney, superintendent of St. Luke's Hospital; Oliver Richards, 4612 Maryland avenue; Edward Mead and Walter Mead, 6313 Waterman avenue; Joe McMurray, 5554 Cabanne avenue; C. Spencer Robinson, 4384 McPherson avenue; George F. Stevens Jr.; Robert Taylor; Wallace Van Cleave, Robert Winkelmeyer, 4459 Laclede avenue; John Anderson, 525 Clara avenue; Theodore Armstrong; 6246 Northwood avenue; Joseph R. Barroll, 5535 Cleemns; Robert Becker, 3406 Hawthorne; William Fredericks, 5381 Waterman; Thomas Harvey Jr., 5103 Waterman; Charles Leonard, 5232 Washington boulevard; R. C. Lewis, athletic director of Beaumont High School; Edward Davis of Kirkwood; London Jones and Robert Jones, 248 Rosemont avenue, Webster Groves; Andrew Kauffman, 494 West Lockwood. William Kauffman, Webster Groves; Robert George, Kenneth Jones.

Dr. and J. A. Schaeffer, 6417 Wydown boulevard, motored here with their four children, Alice, Elizabeth, Mary, William and Nathan.

Mr. and Mrs. Milton M. Strauss, well known to the summer colony here and in St. Louis, who have been living in Flint, Mich., the last year, again are established at the cottage they have had for several seasons, "Grand Lodge." They were accompanied by their children, John and Virginia.

The Highland Park Hotel, the largest hotel in the park, has a number of reservations for the coming season. Among them are Mrs. Andrew C. Duncan; her mother, Mrs. Joseph R Barroll, and two children, who will be here July 15 and stay until the end of the season. Mrs. Arch Hager will bring her son, Billy, to spend August. Mrs. E. P. Allison is expected the first of August.

Mrs. Victor Becker, 3406 Hawthorne boulevard, has taken an apartment at the Oval Apartments for the balance of the month.

EVERETT'S RESORT, EAGLE RIVER, Wis., July 9.—Dr. and Mrs. W. J. Burleigh of 53 Aberdeen place, St. Louis, and Mr. and Mrs. F. Brewer of 71 Arundel place, arrived here last Saturday.

Mr. Leonard C. Martin and son, Leonard E., arrived last Friday. Mrs. Martin and son, Landon, arrived here the previous day.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin Engman of 11 Princeton avenue and Mr. Samuel Diack of Ann Arbor, Mich., arrived last Friday to spend the week-end. Dr. Engman is taking a summer course at the University of Wisconsin. His parents, Dr. and Mrs. Engman Sr., will take possession of their cottage this week.

Mr. E. H. Thurston of 1200 Oakley place arrived July 2 to spend a few days with his family. His son, M. E. W. Thurston, with two friends, Mr. C. E. Merkle and Mr. R. M. S. Barrett of St. Louis, arrived July 3 from Fort Snelling, Minn. They plan to spend a few days with Mr. Thurston's parents.

One of the many dances given by the Everett Resort every season was given last Saturday. The Martin Engmans attended, also the E. H. Thurstons.

THREE LAKES, Wis., July 9.—A group of 92 boys and 17 counselors arrived at Camp Minne Wonka, Three Lakes, Wis., June 30, for an eight-week stay. The majority of the boys are from St. Louis and Webster Groves.

The excellent weather of the first week of camp has enabled everyone to get well started in the activities. Johnson Spink, 8-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Taylor Spink of Polo Drive, won a treasure hunt held by the younger boys.

The camp has started a small zoo. Already there is a monkey, an owl, three porcupines, a crow, a family of white mice and a number of other animals.

Jack Losse, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Losse of 4027 Magnolia place; Edgar Carson, son of Dr. and Mrs. E. M. Carson of 7156 Pershing avenue; Charles de Pew, son of Mr. and Mrs C. D. de Pew of 6242 Waterman avenue, have passed their 220-yard swimming test with clothes on.

Among the visitors at camp last week were Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Harms of 7108 Lindell boulevard.

Dr. and Mrs. McKim Marriott, dean of the Washington University School of Medicine, who have a daughter at Minne Wonka Lodge, the camp for girls near by visited the camp Sunday.

Dr. Jasperson is the camp physician. Mrs. Jasperson, who until recently was Miss Betty Wiedner, will be with the camp until its close, Aug. 24.

MRS. BERTRAM L. STERBENZ

Mrs. Sterbenz was before her marriage, July 2, Miss Ethel Maude Specht, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Specht of 3635 Lafayette avenue. —Carna.

News of St. Louisans Sojourning in Europe mother, Mrs. John Boland of St. Louis, are spending several weeks in Paris at the Hotel Belfast.

Frederick E. Epstein of St. Louis, who has been traveling in Italy this summer, was a recent visitor to Milan.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Roosevelt Thomas of St. Louis arrived aboard the Leviathan. Mrs. Thomas was, until recently, Miss Carolyn Matthews.

Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Besch of St. Louis have been spending some time in London.

Mrs. Robert N. Warmack of St. Louis and her daughter, Miss Annie Laurie Warmack, who spent the spring in Paris, left last week for Vichy, France. They plan to sail for the United States the latter part of July.

Canon Killian A. Stimpson of St. Louis will continue the regular Sunday services at the American Episcopal Church of St. James in Florence, Italy, instead of closing during the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Russell of St. Louis and Paris were among those entertaining at the Hotel Ritz in Paris last week. Their guests included Capt. and Mrs. Bosvile Boshell, Mrs. Mary Terry and Mr. and Mrs. William Maclain Freeman of Philadelphia.

Charles L. Sasportas, the St. Louis portrait painter, has arrived in Paris from New York and has taken a studio at 31 Rue Saint-Honore in Versailles this week. Mr. Sasportas will return to New York in the fall.

Mrs. Killian A. Stimpson has returned from St. Louis to join Canon Stimpson, rector of Saint James' Church, and their family in Florence, Italy.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Donald Gibbins of St. Louis registered last week at the Hotel de France et Choiseul in Paris.

Mrs. George K. Hoblitzelle of St. Louis has been stopping at the Hotel Splendide-Royal in Aix-les-Bains, France, for the fashionable summer cure season there.

The Comtesse Festetics de Tolna was hostess at a reception last week at her residence in the Avenue du Bois-de-Boulogn in Paris. Her guests included Mr. and Mrs. Loomis Johnson of St. Louis. David Prentice Johnson, their son, who has been studying at the Milford School at Milford, Conn., during the past year, will join a party of friends which will go this summer to the African jungles. He will spend the early summer with his father in Biarritz, France.

300 Girls to Aid Charity Ball Game

With more than 600 carnival entertainers, hundreds of junior marathon runners, two big league baseball teams, hundreds of girls distributing souvenir score cards, and more than 25,000 spectators, this year's Tuberculosis Day celebration to be held at Sportsman's Park Thursday, July 28, will probably be the largest social and civic event of mid-summer.

The fete is already creating more than ordinary interest this year due to the participation of the World Champion Cardinals in the day's program. The usual carnival which precedes the game will include exhibition drills, athletic stunts, burlesque attractions, girls' races, junior marathon and continuous music by three bands and two drum corps.

Educational souvenir programs for the game will be distributed by more than 300 young girls, who will carry them in knapsacks stamped with the red double-barred cross, the insignia of the anti-tuberculosis movement.

Among the women who have consented to act as chaperons for the young girls on Tuberculosis Day are Mrs. Crawford Duncan, Mrs. Phillip Becker, Mrs. H. P. Folk, Mrs. Vincent M. Carroll, Mrs. William T. Donovan, Mrs. Harry Dillenberg, Mrs. Max A. Goldstein, Mrs. Paul Robyn, Mrs. J. M. Michaels, Mrs. F. H. Britton, Mrs. T. J. Frier, Mrs. John Conrath, Mrs. A. T. Campbell, Mrs. A. B. Harrington, Mrs. Cora Femmer, Mrs. J. J. O'Donnell, Mrs. John Scherrer, Mrs. Robert H. Miller, Mrs. Alvin Bauman, Mrs. J. P. Crowley, Mrs. H. F. Levy, Mrs. A. G. Wichman, Mrs. G. R. Mathieu, Mrs. S. J. Bernheimer, Miss Elizabeth Krum.

ADAPTO SHOES
for STOUT WOMEN and MISSES
How are you enjoying these long, warm, summer days?
Perhaps, if you're wearing the ordinary kind of shoes, you find the slightest exertion tires you very quickly.
Slip your tired feet into a pair of comfortable ADAPTO Shoes—and enjoy yourself the rest of the summer!
ADAPTOS are comfortable because of their special "combination last" which provides you with a very restful high-arch support and snug, narrow-heel fitting.
We picture above one of the many delightful summer-time models. There are hosts of other modish styles from which to choose. And each pair will give you the exclusive ADAPTO foot-freedom and comfort.
If your feet have been troubling you, first visit our *Foot Service Department and you will be given a professional examination and expert advice, free of charge.
*Under direction of Byron Schindler, Podiatrist.

St. Louis Society On the North Shore

MAINE COAST, July 9.

THE festivities of the week-end at Bar Harbor centered about the visit to Mount Desert of the Maine American Legion members for their annual convention. Admiral Charles F. Hughes and other officers from the U. S. S. Seattle, which was at Bar Harbor for the celebration, were entertained at numerous villas. A grand ball was held at the Casino Monday night for the legionnaires, which Admiral Hughes and his staff attended before going on to the dance at the Swimming Club.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Pulitzer of New York arrived at Bar Harbor last week-end on their yacht, Discoverer, and are at Chatwold, the Pulitzer villa, on Schooner Head road. Mr. Pulitzer takes an active part in the racing events of the Mount Desert Yacht Club, which are scheduled to begin shortly.

Mr. and Mrs. George S. Tiffany and three sons, George S. Tiffany Jr., Philip and Nicholas, are at their summer home at Dark Harbor, Islesboro. They will be joined later by Mr. and Mrs. John T. Pratt Jr., and baby daughter. Mrs. Pratt was formerly Miss Mary Christy Tiffany. Her wedding to Mr. Pratt was one of the prominent events of the season at Islesboro two years ago.

WATCH HILL, R. I., July 9.—The social season at the Misquamicut Golf Club began Saturday night with the first dinner dance, which was attended by practically all the members of the cottage colony, as well as many from the hotels.

Among those entertaining at dinner Saturday evening at the Misquamicut Golf Club were Mr. and Mrs. Carl Langenberg of St. Louis, who have taken Cloverly cottage for the summer.

The Rev. Edward S. Travers, Mrs. Travers and family of St. Louis, who were at Irisrock last year, have taken the Bide-a-Wee on the Fort road this season.

Mr. and Mrs. Sears Lehmann of St. Louis are guests at the Ocean House for the early season.

Mr. and Mrs. Allen T. West of St. Louis, prominent members of Misquamicut Golf Club, have arrived at Stoneleigh for the season.

NEWPORT, R. I., July 9.—The holiday week-end was rather quiet at Newport, for, while every villa had its quota of house guests, there were no large affairs to bring the colony together.

Mrs. Harry January of St. Louis was the guest of honor at a luncheon given Monday afternoon by Mrs. Walter Cope of Philadelphia at her summer home, Crowfield, Saunderston, to some 50 members of the League of Women Voters. Mrs. January gave a very interesting talk on her travels in several European countries.

RYE BEACH, N. H., July 9.—Mrs. Henry Clarkson Scott of St. Louis is at her summer residence for the season. Her daughter, Miss Alice, will be married there Aug. 17 to Francis Linton Gross of St. Louis.

The Rye Beach Club opened its season this week under the leadership of Ewing Hill of St. Louis, president of the club.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph D. Bascom of St. Louis arrived Tuesday for a 10-day stay at the Stoneleigh Manor.

Mrs. H. L. Frane and son, H. L. Frane Jr., of St. Louis, who are on an automobile tour, stopped here Monday and had dinner at the Farragut House.

Mrs. John Shapleigh and her daughter, Miss Margaret, have arrived for the season.

NORTH SHORE, Mass., July 9.—For the last week interest at the North Shore has centered on the yacht racing, with Marblehead as the center of events. The annual regatta of the Eastern Yacht Club was held the Fourth. A week of racing has followed, especially for the larger yachts, which have been on runs to Portland, Me., and Provincetown, Cape Cod. Race week always presupposes gay parties, both on the yachts and at the clubhouses, and both young and not so young have flocked to Marblehead from the various Shore resorts.

Among those who are missed from the artist colony at Cape Ann this season are Mr. and Mrs. Tom Barnett of St. Louis, who for several years have occupied one of the studios at Rockport. Mr. and Mrs. Barnett are sailing for a summer in Europe, planning not to return until late in the fall.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene A. Perry Jr., have come from New York to spend the summer with Mrs. Perry's mother, Mrs. Claude A. Kilpatrick, whose summer home, Stonehurst, at Magnolia, is a charming one. Mrs. Kilpatrick as usual will spend most of the summer on the North Shore.

George A. Dobyne of St. Louis whose summer home, Inglelowe, is one of the gems of the West Beach colony, again is heading the golf activities at the Essex County Club at Manchester. Mr. Dobyne usually plays in most of the events over the Essex County course, 18 holes of a sporty layout and classed as one of the finest in Essex County. Later in the season Mr. and Mrs. Dobyne are to have with them their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John Charles Thomas, for a late-season stay on the North Shore.

Mrs. Edward W. White of St. Louis has been on the North Shore for an early season visit with Mrs. James Laurence Hart of Cincinnati, who is at her summer home, Harthaven, in the Puritan road colony at Swampscott. Mrs. Hart has been coming to the North Shore for several seasons, and two years ago purchased the estate where she now makes her summer home.

Former United States Senator and Mrs. Henry L. Lippitt of Providence, R. I., have taken the Harbor View cottage owned by the estate of the late Henry Clay Pierce of St. Louis for the summer season. The Eben Richards of Tuxedo Park, formerly of St. Louis, are to have one of the Pierce cottages in the Paine reserve for the summer season. Later the Clay Arthur Pierces are coming to the North Shore for their usual summer sojourn.

Mrs. Edward Worcester has returned to her St. Louis home, after a delightful stay on the North Shore.

Weddings and Engagements Of the Week

Miss Virginia Lee Brown, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert T. Brown of 6675 Washington boulevard, became the bride of John Henry Boldt of 6300 Enright avenue, Friday evening at 8 o'clock at the Westminster Presbyterian Church. The Rev. Dr. William Crowe officiated and was assisted by the Rev. Dr. Jesse S. Dancey, pastor of the Maple Avenue Methodist Church. The pulpit was banked with palms and lilies and lighted by cathedral tapers.

The bride wore a gown of ivory satin made on straight lines. Her veil of duchess lace fell over a court train of bridal satin lined with silver cloth. Mrs. George F. Wood was matron of honor for her sister and wore a gown of three shades of orchid chiffon. She carried a shower bouquet of Pennet roses. The bridesmaids were Miss Susan and Miss Sarah Barnes, Miss Virginia Wood and Miss Elizabeth Malone. They wore organdie frocks of pastel shades and carried shower bouquets of pink roses. Marion Ione Hopkins and Marietta Wolcot Brown, young cousins of the bride, were flower girls.

Stewart Bowen was best man for Mr. Boldt and George F. Wood, Dr. N. John Eversoll, Clifford Greves and Ray Stock were groomsmen.

The marriage of Miss Mary Louise Webb of 5733 Vernon avenue and E. Roy Alexander, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Alexander of 8119 Monroe street, Vinita terrace, took place Saturday morning at St. Rose's Church, the Rev. J. J. McGlynn officiating. Immediately after the ceermony Mr. Alexander and his bride departed for a motor trip to New York. Mr. Alexander was graduated from St. Louis University in 1918 and is a member of the staff of the Post-Dispatch.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Junghans of 1223 Bellevue, Richmond Heights, have issued invitations for the wedding of their daughter, Lelia Allene, to Frank Hulbert Bigewet. The wedding will take place at 8 p. m., July 23, at the Union Avenue Christian Church.

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Olga Hammann of 2773 Park avenue to Fred Kuhlmann of 2851 Lee avenue. The wedding took place June 29 at St. Henry's Church, California and Rutger streets, at 8 a. m. Miss Leona Woolblock, the bride's cousin, was maid of honor and Miss Jeanette Vogleweid was bridesmaid. Dorothy Droege, niece of the bridegroom, was flower girl. George Dueker was best man for Mr. Kuhlmann and Frank Zisrodt was groomsman.

Mr. and Mrs. Kuhlmann will make their home at 2763 Park avenue.

Mrs. Joseph Berlin of 5592 Pershing avenue has announced the marriage of her daughter, Merenice, to Bernard Lee Wertheimer of Birmingham, Ala. The wedding took place June 29. Mr. and Mrs. Wertheimer are spending their honeymoon in New York and Atlantic City. They will make their home in Birmingham.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Sachar of 5665 Waterman avenue anpounce the engagement of their daughter, Mae, to Allen S. Kramer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Kramer of University City. No date for the wedding has been set.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Waldman of 1228 Aubert avenue, announced the engagement of their daughter, Zelda, to Jack Dansky, Sunday, July 3, at a dinner given at their home. No date for the wedding has been set.

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Fannie May Pierce, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Herbert Pierce of Memphis.

For Smartness!

"For true chic nowadays one's face powder must never have the mask-like appearance of 'something added'," says up-to-the-minute Miss Dorothy McGovern, 49 Jefferson Ave., Jersey City, N. J., "but it must match the complexion in texture and coloring so as to seem a part of it! That's just what Black and White Face Powder does! It's as soft and fine as a baby's cheek and lends this texture to whatever skin it touches. The tints are true flesh tones, and it's easy to find one that blends with your skin to bring out the best in it and in your features."

Smart women everywhere use more than 15 million packages a year of this dainty face powder and the other Black and White Beauty Creations, such as the Cold Cream, Beauty Bleach, Cleansing Cream, etc.

Best results come from using Black and White Skin Soap along with the Black and White Beauty Creations.

Why You Should Buy Now!

1. A saving of from 25% to 33⅓% on the prices; as the manufacture of Furs cost more to the retailer as the season advances.

2. More time and attention can be paid, by the manufacturer, to the little details during the Summer months.

3. Unquestionably the skins of the finer qualities go into the first of the season's New Coats to forcibly set forth the new styles and Furs for the coming season.

An Extraordinary Buying Opportunity

This is an extraordinary buying opportunity. Compare the prices with prices charged during the height of the season and you will realize what tremendous savings are offered. You will be repaid many times over by selecting now.

Would you like to be a guest at a ranch in the Montana-Wyoming Rockies?
—we can arrange this for you.
Remember when you were a youngster and how you wanted to "go out West"—to ride trails with the cowboys or hike the mountain paths of the pioneers? How you used to say, "Some day—"
You can go now—the way is clear, and the life you dreamed about is waiting for you at a hospitable Montana or Wyoming ranch.
All the vivid romance of the Old West—saddles and cow-camps, "two-gallon" hats and the far, mysterious upper trails of the Rockies! Forests and lakes and trout streams! Everything to do—or nothing at all—as you please! Air that makes your blood tingle—winds that whip color into your cheeks—sunshine bronzing you with health!
Meals—good wholesome food and lots of it—you will have the appetite of a savage! Sleep—heavy sleep—after the pleasant fatigue of outdoor exercise!
Idle hours with a book on the porch of a comfortable cabin—if you want complete rest! The Rockies have precious gifts for all—the peace of their silences—the memory of their wondrous beauty—health and strength and happiness! $150 from St. Louis includes every expense for two weeks! Your railroad and pullman fare. Your meals on the train. All expenses at the ranch—lodging, meals, your own horse to ride! All incidentals—except usual small gratuities.
Let us tell you more about such a vacation as you have wanted for years.
My office is very conveniently located and I will give you personal helpful service if you call; or phone—or I will call on you; or mail the coupon if you prefer the information to come to you by mail. 238

what a Playground!
52 golf courses
With what a lavish hand Mother Nature modeled the country round about Pontiac. It hardly seems fair—but it is beautiful, restful, invigorating.
Since the days the first French explorers came upon this land of lakes and wooded hills, its charm has remained — ever fresh for each new discoverer. Changed since pioneer days—cities have grown up—Pontiac in its very heart. Industry has come—country estates blossom on curving slopes, picturesque farms and venturesome winding roads await you — yet Nature's architecture is supreme—unchanging.
Come, discover it for yourself. The good French Fathers had no greater thrill than you may have.

Kirkwood Social Notes.

Mrs. Frank H. Morgan and her son, Richard, have returned from a motor trip to Ottawa, Canada, where they were guests of relatives.

Mrs. Max Good departed Wednesday for her home in New Orleans after spending the last three weeks with her daughter, Mrs. Gerald Bryant, of Woodbine avenue.

Miss Mary Belle Kimball of Cape Girardeau is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Lee W. Buckner of Washington avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Rowe and family entertained 20 of their friends at their summer home near Eureka at a week-end house party over the Fourth of July. Additional guests went out to spend the afternoon and evening. Mr. Rowe, besides the usual amusements, arranged for the children a polo playground with the necessary ponies. An artificial lake supplied the swimming facilities.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Chandler have gone to Minnesota, where they will spend several weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Willard Cunningham were the hosts at an al fresco supper Monday evening.

Mrs. Charles Fritschle entertained Tuesday afternoon with a bridge luncheon and shower for Mrs. Robert Schwartz, who before her marriage a few weeks ago was Miss Margaret Kinsella.

Mrs. R. J. Compton was the hostess at a tea Tuesday afternoon in honor of her daughter, Mrs. David Carter Cummings, of Gilliam, La. Miss Mildred Compton assisted in receiving.

Mrs. Neil Larimer and her daughter, Betty, will go to Charlton, Ia., late in July, accompanying Mrs. Larimer's mother, Mrs. E. L. Penick. Mrs. Penick has been spending the last three months with her daughter.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kelton will be the hosts at the regular meeting of the Friday Evening Bridge Dinner Club.

Mr. Frank Morgan with his daughters, Miss Jean and Ann Morgan, spent last week-end at Hahatonka Park with Mr. and Mrs. Theo Shepard and their son, Bruce Shepard.

Mrs. David Carter Cummings and her small son departed Wednesday afternoon for their home at Gilliam, La., after spending the last six weeks with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Compton.

Mrs. W. E. Poole and children left this week for California, where they will spend several weeks.

Mrs. William Hedges of Berry road and Lockwood avenue entertained Thursday afternoon with a miscellaneous shower and luncheon. Mrs. Robert Schwartz was guest of honor.

Mrs. C. L. Brock and daughter, Elizabeth, of Kirksville, Mo., were week-end guests of friends while on the way to California for the summer months.

Miss Amy Chandler has returned from a short visit at Columbia, Mo., and will be with Mr. and Mrs. Henry Worrall and family a short time.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Rowe and family expect to leave early in August for their summer cottage at Lake Nancy, Wis., where they will remain until Sept. 1.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank P. Tillman of Mermod place left last week for Black River, where they will camp three weeks.

Mrs. O. R. Johnson of Kansas City and daughter, Miss Eleanor Johnson, have returned home after a 10-day visit with the Rev. J. C. Berger and family.

Mr. Harry Donovan, Mr. Joseph Kelton and Mr. Harry Dyer spent the last week at Eureka, Mo., fishing.

Miss Virginia Dickerson of Fort Worth, Tex., has returned home after a three-weeks visit in Kirkwood with Miss Lucille Hammill.

Miss Louise Stringer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Stringer of 500 North Dickson road, has returned from a visit with relatives at Prescott, Ark.

The summer playgrounds arranged for the children by public spirited citizens of Kirkwood were opened Monday. A supervisor of play has been secured. The smaller girls and boys are privileged at the John Pitman School in the mornings and at the Henry Hough School afternoons.

Dr. and Mrs. Thomas K. Bowles of Tacoma, Wash., are the guests of Mrs. Bowles' parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Ashley.

Among the boys leaving July 2 for Camp Arapahoe, Granby, Colo., were Jack Gale of Webster Groves and James Castle of Kirkwood.

Mrs. Frank E. Andrews, with her two sons, Frank Jr., and Eugene, also her sister, Mrs. Pearl Benedict Jones of New York, who with her son David, has been spending the past month in Kirkwood, will leave early in the coming week for a motor trip to Lansing, Mich.

Mrs. J. M. Hutchinson of Rose Manor entertained Thursday, June 30, with a garden party for her son, John W. Hutchinson, who recently returned from Alton, Ill., where he graduated from Western Military Academy.

Maj. and Mrs. Martin Shallenberger, with their two children were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Alphonse de Figueredo, while enroute from Fort Leavenworth, Kan., to Washington, D. C., where Maj. Shallenberger will be stationed.

Mr. and Mrs. R. V. Nicholas and children have returned from a motor trip to St. Joseph, Mo.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur N. DuBois of 230 E. Washington avenue have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Jessamine DuBois, to Mr. Sardius Van Dam. There has been no date set for the wedding.

Mrs. John Colene of Sylvan Grove, Kan., is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. C. W. Nystrom.

Mr. and Mrs. George L. Weber of Portland terrace left this week on a motor trip through Michigan. They expect to be away about six weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Stuart and family departed Friday, July 1, for Lake Geneva, Wis., where they will spend a few weeks.

Miss Phyllis Tatman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Tatman, departed this week for New York, from which place she will sail with a party of friends for a trip through Europe.

How to Unveil That Girlish Skin Underneath

Any woman may easily rejuvenate her complexion at home by a simple and harmless process of gentle absorption. It has been found that ordinary mercolized wax, applied like cold cream at night, causes the thin veil of lifeless, sallow or blemished cuticle to flake off in almost invisible particles, revealing the fresh, vigorous and beautiful younk skin underneath. Naturally this method also removes such surface blemishes as freckles, pimples, liver spots, moth patches, etc. At all drug stores and beauty counters. Mercolized wax brings out the hidden beauty.

Catholic School to Hold Carnival.

The School and Home of the Immaculate Heart, conducted by the Sisters of the Good Shepherd, will have a carnival on the school grounds, 7626 Natural Bridge Road, Normandy, next Sunday.

Funds are sought for construction of an additional building, to house the increasing number of elderly women for whom the institution provides a home. Beginning at 2:30 p. m., with a series of euchre and lotto games, the program will continue until 8. A chicken dinner will be served from 5 to 8. The Kirkwood-Ferguson car stops at the school's entrance.

Chris Rohm of North Eighth street.

Mrs. Eugene Thompson of St. Louis avenue has departed for Los Angeles, Cal., to be the guest of Mrs. Harry Crider.

Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Seyler of Detroit, Mich., are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Nelson of North Twenty-second street.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Murphy of Toledo, O., have returned home after visiting Mrs. Thomas J. Corrigan of St. Louis avenue and Mrs. E. J. Delmore of North Eighteenth street. Miss Helen Corrigan returned to Toledo with them for a visit.

Mrs. William Richardson of Kansas City, Kan., was the guest this past week of Mrs. Richard Friede of North Eighth street. She was returning from Decatur, Ill., where she attended the reunion of the Wabash Veterans' Association. Mrs Friede was also in Decatur for the meeting on her way home from a weeks' visit in Chicago.

M inister to Visit in Nova Scotia.

The Rev. Dr. John W. MacIvor, pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church, Taylor avenue and Westminster place, will leave early next week for a visit with his father, at Cape Breton, Nova Scotia. He has planned a season of fishing at this point, after which he will return to a summer resort in Pennsylvania, joining Mrs. MacIvor and their daughter. Dr. MacIvor will preach his final sermons this morning and tonight at his church. During his absence the Rev. N. L. Euwer will be in charge, the full roster of services being maintained.

SHAW TO HAVE NEW RESIDENCE

Will Move into Flat Formerly Occupied by Countess.

LONDON, July 9.—Adelphi Terrace is disconsolate. George Bernard Shaw, who occupied No. 10 for the last 20 years, is to take a flat in Whitehall Court, which was formerly in the possession of the Countess Russell, author of "Elizabeth and her German Garden."

Although Shaw will leave Sir James M. Barrie on Adelphi Terrace, he will have literary celebrities as near neighbors in his new flat. Among them are St. John Irvine, H. G. Wells, Sir Gilbert Parker and Sir Owen Seaman, editor of "Punch."

1000 to Attend Ferguson Camp.

The Fresh Air Camp at Ferguson, under the supervision of the Salvation Army, will afford recreation for more than 1000 children and their mothers this year. The camp is conducted for mothers and their families, who are permitted to occupy cottages for 10 days. The camp was opened June 20 and will close Sept. 2, a new group of families entering at the end of each 10-day period.

To Lay Masonic Cornerstone.

The cornerstone for the new Eastern Star Chapel will be laid next Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock, on the Masonic Home grounds, 5351 Delmar boulevard. Ceremonies will be conducted by Grand Master John Pickard and Grand Matron Adele Wissmath, assisted by Grand Officers, Matrons, Patrons, the O. E. S. Chorus and children of the Masonic Home.

This law follows two others enacted since the great advance in living costs, especially in the cost of labor and building materials, ensued from the world war. The first was an emergency measure that deprived owners of apartment houses of the right to fix rentals arbitrarily, limiting their legal charge to a reasonable return on their investments, which, according to the interpretation put upon it by the courts, runs about 6 per cent. The other granted tax exemption to small homes. This law has been renewed by succeeding sessions of the State Legislature, and has until next June to run, unless extended further by the next Legislature.

The new local ordinance which has just become effective grants the exemption only to owners of new houses that take the places of old, unsanitary buildings torn down to make room for them, not to buildings erected on vacant property or succeeding to buildings which had been used for business. It applies only to the building and not the ground it occupies, nor does it affect State taxes on either building or ground. The owner receiving the tax exemption is not permitted to fix his rents to bring in a better return than 6 per cent a year. It is estimated that under the plan rents will average about $12.50 a room.

The passage of the ordinance was strongly opposed by the real estate organizations of the various boroughs, and less strongly by Heckscher, who is the vital force on the National Housing Committee of Congested Areas, of which Secretary Herbert Hoover is honorary chairman.

Edward F. Doyle appeared for the Real Estate Board at the public hearing before the Mayor just before he signed the bill. He set forth that the realtors' opposition to the bill was based on its economic faults as well as its unfairness in granting a concession to the large corporate interests that was denied to the owners of existing tenement property which was fit for habitation. The effect of the bill he declared automatically would stop all apartment house construction except that subject to the tax exemption.

Doyle said there are now 150,000 vacant apartments and 50,000 vacant houses in Greater New York, on which the tax assessments for 1928 would have to be lowered, and that while there would be land value increases in all the boroughs except in Manhattan, the gain in tax collections from these would be more than offset by shrinkages in Manhattan and by the diversion of property to public uses. He estimated the 1928 tax collections would be only $27,000,000 in excess of those for 1927, which he deemed inadequate to the constantly increasing expense of governing the city.

Tax Exemption for New Homes Takes Effect as Relief Move In New York Housing Problem

NEW YORK, July 10.

NEW YORK has launched an experiment toward the solution of the housing problem that will be watched with interest by other communities, especially in this country where governmental subsidies to encourage building are rather new. In Europe, according to August Heckscher, it is regarded as axiomatic that it is a prime duty of the State to see that its citizens are housed properly, at the expense of the State to such an extent as may be necessary.

New York's experiment is the inauguration of a local ordinance, passed by the Board of Estimate and the Board of Aldermen, acting as the Municipal Assembly, by which tenement houses to replace those condemned will be exempt from local taxation for 20 years.

The new ordinance, while prepared and introduced by Mayor Walker, is pretty much as was suggested by the State Housing Commission, a creation of Gov. Smith, appointed in accordance with a statute enacted by the State Legislature which empowers cities to grant such tax exemptions. This law follows two others enacted since the great advance in living costs, especially in the cost of labor and building materials, ensued from the world war. The first was an emergency measure that deprived owners of apartment houses of the right to fix rentals arbitrarily, limiting their legal charge to a reasonable return on their investments, which, according to the interpretation put upon it by the courts, runs about 6 per cent. The other granted tax exemption to small homes. This law has been renewed by succeeding sessions of the State Legislature, and has until next June to run, unless extended further by the next Legislature.

Must Replace Old Houses.

The new local ordinance which has just become effective grants the exemption only to owners of new houses that take the places of old, unsanitary buildings torn down to make room for them, not to buildings erected on vacant property or succeeding to buildings which had been used for business. It applies only to the building and not the ground it occupies, nor does it affect State taxes on either building or ground. The owner receiving the tax exemption is not permitted to fix his rents to bring in a better return than 6 per cent a year. It is estimated that under the plan rents will average about $12.50 a room.

The passage of the ordinance was strongly opposed by the real estate organizations of the various boroughs, and less strongly by Heckscher, who is the vital force on the National Housing Committee of Congested Areas, of which Secretary Herbert Hoover is honorary chairman.

Edward F. Doyle appeared for the Real Estate Board at the public hearing before the Mayor just before he signed the bill. He set forth that the realtors' opposition to the bill was based on its economic faults as well as its unfairness in granting a concession to the large corporate interests that was denied to the owners of existing tenement property which was fit for habitation. The effect of the bill he declared automatically would stop all apartment house construction except that subject to the tax exemption.

Doyle said there are now 150,000 vacant apartments and 50,000 vacant houses in Greater New York, on which the tax assessments for 1928 would have to be lowered, and that while there would be land value increases in all the boroughs except in Manhattan, the gain in tax collections from these would be more than offset by shrinkages in Manhattan and by the diversion of property to public uses. He estimated the 1928 tax collections would be only $27,000,000 in excess of those for 1927, which he deemed inadequate to the constantly increasing expense of governing the city.

Heckscher Opposes Plan.

Heckscher's opposition was based on his conviction that it would not in the slightest degree help those who need help most. The people who with a family income of about $100 a month cannot possibly meet such a rent charge as $50 for a four-room apartment. The plan urged by him and by the National Housing Committee is to have the State take a hand more directly in the building of apartments.

The committee, which maintains offices here at 50 East Forty-second street, is agitating for the city to adopt a policy which is called "excess condemnation." By this is meant that where property is condemned for the purpose of street opening or street widening, the condemnation include a more than really is required for the immediate purpose in order to reclaim property on which could be erected high, modern apartment buildings, with elevators.

Heckscher and his associates point out that most of the vacant apartments in New York are on the upper floors of five and six-story walk-up buildings, and they contend that by building higher buildings, with elevator service, the upper apartments will be the most sought for. It is proposed that this property be built on either by the city itself as a municipal enterprise or sold or leased at a price that would permit the apartments to be built so they could rent for about $5 per room.

A chapter in the State Constitution authorizes the Legislature to empower a city to make these excess condemnations, and to use the extra property so acquired for public purposes, or to sell or lease it. The charter of the City of New York reserves a similar right to the city.

Study Typical Blocks.

Prior to the passage of the ordinance, the results of surveys of congested areas were reported by Darwin R. James, Chairman of the State Housing Board, and Dr. Louis I. Harris, Commissioner of Public Health. James made a study of eight typical blocks in Manhattan and Brooklyn, counting the population of four-room apartments. The result of this study was presented in the following table:

Three hundred and thirty-eight apartments occupied by four persons; 254 apartments occupied by five persons; 135 apartments occupied by six persons; 69 apartments occupied by seven persons; 30 apartments occupied by eight persons; 10 apartments occupied by nine persons; six apartments occupied by 10 persons; one apartment occupied by 11 persons; one apartment occupied by 13 persons; one apartment occupied by 15 persons.

Dr. Harris had his nurses find out the occupancy of bedrooms. They found that out of 2342 bedrooms occupied by adults, the following were used by children also:

Sixty-seven bedrooms occupied by one; 1059 bedrooms occupied by two; 458 bedrooms occupied by three; 157 bedrooms occupied by 4; 17 bedrooms occupied by five; five bedrooms occupied by six; one bedroom occupied by seven; one bedroom occupied by eight.

One of the numerous neighborhood organizations formed for the purpose of tackling the housing problem is the Bowling Green Neighborhood Association. It has just completed a survey of the section bounded by Cedar street, Broadway, the Battery and the Hudson River. It is occupied

COOLIDGE CAN RENOMINATE HIMSELF WITH FEDERAL PATRONAGE MACHINE

Under Present System of Selecting Delegates to Republican National Conventions a President Can Succeed Himself on Ticket Even Though a Majority of His Party Is Against Him—Disproportionate Representation in South Makes This Possible.

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON,
(A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.)

WASHINGTON, July 10.

DOES Coolidge want another term? His recent actions leave little room to doubt it.

Can he get the Republican nomination again? Theodore Roosevelt said: "Under the system of selecting delegates to Republican national conventions, a President of the United States, if he knows how to use the machinery at his disposal, can renominate himself, even though a majority of his party is against him."

What is this machinery? How does it operate? It is the machinery of Federal patronage. It rests upon the enormous number of jobs which are at the President's disposal. He uses it by giving jobs and by taking them away.

The Republican nominee is chosen by a majority of the votes cast by the delegates to the national convention. A vast majority of those delegates are chosen by local conventions, and most of them are instructed by the conventions how to vote. Through his patronage, the President is able to control a very large percentage of the local conventions, thus securing the selection of delegates who are favorable to him or to the man of his choice.

Roosevelt and Taft Both Used Method Successfully

Thus, President Roosevelt in 1908 was able to force the nomination of Taft, when a majority of the party appeared to favor Hughes. Thus Taft, four years later, was able to renominate himself, when at least two-thirds of the party wanted Roosevelt. Thus the first Coolidge boom was started in 1923, soon after the obscure Vice President had succeeded to the office upon the death of Harding.

Excepting the Fascist organization in Italy and the Communist organization in Russia, this probably is the most powerful and effective political machine in the world for the purpose of perpetuating the regime of the man who controls it. It almost invariably enables the President who has served one term to renominate himself for a second, regardless of his success or popularity. But for the tradition against a third term, established by George Washington, there is no telling to what extent it might have been used to perpetuate Presidents in office.

How the Presidential Patronage Machine Works

It is in the South, where the Republican party is composed largely of officeholders, that the operation of the patronage machine is most clearly seen. There the manipulation of patronage to round up delegates for national conventions has been most open and flagrant, and has furnished many scandals. From that source Taft drew the shock troops which furnished the backbone of his cohorts at Chicago in 1912. It was in the South that Bascom Slemp in 1923 started the drive for the renomination of Coolidge in 1924. And in the South that maneuver is being repeated at this moment.

It is a question of jobs, and in politics there has never been an issue to compare with jobs.

Federal officeholders and employes fall into two divisions, namely, the classified and the unclassified services. The classified are under civil service, and are forbidden by law to engage in pernicious political activity.

157,000 Appointees in Unclassified Service

There remains the gravy—the unclassified service. It numbers 157,000 appointees, drawing a yearly total of $127,000,000 in salaries. Included among these jobs are about 60,000 that pay substantial salaries. Among the choicest are those of Collectors of Internal Revenue, United States District Attorneys and United States Marshals. All the 157,000 are chosen without competitive examination, and the extent of their political activity is unrestricted. But that is not all.

There are fourth-class postmasters and rural mail carriers, numbering 79,645, and drawing a yearly aggregate in salaries of $104,000,000. During the Taft campaign for delegates in 1912, the civil service regulations affecting them were changed to allow appointees to be chosen from among the three making the best grades in examinations, so that these have become virtually as much a part of the patronage system as those in the unclassified service.

Thus, we are confronted with an army of 236,654 political appointees, with a salary roll of $231,000,000 a year, all holding their bread and butter at the pleasure of the President. Politically, they are the most active groups in their communities. In general, they are selected for their political influence and skill, and their jobs may depend on their success—and their loyalty to their master.

This is the patronage machine. It explains how Presidents can whip independent Senators and Congressmen into line by cutting the ground from under them back home. It explains how a President can control the local conventions which choose the delegates to the national convention which nominates the candidate for President. A few references to actual cases will make the point clearer.

Federal Jobholders in 1908 G. O. P. Convention

It has been noted that Roosevelt, in retiring at the end of his second term in 1908, picked Taft to succeed him. A survey of that convention subsequently made, showed that one out of every 10 delegates was a Federal officeholder. More important still, it showed that one-third of all the delegates were chosen by local conventions controlled by Federal officeholders.

In that convention, Kentucky, West Virginia, Tennessee and the 10 states of the Solid South had 300 delegates, of whom 99 were Federal officeholders. Some had only half a vote, but they had a total vote of 279, and this is how they were cast: Taft, 261; Hughes, 2; Foraker, 11; Fairbanks, 5.

An investigation by the Civil Service League showed that in the convention which selected the Arkansas delegates, the chairman and every other officer was a Federal jobholder; every motion was made by a Federal jobholder and every member of every committee was a Federal jobholder.

The Roosevelt who had ridden this Juggernaut so ruthlessly over Taft's opponents in 1908 was to be its next victim in 1912.

Hand-picked Delegates Nominate Our Presidents

There, again, the survey showed that one-third of all the delegates were chosen in conventions controlled by Federal jobholders, now owing their bread and butter, not to Roosevelt, but to Taft. It is not surprising, therefore, that when the roll was called, Kentucky, Tennessee and the 10 states of the Solid South cast their votes as follows: Taft, 233; Roosevelt, 4.

Taft had 21 votes above the bare majority necessary to control the convention. In nearly every contest over seats, the Taft-controlled Credentials Committee seated the delegate pledged to Taft. Gov. Hadley of Missouri (now Chancellor of Washington University) declared that 72 seats were thus "stolen," of which 40 were from Southern states.

The Government Blue Book, containing a list of all Federal officeholders, was discontinued under the Harding administration, making it impossible to determine the percentage of Federal jobholders in the 1924 convention, which nominated Coolidge, or the percentage of delegates chosen by conventions controlled by jobholders. However, from the first-hand observation of the writer, it is safe to conclude that the percentage was as high as ever. A more thoroughly handpicked convention never assembled under the star-spangled flag of democracy.

The fact that Coolidge, soon after taking office, named as his secretary Bascom Slemp of Virginia, a man long and notoriously associated with the Southern patronage graft, and that Slemp at once went about the business of lining up Federal jobholders for Coolidge, is a matter of history. Slemp had recently been involved in charges of selling Southern postmasterships to raise a Republican campaign fund.

One-sixth of Uncontrolled Delegates All That Is Needed

For a graphic illustration of the extent to which the patronage machine can be used to dictate the nomination of a presidential candidate, it is necessary only to consider these facts: It has been shown that one-third of the delegates are chosen in patronage-controlled conventions. One-third plus one-sixth equals one-half, and a bare majority is enough to nominate. We realize then that a President bent on renominating himself needs the support of only one-sixth of the uncontrolled delegates (plus one man to make a majority) to accomplish his purpose. The enormous influence of the presidency makes the acquisition of that one-sixth a very easy matter.

In the light of these facts it is not difficult to understand what Roosevelt meant when he said that "a President, if he knows how to use the machinery at his disposal, can renominate himself, even though a majority of his party is against him." Having used that machinery himself in 1908, and having been a victim of its use in 1912, he had excellent reason to know what he was talking about.

Huge Power of the South In G. O. P. Conventions

It is obvious that the strength possessed by the South in Republican national conventions is out of all proportion to the strength of the party in those states. In most of them it exists only in name—and in the persons of the Federal jobholders. A few figures tell the story.

In the 1908 convention South Carolina had one delegate for every 136 Republican votes cast in the election, and Mississippi had one for every 159. Compare this with the Republican state of Ohio, which had but one delegate for every 13,000 votes, and Colorado, which had one for every 13,500.

The big Republican states of the North and West have long been restive under this disparity, and the scandal of 1912 made some sort of reform imperative. In 1916 the Republican convention adopted a change which reduced the strength of the Southern delegations, and further reductions were recommended by the convention in 1920.

When Coolidge Made Use of the Reliable Steam Roller

But when the National Committee met in 1923 to carry out that plan, something happened to block it, and that something is tersely recorded by the historian, Salt, in his "American Parties and Elections," which says: "The chief reason for this action was the anxiety of the Coolidge managers to increase the number of (patronage-controlled) Southern delegates, as a means of ensuring control of the 1924 convention."

Again, the figures tell the story, and it is the same old story. In that convention, South Carolina had one delegate for every 102 Republican votes, while Ohio and Illinois each had one for every 23,000 Republican votes. In other words, a South Carolina Republican had approximately 230 times as much voice in choosing the party nominee for President as an Ohio or Illinois Republican had. And the chances are that the South Carolina Republican was holding a Federal commission signed by the man who was a candidate for renomination.

Charges of Graft in Distributing Patronage

In the 10 states of the Solid South, there are 24,557 Federal jobs, with a yearly salary roll of $34,059,000. These jobs and these

What Makes the G. O. P. Conventions Go

THE President of the United States has under his control 236,654 Federal jobs with an annual salary roll of $231,000,000.

One-third of the delegates at a Republican national convention are Federal office holders.

Twenty-four thousand, five hundred and fifty-seven jobs, with a yearly payroll of $34,059,000 are in the South.

In the convention of 1924, South Carolina had one delegate to every 102 Republican votes in the State. Illinois and Ohio were permitted only one to every 23,000.

Thus a South Carolinan had 230 times as much convention voting power, from the standpoint of popular representation, as did a man from either of the other states.

Roosevelt Showed the Way in 1908 When He Handled Steam Roller Which Crushed Him in 1912—Army of 236,654 Jobholders Supplies a Third of Convention's Delegates, Making Winning of Only One-Sixth of Uncontrolled Group Necessary to Swing the Nomination.

All France Watches Dispute With Daudet, Royalist Editor, Opposing Poincare and Police

PARIS, July 10.

DID Philippe Daudet, the precocious 14-year-old grandson of the famous Alphonse Daudet, kill himself in a Paris taxicab Nov. 24, 1923? Or was he assassinated and placed, dying, in a taxicab?

His father, Leon Daudet, and his Royalist supporters, the Camelots du Roi, "Hawkers of the King," made all France laugh at the Government when M. Catry, director of the Sante Prison, was tricked into releasing Daudet, his lieutenant, M. Delest, and the communist, M. Semenard, on the authority of a faked telephone call. Premier Poincare and the Government were hurled under a hailstorm of ridicule from all parties.

Back of Leon Daudet's latest exploit, which has made Poincare and the French Government akin to the Gilbert and Sullivan policeman in the common unhappiness of their lot, there is a steady-burning feud. On one side is Leon Daudet; on the other, the French secret police and Poincare. The issue is: How did Philippe Daudet come to his death? However much France may laugh over the moves and counter-moves in the affair, the question remains.

Daudet Charges Murder.

Philippe's father, Leon Daudet, went to prison for insisting that Philippe was assassinated. He succeeded in attracting the attention of all France by barricading himself in the office of the Royalist newspaper, L'Action Francaise, and refusing to surrender. It was only when the biggest police mobilization ever made for an arrest had given the affair the importance Daudet wanted it to have, that he walked out and surrendered to Chief of Police Chiappe himself. In this also he made a magnificent gesture, saying he did it only to prevent French blood from being spilled.

Daudet was arrested for defamation of character. He declared Bajot, the chauffeur of the taxicab in which Philippe's body was found, was an accomplice in the murder, which he laid at the doors of the political police. Bajot sued and in a three weeks' trial last fall was exonerated. The court instructed Daudet to pay 25,000 francs damages and to spend five months in jail.

It has been a famous case in France because Daudet, who attacks bitterly and without restraint in his monarchist newspaper, brought into question the integrity of the police. Now it has begun to attain to the rank of the Dreyfus case in interest because Premier Poincare, whose brother-in-law, Lannes, a high police functionary, was charged by Daudet with being aware of the assassination of Daudet's son. Poincare, who also was Premier in November, 1923, when the lad was found dead, has been directly brought into the affair since the arrest of Daudet by a combination of circumstances.

Suicide, Says Poincare.

When Daudet submitted spectacularly to arrest, his aged mother, the widow of Alphonse Daudet, wrote Premier Poincare a bitter letter. Poincare replied publicly, explaining exactly why the State could not permit her son to defy its courts. In the body of the letter he made a reference to the "suicide" of her grandson, Philippe, saying the family physician of the Daudets, Dr. Lucian Bernard, coming to him at the time with other friends of the Daudet family to ask that the body of Philippe be brought secretly home from the hospital, said to him that the lad was subject to fits of running away, "a mania." Poincare quoted Dr. Bernard as saying, "which leads almost fatally to suicide."

The comeback was immediate. Dr. Bernard sent the Premier a letter denying he had ever said the lad had a malady which had anything to do with suicide.

Poincare has a remarkable photographic memory. He has been known to quote long series of legal citations by page and paragraph and give the exact wording of each to the astonishment of the court. He has the reputation of remembering every detail of everything that has happened in his long and busy public career. He does not, therefore, admit any contradiction when it comes to his memory. To Bernard, who challenged it, he replied caustically that he was not only right but that Bernard had admitted the boy suffered from the evil effects of "a double unfortunate heredity."

Daudet from his prison cell in the Sante now shot back with a letter to the Premier. He said he had seen Poincare's "incredible letter" on the "assassination" of his son, in which, he declared, "your brother-in-law, the Controleur General Lannes, was involved," and defied the President of the Council, "on the summit of power," though he was writing, he said, "from the bottom of his cell."

Which brings up the question again:

Did Philippe Daudet commit suicide, or was he murdered? Officially he remains a suicide, but the known facts leave a doubt in the minds of many people who do not in the least sympathize with the royalist and vitriolic Leon Daudet, his father, and are rather pleased to think of him sputtering furiously in prison. To Daudet's friends and supporters, who look for more than usually brilliant fulminations from "the depths of the prison cell," there is no doubt at all that little Philippe was put out of the way.

Police Accused by Father.

The persistence with which Leon Daudet has made a public issue of his son's death easily may lead now to its becoming, nearly four years after it happened, a cause celebre, with considerable political effect, because Leon Daudet has not hesitated to accuse the police of killing the boy themselves.

The circumstances of the death are strange enough. The grandson of Alphonse Daudet was a runaway. He already had run away from home four times when, in November, 1923, he disappeared again. He was tall and looked 19 or 20. His family laid these disappearances to his heredity. They knew well enough what Premier Poincare has just brought out in replying to letters that the boy had inherited from both sides of his family the bad secondary effects of disease. It was hoped he would become more normal as he grew up.

Perhaps, on account of the physical defect which the parents knew they had transmitted to their children, Leon Daudet and his wife, who is also his cousin, were tender with this lad and tried not to interfere with his vagaries. He was not quite 14 when his father barely missed assassination at the hands of the anarchist girl, Germaine Berthon, who killed by mistake his fellow editor, Plateau. The murder made a deep impression on the lad's mind and he began in his precocious boyish way to try to get at the bottom of the anarchist plot. For months he tried to work his way into the confidence of anarchists, and the last few days of his life he spent with them. There seems to be no doubt that his too brilliant young mind was engaged upon some scheme to circumvent another attack on his father.

His father also had other enemies. In his free right and left editorial slugging he had frequently attacked the police, especially the political police. In the various

The Farmer and Prohibition.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

IT is singular indeed that bankers as a class usually so hard-headed and practical when asked to back a new enterprise, first inquiring into its economical status, past and present, and then if precedent exists, to give or withhold their approval on the basis of their findings should abruptly about face on their otherwise exact methods and employ sentiment alone when the moot question of prohibition is under consideration. The country banker has never considered prohibition very seriously from an economical standpoint or we would never have had it, that is certain. He had and has no desire to bring ruin upon himself and his client farmers by adding his voice and vote to what could easily have been proven erroneous sentiment. Yet that is what happened, and incidentally thousands of country banks have failed, other thousands have paid no dividends since 1920, the remaining hundreds are barely skimping by in favored sections with a margin of profit on money invested. Even the Government recognizes that the farmer has been insolvent for years, too long indeed to blame it on the war, from which quick recovery would have been certain, by recently offering to lend the farmer $25,000,000 which the country banker couldn't do because he is himself insolvent and other more wealthy city bankers won't do because farming is simply a failing concern to them and therefore a loan would be bad business.

Yes, indeed, it's an unprofitable mess for all concerned and $25,000,000 is hardly a drop in the bucket to a hundred-billion dollar industry. But, as I said, the problem yields quickly to simple arithmetic. I suggest the following data for the country banker's consideration. Of course it becomes operable only if and when the eighteenth amendment is repealed:

Twenty-five per cent increased market for corn, rye, barley, No. 2 wheat, hops, grapes, etc., and incidental to the above, a 25 per cent greater demand for these crops, which will induce farmers with holdings more suitable for such crops to abandon unprofitable mixed farming, which in turn will cause a 25 per cent greater demand for mixed products from farms more suited to oats, hay, rice, flax, mustard, buckwheat, butter, milk, eggs, fruits, swine, etc.

With the economy of time, labor and equipment incidental to selective farming the farmer's earnings will increase 30 per cent to 40 per cent above the present average return per annum. Add to this a 33 1-3 per cent decrease in property taxes per annum made possible by taxes levied on alcoholic beverages and the farmer and country banker will be profitable going concerns.

Strength of Third Term Tradition.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

EVERY day we read in the press predictions that President Coolidge will be nominated at the next Republican convention, and statements that the third term precedent has no force in President Coolidge's case because the President has thus far been elected to the presidency only once. Some say that the third term precedent has no force in our day when so many former precedents have been shattered. Others say that there would be no danger that President Coolidge would usurp power to himself if he were again elected President because he is a man of admittedly mild and unaggressive character. Still others affect to despise altogether the strength and worth of the third term precedent.

All these arguments are feeble, or beside the mark. The very fact that the third term precedent occupies almost the center of interest on the political stage shows the importance and strength of the precedent. The argument that if President Coolidge were to be nominated again, the third term precedent would not apply to him because if elected he would be elected only twice is weak and unconvincing. Where the devil introduces his finger he soon insinuates his body. President Coolidge's re-election would serve to shatter a wise precedent, a precedent that ought to be shattered, if ever, only in the case of a President as great as King David or as wise as King Solomon. The people in general who are swayed by fundamentals and not by hairsplitting arguments would object to President Coolidge's serving longer in office than all the Presidents of the past, including Washington and Lincoln. Roosevelt did not serve two full terms, but he was wise enough, or well advised enough not to seek a third term. Can President Coolidge succeed where the mighty Roosevelt failed?

Some say that President Coolidge's mild character would prevent any aggressions of power on his part. Perhaps so. But history is not lacking in examples that show that the prolongation and strengthening of power in one man's hands have worked some strange transformations in character.

There is a saying, "Whom the gods wish to destroy they first make mad." This saying is not always true, by any means, but it may apply to those Republicans who despise the third term precedent.

CHARLES HOOPER.
Coeur d'Alene, Idaho.

THE THIRD TERM MENACE.

The question of a third term for President Coolidge has been discussed heretofore chiefly with regard to the sentiment of the people. Would they approve of a candidacy for a third term in the presidency, and would they support President Coolidge if his party should renominate him?

Republican party leaders have canvassed the country from this standpoint. Their reports have indicated that the sentiment of party leaders over the country and of Republicans generally is not unfavorable to a third term, and that there would not be a substantial revolt in the event of the renomination of Mr. Coolidge, but the people would support him.

Of course, this is partisan testimony—testimony undoubtedly influenced by Mr. Coolidge's present incumbency in the office of President and his exercise of its power and patronage. That influence in quieting opposition to a third term and in controlling expressions of opinion cannot easily be measured.

The test of popular opinion can only come with the election, but the test of the attitude of the man in the presidency comes with his seeking renomination and re-election for a third term. If Mr. Coolidge seeks or consents to a renomination for a third term, what judgment must be formed of him? What motive would lead him to disregard the cherished tradition of the American people and seek to destroy it in order that he may enjoy the hitherto unknown honor of re-election to a third term, and may continue to enjoy the power and patronage of the greatest office in the gift of the people?

Washington, led by inclination, by consideration for the proprieties, for the welfare of the people, retired at the end of his second term. His illustrious example has been followed by every President except Grant, whose candidacy was rejected by his party. The Republican party, in refusing to satisfy the will and ambition of one of the greatest men in American history, put its seal of approval on the antithird-term tradition.

Roosevelt sought a third term, but under different circumstances. He was out of office. Another term had intervened. He did not have the power and patronage of the presidency to support his ambition. He was nominated as a private citizen.

The chief objection to a third term is based upon the power and patronage of the President, which enable him to exercise a tremendous influence upon his party to gain renomination and to marshal a host of official workers, interested in his continuance in office, to effect his re-election. It is agreed generally that if the President chooses to exert his power and influence he can obtain a renomination and can go far toward obtaining a re-election.

In the event, therefore, of the breaking of the antithird-term tradition, the responsibility rests primarily with the President who seeks to destroy it. What motive would lead him to seek to destroy a wholesome tradition of this kind? It is agreed that in a republic the greatest thing to be feared is ambition on the part of men in power to continue in power. What other motive could actuate a man to seek an honor which no other President has enjoyed, and a continuance in power beyond the period of any other President, except selfish ambition? Granting the wholesomeness of the antithird-term tradition and the danger accompanying the breaking of it, what can be said of a man who seeks to break it except that he is moved by selfish ambition? If selfish ambition leads him to seek a third term, why not a fourth term or a fifth? Why not the use of the vast power, patronage and influence of the presidency to continue in office for a lifetime?

It is from this standpoint of selfish ambition against the highest interests and the welfare of the republic that we must judge President Coolidge if he seeks a renomination for a third term. All the sophistry which tries to make it appear that he has only had one elective term will not relieve him of this judgment. He has been President twice, and if he uses his power and patronage for a renomination and re-election for a third time he will deserve the judgment that he puts selfish ambition above public welfare and the stability of the republic.

THIS DELECTABLE SUMMER.

June of this year was the coolest we have had in St. Louis in many years, and seemingly we are also to have that sort of July.

It is more than likely that the celebrated year without a summer, yclept 1816, was a good deal like this. There was no Weather Bureau in 1816. According to Howe's "Great West," which contains a chapter on that remarkable year, there were frosts throughout the Mississippi Valley in each of the summer months.

We must take that with a grain of salt. One day last week it snowed in Duluth. Thanks to our modern weather science and the press, we are able to confine that snow to the latitude of Duluth. The pioneers of the valley could not do that. Things got away from them, and some fine whoppers were told. Unless we are mistaken, the story of the year without a summer was one of them. It probably ranked with that great tale of the mythical mountain of salt up the Missouri River as to which Mr. Jefferson enjoined Lewis and Clark to ascertain the fact.

This delectable summer, in which we are still sleeping under blankets much of time, is likely a counterpart of 1816.

Hugh McQuillan, Boston pitcher, is in contempt of court for nonpayment of alimony, and we, who have been following his pitching record, can testify that the opposing batters feel the same way toward him.

HOPE FOR GEORGIA.

It is not unusual for a flogging to be held in Georgia; that State is noted for its intolerance. It is the home of the Ku Klux Klan redivivus. But it is unusual for a Georgia jury to convict a Georgian for participation in a midnight flogging, even when such a flogging involves a woman, as it did in this case. W. G. Acree, high school and Sunday school superintendent, was found guilty of flogging Mrs. Ansley Bowers. He was identified by Mrs. Bowers as the man who held her head between his knees as his companions applied the lash to her bare back. A Georgia jury believed Mrs. Bowers, and when a Georgia jury does that, there is hope left for Georgia. We trust the Acree sentence will in some measure be proportionate to the repellent crime he has committed.

Mrs. Coolidge, seeing Cal arrayed in chaps, called him "Wild Bill," which shows what a keen sense of humor she has.

THE DISARMAMENT TANGLE.

If it was not apparent at the time that Mr. Coolidge had a political rather than a peace motive in suggesting the disarmament conference now in progress at Geneva, that ought to be plain enough now.

The conference, so far as actual disarmament is concerned, is hopelessly deadlocked, and there will in all likelihood come of it at last only what the Post-Dispatch foresaw would come of it at the time it was suggested. For two weeks the United States and Japan have been trying to get Great Britain to reduce her cruiser strength to an approximate parity with their own, and Great Britain has persistently refused to do it. The plea she makes is not in our opinion a specious plea. She says that owing to the extent of her empire and the necessities of her trade relations she needs seventy cruisers. She cannot admit that either Japan or the United States, neither of which either wants or needs any such cruiser fleet, is faced by anything like her own necessity.

Unfortunately, discussion of this matter has generated some feeling. The American delegates have spoken sharply of the stubbornness of the British, and the British have retorted sharply. They think we are trying to dictate to them, and they resent it. The people of the United States will not, we fancy, relish the position in which they have been put. In their zeal to make a showing at the conference, and thus make political capital for Mr. Coolidge, the American delegates have shown a great deal of concern for getting results and none whatever for Great Britain. That is not a sportsmanlike thing for us to do, and if the conference breaks up in disagreement there will be less disposition to blame the British for being stubborn than to blame us for having tried to exploit her.

There is no dispute at Geneva as to what either the United States or Japan may have in the way of light fighting vessels. Great Britain is quite willing to agree that we shall have as many as she has. She is willing to extend the traditional 5-3 ratio to Japan. However, neither the United States nor Japan wishes to go to any such cruiser strength. Japan has not the money to do it, and the attitude of our own Congress is so hostile to it that it would be folly to suggest any such building program for ourselves.

This exposes the absence of any better motive in the whole affair than to make political capital for the Coolidge administration at the expense of Great Britain. Nobody questions that her needs are as great as she says they are. Why, then, should we attempt to bully her into something against her own interest? Disarmament can only be mutual.

One advantage the widespread use of airplanes will have is that nobody will have to go through Brentwood any more.

INSURANCE SHOULD INSURE.

Insurance policy holders can hardly look with favor upon any attempt, on the part of insurance companies, to contest death claims upon grounds relating to the character and habits of the deceased person. It is the duty of insurance companies to resist any claim which they believe to be based on fraud or substitution. But when, beyond question of identity, an insured person has died, the amount of the policy should be paid without a belated moral survey. Insurance should insure.

Missouri laws and courts wisely frown on the practice of resisting death claims on the ground of suicide. The fact of suicide is often debatable, and the manner of death in no case affects the needs and the rights of dependents. There is sometimes need for judicial determination as to who is entitled to receive insurance money. Perhaps this, and not any purpose to avoid ultimate payment, explains the appeals made to Federal and local courts by two insurance companies in the Hicks case.

Overnight, Charlie Birger has become one of the most loving fathers and affectionate husbands the world has ever known.

MR. FORD IN REVERSE.

When Mr. Ford apologizes for the preposterous untruths of his Dearborn Independent in its campaign against the Jews, asserting that his editors betrayed his implicit confidence in them, he reverses his prior assertion that to hire knowledge is just as good as to possess it.

He once said that if he wanted to know anything he could send out and get somebody to tell him about it for $10, a philosophy which he blows up utterly in his apology. He did not know to what extent the allegations of the Independent were true, but he thought he was employing somebody who did. He learned in time that he was merely being used to satisfy a grudge, and not since Socrates has there been another apology ranking with his.

It is not true, as Mr. Ford has thought, that knowledge is merely a commodity. It is something in itself desirable and not to be bought. Had Mr. Ford been a man of that horizon and culture demanded of a publisher, he would not have been so easily deceived as he was. He owes his deception to his ignorance. He could not send out and get for $10 the equivalent of that knowledge which would have saved him from the humiliation of a public apology to an outraged and astounded people.

It is easy to make the mistake of believing that journalism is merely a business. It is not. It is one of the professions. No publication can survive and enjoy the esteem of its community except it is guided by someone of the broadest possible culture. It is a part of culture to know what Mr. Ford did not know about the Jews. Had he been an educated man, a jack of all cultures such as a publisher must be, he would not have had to be told that his paper was promoting a damnable and obvious untruth.

There are intellectual as well as material riches. There could be no greater mistake than to believe that the former can be lightly purchased with the latter. This was the mistake that Mr. Ford made, and right grievously has he paid for it.

The State of South Dakota has presented a saddle horse named "Senator" to Coolidge. It is understood the horse is docile.

American bankers have loaned Poland $15,000,000 for the purpose of stabilizing the zloty. Looks to us like a zlot of money.

You may call, you may label, such hope what you will; the third term tradition's opposing it still.

THE PLAYTHING OF POLITICS

The MIRROR of PUBLIC OPINION

This column is designed to reproduce without bias the latest comment by the leading publicists, newspapers and periodicals on the questions of the day.

CAREER DIPLOMATS AND OTHERS.

From the Nation.

IT is so rarely that we find ourselves in hearty accord with Vice President Dawes that we cannot forbear from quoting this passage from his address at Washington University:

> This is a time when our diplomatic negotiations must be carried on with courage, forbearance, and patience, with sympathy for the suffering, without arrogance resulting from the thought of our national wealth and power, and with a humility of mind which shrinks from the quick preconception of solutions prior to thorough familiarity with the facts with which solution must deal. Our diplomatic representatives should be strong enough, no matter how embarrassing the circumstances, to stand firmly for American rights and against their infraction. But again they should be strong enough to urge upon those at home a policy consistent with these rights which is also just to other countries.

Of course, the classic example is the appointment of James Bryce to the ambassadorship in Washington. No career diplomat from the Court of St. James could possibly have approached the usefulness and the completeness of Mr. Bryce in this country. He was a specialist in America; a citizen of our world as of the European. His understanding was beyond cavil, whereas the career diplomat who may have served in a dozen countries before reaching high rank remains a specialist in none of them and is usually too wrapped up in procedure and convention to be able to understand the psychology, the history, and the peculiar problems of, let us say, the Balkan peoples or the Latin Americans. We are one with General Dawes in dreading the giving over of the diplomatic service to career men.

FLOOD CONTROL.

PROF. WILLIS L. MOORE, former chief of the U. S. Weather Bureau, in the American Mercury for July.

ONLY the size of the continents and the height and trend of their mountain ranges affect rainfall, not forests or other surface covering. So long as this continent remains at its present elevation and the oceans wash its shores, the rainfall will remain practically as it is now, with the exception of the slow mutation to which reference has been made. * * * * Prof. D. W. Mead, of the University of Wisconsin, one of the leading hydraulic engineers of the West, and in fact of the world, has published an elaborate report on the rainfall and the run-off of the rivers of Wisconsin, where the lumber men have cut over large areas. He finds no increase in flood intensity. * * * * Instead of wasting public money in protecting bush-lots, let us expend it in the impounding of flood waters. The United States has shown its ability to do big things in a big way. It constructed the Panama Canal for the use of the world. It has done much for the American home-builder in the reclamation of arid lands, and now it should create a commission of the ablest engineers of the nation to work out a comprehensive plan for the control of the rivers and floods of this continent. There is no doubt that by the joint use of levees and impounding reservoirs the surplus waters that constitute devastating floods can be controlled, and our rivers utilized to do a vast amount of the work of the nation. * * * * The loss by floods in the United States in one decade would more than build two Panama Canals. Turn the skill and energy of another Goethals upon the problem of the floods, and in less time than it took to construct the Canal it will cease to be a problem.

THE PICKWICK CENTENARY.

From the Philadelphia Inquirer.

CHARACTERS in fiction are often more real than figures in history. It is not surprising that the centenary of Mr. Pickwick should be observed by his admirers. The date selected, last Friday, is not that of the publication of the account of his life and character, but that of the resolution of the Pickwick Club, which sent its honored head and his three companions on their famous tour. Dickens did not tell the story until eight years after.

There are many who hold that the great novelist never did anything better than "The Pickwick Papers." It undoubtedly holds a high place in English picaresque fiction. It is a vivid picture of phases of English life now passed away. But "A Tale of Two Cities" shows a keener artistic sense; and in "David Copperfield," "Great Expectations" and "Our Mutual Friend"—to name only three among the rest—the drawing of character is more subtle and less exaggerated. Nevertheless, the Pickwick centenary remains an unique tribute to an author.

THAT DOCUMENT ISN'T SO POPULAR NOWADAYS.

From the Courier Journal.

THERE was a time when the people gathered on the village green to celebrate the "Glorious Fourth" with a tug-of-war, climbing the greased pole, catching the greased pig and a demonstration by the volunteer fire department—music by the Silver Cornet Band. But always someone read the Declaration of Independence, and there was no ground for suspecting that anyone in the community might be ignorant of the occasion for the celebration.

TRAGEDY REMEMBERED FROM CHILDHOOD

When dreaming of a lovely one as evening shadows fall,
My mind will keep reverting to a day beyond recall;
The blissful days of childhood that, too soon, alas, have flown,
And tragedy in china that my tender years had known;
He was a loving shepherd lad, and she, too, tended sheep,
And on our parlor mantelpiece their vigil they would keep;
As far away as she could get, she'd stand and there remain—
The Dresden china shepherd loved the shepherdess in vain.

Some thought them only ornaments, which shows how much they knew,
He must have loved her madly, and I know his love was true;
The clock was in the center and a statue on each end,
They made them stand that way so that in symmetry they'd blend;
I was too young to help their cause, but had I had my say,
I'd put them near each other and then throw the clock away;
Unhappy Dresden china lad, I hope I'm spared the pain
Of loving one so lovely and of loving her in vain.

FABLE.

Now the poet, having few pence for the journey, was minded to seek a night's lodging at the house of the cynic. And the cynic, because he delighted in destroying the lovely dreams that poets have, and because he knew that men under the influence of wine, tell the truth, set wine before his guest. But the poet being willing to tell his dream to any that would listen, said, "I seek the pot of gold at the foot of the rainbow." Of course there are no rainbows at night, but this is a fable, where anything can happen. Besides, the poet was not traveling at night. Whereupon, the cynic sneered, "In the first place you'll never get there; in the second place there's no gold at the foot of the rainbow." "I know" answered the poet, "but walking is good exercise."

The fact that they were resorting to these low methods in the public interest did not deter him from attacking, but hampered the style of the police in getting back at him. So there is no doubt the police had lost no love for Leon Daudet, father of an erratic son.

This son, having disappeared several days earlier, suddenly turned up one morning in the bookshop of Le Flaouter in the Boulevard Beaumarchais, near the Place de la Bastille. According to the police, Le Flaouter was an anarchistically inclined bookseller; nothing more. According to Leon Daudet, he was a stool pigeon of the police planted in the business of selling anarchistic as well as obscene literature in order to catch anarchists as well as other kinds of persons the police wanted.

Be that as it may, Le Flaouter said he was so impressed with the young man's declarations that he hurried around and tipped off the Controleur General Latnes, so the police were on hand, ordinary and special political police, when young Philippe was due to return for his copy of Baudelaire, and from there on the story complicates rapidly.

According to the story of Le Flaouter and the police, they came in and Le Flaouter, regretting he had arranged a trap, gave him 80 francs and let him slip

Fifty-one of the old tenements in the districts have lavatories in the public halls, used by two families, and 36 had one lavatory for each three families. Of 405 old-style buildings, three have fireproof stairs and halls, the rest wooden stairs and halls.

First Forward Step.

It is the contemplation of situations such as these that have made some solution of the housing problem so pressing, but the new tax-exemption law is the first definite step in that direction.

A few years ago the students of housing problems were all for getting the slum residents out in the country, where they could own their homes. This plan has fallen into disfavor for various reasons. One authority, speaking at a recent convention of architects in Washington, declared the number of small houses being built in New York was a disgrace to the community. There also have been attacks on the small type of house erected in large number on Long Island and other outlying spots because of their flimsy construction and the fire menace.

The big reason for the renewal of the old-time theory, however, is that it is better to let the people who live in the congested areas remain there, but under decent living conditions, than to carry them to the outlying places where they would add still more to the already overtaxed transportation systems. One authority went so far as to question the wisdom of rapid transit extension because it had a tendency to add to the congestion of territory traversed.

Despite the opposition to the new ordinance, it has found strong support from many others than the officials responsible for its enactment. The New York World, in an editorial praising the law, commented as follows:

All France Watches Dispute With Daudet, Royalist Editor

treason trials that grew out of the war he delved into the secret machinations of the police, which are, in France, what they are everywhere. The police work with stool pigeons and informers as they do everywhere.

The fact that they were resorting to these low methods in the public interest did not deter him from attacking, but hampered the style of the police in getting back at him. So there is no doubt the police had lost no love for Leon Daudet, father of an erratic son.

Seen at Bookshop.

This son, having disappeared several days earlier, suddenly turned up one morning in the book shop of Le Flaouter in the Boulevard Beaumarchais, near the Place de la Bastille. That morning was Nov. 24, 1923. He had been sent by some of his anarchist friends, he said, and asked for a small pocket edition of Beaudelaire's poems. Le Flaouter, not having in stock just what Philippe wanted, promised to get a copy, whereupon the boy began to tell, according to Le Flaouter, how he had come expressly from the provinces to kill Leon Daudet.

According to the police, Le Flaouter was an anarchistically inclined bookseller; nothing more. According to Leon Daudet, he was a stool pigeon of the police planted in the business of selling anarchistic as well as obscene literature in order to catch anarchists as well as other kinds of persons the police wanted.

Be that as it may, Le Flaouter said he was so impressed with the young man's declarations that he hurried around and tipped off the Controleur General Lames, so the police were on hand, ordinary and special political police, when young Philippe was due to return for his copy of Baudelaire, and from there on the story complicates rapidly.

According to the story of Le Flaouter and the police, the boy came in and Le Flaouter, regretting he had arranged a trap, gave him 80 francs and let him slip away. He went, according to this version of the story, to the Place de la Bastille, hailed a taxicab, and a mile or so away shot himself in the taxi. The driver and owner of the taxi, who has just succeeded in getting 25,000 francs from the boy's father as well as the personal satisfaction of knowing he was sentenced to jail, declared the boy shot himself as the taxi was going along the Rue la Fayette. Another taxi driver corroborated hearing the shot.

Daudet Charges Plot.

Leon Daudet has maintained this "suicide" is a piece of stage setting by the police. He has maintained the boy was sent to La Flaouter, who never let him out of his shop, but connived at his death with the aid of Colombo, a police official. He holds the boy was shot in the cellar of the shop and then placed in a taxicab, the driver of which was allied with the police, or he was shot in the taxicab, the assassin climbing out and the taxicab driver pretending some time later to hear the shot and discover the body.

There was little real evidence to go on. The question of whether the boy committed suicide or was assassinated never was thrashed out by itself, but always has come up as part of the processes that have grown out of his death.

As motive for the suicide a letter he wrote from Le Havre the first day he left home was produced. In it he said only he was going to kill himself, but suicide as the fatal consequence of his evil inheritance has now been brought forward by Premier Poincare.

Why the police should want to get rid of the boy has never been shown by his father, who has accused the police of every kind of implication, but never has established the motive. There remains only the general suspicion that the police sometimes have to get rid of people to protect their stool pigeons. Usually the police are supposed to put only criminals out of the way when such necessity arises. If that is the case, what could have been the motive for doing way with this eccentric youth?

First Forward Step.

It is the contemplation of situations such as these that have made some solution of the housing problem so pressing, but the new tax-exemption law is the first definite step in that direction.

A few years ago the students of housing problems were all for getting the slum residents out in the country, where they could own their homes. This plan has fallen into disfavor for various reasons. One authority, speaking at a recent convention of architects in Washington, declared the number of small houses being built in New York was a disgrace to the community. There also have been attacks on the small type of house erected in large number on Long Island and other outlying spots because of their flimsy construction and the fire menace.

The big reason for the reversal of the old-time theory, however, is that it is better to let the people who live in the congested areas remain there, but under decent living conditions, than to carry them to the outlying places where they would add still more to the already overtaxed transportation systems. One authority went so far as to question the wisdom of rapid transit extension because it had a tendency to add to the congestion of territory traversed.

Despite the opposition to the new ordinance, it has found strong support from many others than the officials responsible for its enactment. The New York World, in an editorial praising the law, commented as follows:

"The working of the new rule should be simplicity itself. Corporations or companies are to be formed under supervision and authority of the Housing Board. They may buy sites by condemnation. Their dividends are limited to 6 per cent; the taint of charity is as distant from their operation as the opportunity for profiteering. Their bookkeeping is checked by the board. The houses they are to build must rent for not more than $12.50 a room in Manhattan, $11 in Brooklyn and Bronx, $10 in Queens and Richmond.

Tenant Gets Benefit.

"Tax exemption may be worth something like $1.35 a room in terms of rent, and as the dividends are limited, the tenant gets the benefit, not the landlord. Should the conditions not be carried out properly, the property may resume a fully taxable status at any time. If they are carried out properly, the exemption is to continue 20 years, at which time the pricing of rooms to tenants may be left to the law of supply and demnd.

"This is forward-looking legislation. It is bright with promise of a great civic improvement. Under it there is a chance, a fair chance, a good chance, that some of the worst of New York's slums, marked out as unfit for human habitation 30, even 40 years ago, may be razed and decent home-places be reared in their stead. Whether this shall happen—the extent, rather, to which it happens, the speed with which the great blessing gets itself accomplished—all this rests with the citizenship of New York, with the pride in progress of their city felt by men of wealth and vision, a pride in which they have not in the past been found lacking."

ROUEN TO HONOR JOAN OF ARC

To Reconstruct Market Place Where She Was Burned.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, July 9.—The city of Rouen plans to reconstruct the market-place where Joan of Arc was burned.

The spot where the firewood was piled by the English and the ground where once stood the tribunal are known and will be marked in a way that will help to visualize the story. Sketches of the proposed restoration show quaint old peak-roofed buildings with overhanging balconies and wide arcades that open into markets such as the Maid of Orleans must have seen.

Coolidge Can Renominate Self By Patronage

salaries are at the disposal of "patronage referees," named either by the President or his political manager. Many charges of graft and corruption have been made against these referees, and not a few have been proved. Senator Norris of Nebraska had a resolution before the last Senate providing for an investigation of patronage graft during the present recess, but it was lost in the Republican filibuster at the close of the session—a filibuster which was itself intended to prevent further investigation of corruption in Pennsylvania and Illinois.

We have seen the nature of the patronage machine and how through its operation, "a President of the United States, if he knows how to use it, can renominate himself, even though a majority of his party is against him."

First Simon-pure Politican Now Occupies White House.

Does Coolidge know how to use it? Mr. Coolidge broke into politics as a follower of Murray Crane, the shrewdest politician ever turned out by Massachusetts. From the humble estate of a ward worker he rose successively through the offices of Alderman, Mayor, State Senator, Lieutenant-Governor, Governor and Vice President to the presidency. In fact, he is the first of the pure politician type ever to sit in the White House. His last two upward steps may be attributed to chance, but the others cannot be.

Nat Goldstein, who is no amateur in these matters, asked in 1923 about Coolidge's political sagacity, replied by citing the foregoing record of unbroken service on the public payroll.

"Don't worry about that little feller," said Nat, as he wound up the list, "he knows this game, all right."

All of which is diligently set forth in an effort to help the thoughtful reader and citizen to form his own judgment as to what chance Mr. Coolidge stands of receiving the Republican nomination next year if he wants it.

"They're GONE—Because They're OFF!" Simple, Harmless.

Place a Piece of Paper Over Half the Above Photo and Note the Transformation!

WHY NOT have a new skin and look your best, now that it is so easy and economical? You occasionally get a new hat and outfit—but "the feathers" don't always make "fine birds." But if you had a new skin on your face, neck, arms and hands you would look young and more beautiful—even in rags!

For ages scientists have sought this great beauty-making secret. Women and girls have prayed for it—would have given their jewels for it.

We knew it would come sooner or later, and now it is here and so reasonable in cost that the poorest man or woman can get it.

It was the Germans who gave us Aspirin, to harmlessly relieve us of our pains and aches. It was the Germans who gave our dentists Novacaine with which to extract our teeth without pain or shock to the nervous system. And now they give us a new harmless, colorless liquid that gets rid of the old, faded, blemished skin and brings out the new, clean, soft, velvety, youth-like skin producing a clear, beautiful, natural, girlish or boyish complexion that almost carries one back to the days of great miracles!

No plasters nor clays to use, no creams, nor powders, no masks, nor steaming pots, no bleaches nor harmful acids; no makeshifts! No danger to the most tender skin —no pain—yet the old dead skin, scales, the blackheads, pimples, enlarged pores, surface wrinkles, blemishes, tan, freckles and signs of approaching age are gone—BECAUSE THEY'RE OFF!

It would take a whole page in this publication to tell you the wonders of this amazing discovery! DINNER TO CELEBRATE BASTILLE DAY PLANNED

French Society of St. Louis to Observe 138th Anniversary of Revolution.

The French Society of St. Louis will commemorate the 138th anniversary of the fall of the Bastille Thursday at the Buckingham Hotel. The celebration this year will take a special significance because of the achievements of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and American aviators who followed him across the Atlantic and the reception accorded them by France.

The celebration will begin at 7:30 p. m. with an informal banquet to which the members of French societies and all friends of France are invited. This will be followed by entertainment and dancing.

A special invitation was extended some time ago to Col. Lindbergh, who has been elected an honorary member of the French Society of St. Louis, to attend as the guest of honor, but he was prevented from accepting on account of previous engagements in other cities.

DOWNTOWN FIRE DRAWS CROWD

Several hundred spectators were attracted by a brief fire in the rear of the Globe-Democrat Building, Sixth and Pine street, at 12:30 o'clock this afternoon. Rubbish around the exhaust of a ventilating fan was ignited, it was believed, by spontaneous combustion, and the blaze caused about $100 damage.

RICHMOND HEIGHTS SPENDS $336,136 FOR PAVEMENT

Resurfacing of Big Bend Boulevard Largest Item on List of Improvements.

Richmond Heights, which adjoins St. Louis between Clayton and Maplewood, has let contracts for $336,136 for improvement of its thoroughfares since the first of the year. This is an unusually large amount of work for a suburb. There are 28 contracts for street improvement and three for alleys.

Probably of greatest general importance is the paving of Big Bend boulevard between Ethel avenue and Pennsylvania Park No. 2, at a contract price of $51,809. This is the largest single contract. Big Bend is a through street from Delmar boulevard, University City, to Osage Hills and the Meramec River district, and although it is a smooth highway in a number of suburbs, it has been rough in Richmond Heights. Several east and west streets which are continuations of paved St. Louis thoroughfares, such as Dale and Mitchell avenues, are being improved also.

Beautiful Designs Soft Tone Persian Colors $119.75 Deep Silky Pile Closely Woven

THIS remarkable opportunity comes only twice a year as a result of the manufacturer's desire to reduce stock before inventory. The large selection of patterns includes many that have been the past season's "best sellers." All Rugs are perfect. There are gorgeous Persian designs, soft-toned Chinese patterns, modern all-over designs, plain-tone centers with attractive borders and a wide choice of colors, including rose, mulberry, mahogany, blue and rose taupe. Remember, there are no finer Wiltons made in their respective groups than Whittall's Anglo-Persians. This reduction makes every Rug a most remarkable value that is available only during this event.

LABADIE DETOUR ON U. S. 66 ELIMINATED

More Than 100 Miles of Concrete Now Open From St. Louis to Bourbon.

Labadie detour from Gray's Summit to Villa Ridge on U. S. 66—the St. Louis-Springfield-Joplin route, via Rolla—was eliminated Friday morning and except for a quarter mile gravel stretch around the Tucker Hill grading project at the east town limits of Gray's Summit there is now open to through traffic 103 miles of continuous concrete on U. S. 66 from St. Louis to five miles beyond Bourbon.

The completion of the gap in the concrete at Gray's Summit marks the end of construction on U. S. 66 for 1927. There is very little more of this road which can be concreted. Besides the paving out of St. Louis, this highway is now concrete through Webster county and from Springfield to Joplin.

From the point five miles beyond Bourbon through Cuba to Lebanon, the highway is gravel and it is problematical if this stretch will be concreted even in 1928, as it is the intention of the highway department to maintain this part of the road as a high-grade secondary highway, according to highway officials.

NEW ROAD TO BE BUILT TO BIG SPRINGS STATE PARK

The State Game and Fish Commission has authorized the building of a new road from Van Buren to Big Springs State Park which will eliminate the narrow trail along the Current River which tourists must use at present, according to J. L. Graham, park-keeper of the Big Springs State Park. The new road will have a 20-foot right-of-way and an 18-foot gravel roadway.

The present road runs through Chickopee, a village near Van Buren. The new right-of-way will eliminate this village and shorten the present route of four miles by a half mile, according to Graham.

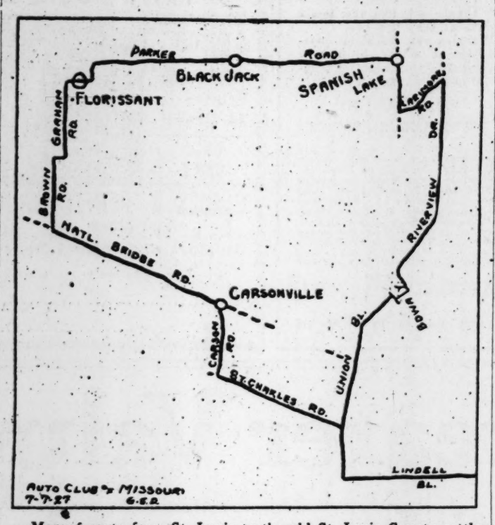
Sunday Tour Through Old Spanish Settlements of St. Louis County



Map of route from St. Louis to the old St. Louis County settlements which were begun in the Spanish regime.

ONE who motors from St. Louis in the direction of the Missouri river may do so along roads laid out when Spanish governors still ruled in Upper Louisiana and the French settlements on both sides of the mid-Mississippi still went by the name of the "Country of the Illinois."

Evidence of this is in the pages of early histories of this country, the first authentic one of the kind having been written by Gen. Victor Collot, emissary of the First French Republic, who in 1796 came as a visitor to St. Louis, found the country—and its inhabitants—so to his liking that months elapsed before he returned home.

Accurate Historian.

Collot while here gave the Spanish officials a case of nerves by stirring up a fever of Jacobin enthusiasm among the habitants of the staid old village. But Collot was less prominent a social lion than a historian, for in his "Illinois Country," he for the first time gave an accurate account of early Missouri life.

In "Illinois Country" Collot published a map whereon motorists of today may see tracings of not a few of the highways of travel which put them in ready touch with the delights of the country which lays at the door of the metropolis and which today is known as St. Louis County. On Collot's map the motorist may trace a winding road which connects such present-known places as Spanish Lake, Fort Bellefontaine and Florissant. They may trace such known highways as St. Charles, Larrimore and Bellefontaine roads, for as early as 1796 these roads were laid out. Then they were but narrow trails rutted

Tour to Attractive Arcadia Valley and Environs

Route Is Over U. S. 61 to Flat River, Mo., 32 to Bismarck, a County Road to Pilot Knob, and Mo. 21 to Ironton.

NINETY-THREE miles beyond St. Louis, in the heart of the Ozark Mountains, is Arcadia Valley, yearly the mecca of hundreds of tourists from Missouri and a dozen surrounding states.

Arcadia Valley, unlike the broad, farflung valleys one so frequently finds in motoring through Missouri, is narrow and not long, and nestles between the pine-clad ramparts of Old Tom Sauk Mountain and Shepherd Mountain, two of the highest hills the north-central Ozarks range. Yet despite its narrow confines this valley affords to motorists and vacationists much that is not found elsewhere.

Historic Towns.

In Arcadia Valley are the historic towns of Pilot Knob, Ironton and Arcadia. Here, too, is Lake Killarney, through the channel of which Gen. Price led his Southern troops in a skirmish against Fort Davidson, the Federal stronghold at the foot of Pilot Knob—which is still intact even to the moat thrown 'round it by the Northerners.

The history of this valley, and its environs, is as romantic as its landscapes are magnificent. Pilot Knob, with its grim story of bloodshed during the Civil War; Pilot Knob Mountain, with its gaping escarpments, its honeycombed interior where secret fraternities were wont to congregate in the days past; Cedar Mountain, Shepherd Mountain, Sunset Rock, and Old Tom Sauk, whose pinion-clad crest is visible 25 miles, the Shut-Ins of Stout Creek, where a turbulent mountain stream rages over mighty boulders and sprawling ledges of sheet rock; and an artificial lake on the shores of which are a number of good resorts where one may spend the week-end or extended vacation—all these things are found in Arcadia Valley.

Royal Gorge Beautiful.

Beyond Arcadia Valley lies a singularly delightful country, and the motorist, tiring of the valley, can return to Ironton and proceed over State Highway No. 21 to Tip Top, Glover and Lesterville. At all of these points are found good resorts, fine fishing and true Ozark scenery. Royal Gorge, near Glover, with its winding mountain trails, its lofty peaks and deep valleys, should not be missed, for it is one of the beauty spots of the Ozarks.

Flat River, 67 miles beyond St. Louis, on U. S. Highway No. 61, the St. Louis-Arkansas border route, via Fredericktown and Cape Girardeau—is virtually the gateway to Arcadia Valley and its environs. From Flat River, State No. 32 is followed to Bismarck, and from this point a county road is traversed through Doe Run, Iron Mountain, Middlebrook to Pilot Knob. At Pilot Knob, State No. 21 is followed to Ironton, and Arcadia Valley lies here—Lake Killarney and its resorts being only three miles beyond.

From St. Louis to Flat River the highway is concreted. No. 32 is concreted through Flat River and Elvins, a mile beyond the former town. From this point to Pilot Knob the roads are gravel in very good condition. No. 21, from Pilot Knob to Ironton, is macadam. Beyond Ironton to Lake Killarney the road is dirt.

The "Royal Gorge," near Glover, Mo., on State Highway No. 21, beyond Arcadia Valley.

U. S. 50 BEING PAVED FROM GRAYS SUMMIT TO UNION

Concreting of the stretch on U. S. 50—the St. Louis-Kansas City route, via Sedalia—from the junction of the new right-of-way of U. S. 50 and the concrete of U. S. 66 4½ miles west of Grays Summit was begun this week. This job should be finished by September 1, according to George Ridgway, assistant divisional highway engineer at Webster Groves.

When this new stretch of U. S. 50 is opened a shorter route by 1½ miles will be provided from Grays Summit to Union. The old route of U. S. 50, from Grays Summit to Union will continue in use until September.

The completion of this project will mark the end of construction activities on U. S. 50 for 1927 and possibly no concrete will be laid on this route in 1928, highway engineers say. Beyond Union virtually all the way to Kansas City this road has been graveled and is being rigorously maintained by the highway department.

ALL MISSOURI ROADS IN GOOD CONDITION

New Right-of-Way on U. S. 66 Between Flat River and Farmington to Be Paved.

With fair weather virtually every day for the past 10 days highway conditions in Missouri have returned to normal for the first time in three months. All main highways are open to through traffic. Gravel roads are in good condition, and dirt roads are being scarified to eliminate ruts.

The ferry at Alton on State Highway No. 94 has resumed operation for the first time since early spring, so all ferries in the State are now operating on regular schedule.

Paving work is being pushed throughout the State. With projects under way at present on U. S. 66—the St. Louis, Springfield-Joplin route, via Rolla—on U. S. 50—the St. Louis-Kansas City route, via Sedalia—and on U. S. 61, south—the St. Louis-Arkansas border route, via Cape Girardeau—the end of paving activities is in sight. Since virtually less than 100 miles of concrete is scheduled to be laid in Missouri during 1927, the completion of these projects will let less than 25 miles of roadways remain for paving.

The contract was let this week for paving of U. S. 66 from Flat River to Farmington over the 5.2 mile new right-of-way laid out in early spring. Paving will start in 10 days and is scheduled for completion Jan. 1, 1928. This, likewise, ends construction work on U. S. 61 for 1927.

A contract was also let this week for 6½ miles of concrete from the present concrete on U. S. 30—about three miles beyond the Fenton bridge—to House Springs. This project should be completed by Sept. 15, and when opened to traffic will eliminate the Eureka detour now in use from Fenton to House Springs.

Road conditions in Southeast Missouri have returned to normal. State No. 25—the Festus-Crystal City-Arkansas border route, via Jackson and Kennett—is again open to through travel. Other main roads are clear throughout this division.

PACKARD BUILDS ONE OF FASTEST TRACKS

New Proving Ground Has Concrete Speedway 2 1-2 Miles Long for Testing.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, Mich., July 9.—The Packard Motor Car Company has just completed a new proving ground with a two and a half mile concrete track which is said to be one of the fastest motor speedways in the world. The course is the same length as the famous Indianapolis speedway, but is oval in shape, instead of rectangular with corners rounded. The easier turns are banked at such a steep angle as to permit far greater speed than is possible on the Hoosier course, the factory says.

The new testing plant embraces 300 acres of ground.

Provision has been made for a large airplane landing field inside the speedway oval. Plane runways in this field will be of considerably greater length than at the landing field maintained by Packard for years and only abandoned with the acquisition of the new property.

At the track, which represents the very latest thing in reinforced road construction, a combination gate lodge, garage and testing laboratory is nearing completion. It will provide, with the outdoor equipment, every known facility for the testing of automobiles.

The gate lodge part of the building has living quarters for those in charge of the grounds and fully equipped quarters for engineers and for mechanics and testers.

Because of the high speed possible on the track, cars under test cover as many miles in ten days as they would in a whole year in the hands of the average automobile owner.

The entire proving grounds equipment, including the track is another step taken by Packard to insure the best possible performance, safety, satisfaction and long life in its cars, according to Packard officials.

SUNDAY TOUR THROUGH OLD SPANISH SECTION OF ST. LOUIS COUNTY

by oxen cart wheels and dangerous of travel—not at all the smooth ribbons of macadam and gravel of today.

Old World Atmosphere.

Motorists traversing these roads today feel something of the old Spanish influence which once haloed the country—in the dreamy countryside sweeping away from the roadway, in the staid, Old World atmosphere of Florissant, old Fort Bellefontaine and the numerous and quaint villages one passes through. No more delightful day's trip can be made than this one through the "Illinois Country."

St. Louis is left by way of Broadway, thence onto Riverview drive to Chain of Rocks.

Chain of Rocks is the site of the waterworks system of the City of St. Louis. This waterworks is the largest of its kind in the United States. The buildings of this great plant, hard by the river, are surmounted by a park of trees, rising above a blanket of grass. From the topmost points in the park one may view the country for miles around, in both Missouri and Illinois. In the park is ample provision for picnicking. An hour can be spent profitably wandering through the waterworks.

Those wishing to make the entire trip leave Chain of Rocks over the continuation of Riverview drive, passing the Riverview Country Club grounds to the right and enter Larimore road. This road, as is the case with all other roads on the trip, is in good to fair condition.

At mile 15 from St. Louis, Larrimore road is intersected by Bellefontaine road. Here one turns right on Bellefontaine road and two miles to the north arrives at Spanish Lake. From this point one may continue north on Bellefontaine road to old Fort Bellefontaine.

Old Spanish Fort.

Fort Bellefontaine was the site of a fort when Spain controlled the Upper Louisiana territory, later becoming a Federal military post when the United States took possession of Missouri in 1804. Here, too, one can visit Bellefontaine Farms, a city-controlled institution for the correction of erring youth.

Returning to Spanish Lake, the motorist drives to Black Jack over Parker road, a macadam stretch in very good condition. Entering Black Jack, one should note Salem Lutheran Church on the left, one of the largest edifices of its kind in the county.

Florissant is the next point of interest. But for the ever-present motor car one, looking at the quaint old structures, the century-old parish buildings of St. Ferdinand Church, might feel as if he had suddenly been thrust back through a century of time. The little village, history relates, was first settled by the French in 1763, during the Spanish regime.

Inspection of St. Ferdinand Parish buildings is of especial interest. The first of these was erected in 1818, the second in 1819 and the third, the church, in 1820. The first is the parish residence; the one erected in 1819 is the habitat of the Sisters of Loretto, formerly having domiciled the Sisters of the Sacred Heart. It is in these buildings that one senses the French influence. The architecture is that of the French eighteenth century.

First Indian School.

Here many skirmishes were fought with the Shawnee Indians, who proved a real menace in the early days and massacred numbers of settlers over a period of years. The danger from Indians continued until well into the nineteenth century. It is likewise of interest that the first Indians' school in the United States, St. Regis Seminary, was opened at Florissant in May, 1824.

After an hour or so at Florissant the motorist can leave the village over Graham road and Brown road, passing St. Louis country day school on the left, and into Natural Bridge road, thence through Carsonville and over the Carson road to St. Charles and back into St. Louis.

NEW REO SPEED WAGONS NOW BEING DELIVERED

Deliveries of the new Reo Junior Speed Wagon panel model are being made, Reo St. Louis, Inc., states. A start is being made also in making deliveries of the new 1½-ton Speed Wagon, which lists at $1345 up. The Junior panel model, incidentally, lists at $1085.

Reo Speed Wagons now all have six-cylinder engines, four-wheel brakes and pneumatic tires. Road speed, driver comfort and fast performance with capacity loads have been built into all models.

The trend in highway transport has been steadily toward higher speed and flexibility, and the new Reo Speed Wagons have been designed to meet this tendency.

PONTIAC — Chief of the Chiefs — Product of General Motors

For the fifteen months following its introduction, the Pontiac Six was acclaimed everywhere as a value never before known in the field of low-priced sixes.

It was a car so sturdy, so comfortable, so pronounced in its beauty and thrift, that Pontiac Six production broke all records for a new make of car.

Then recently came the New and Finer Pontiac Six at sharply reduced prices. It introduced new Fisher bodies—longer, lower and styled to arresting new standards of beauty.

It offered such important refinements as tilting-beam headlights with foot control, more convenient operating levers and a clutch of even smoother action.

And over night, almost, Pontiac Six sales swept to new and sensational figures. For here was even greater value because of greater quality at lower prices!

If you have not seen the New and Finer Pontiac Six—

—if you have not acquainted yourself with its new qualities of luxury and distinction—

—come in and learn how, for as little as $775, you can now obtain a six-cylinder Sedan whose beauty, performance and reliability are responsible for the greatest success ever enjoyed by a car of its type.

This mark identifies the guaranteed
Gold Seal Buick

We are now selling a new type of used car—a car that you can buy without the slightest doubt or hesitation—the Gold Seal Buick.

We select a limited number of Buicks from our used car stock. These cars are carefully inspected and put in first-class condition in our shops. After this they pass rigid tests to show that they are fit. Then they are marked with the Buick Gold Seal.

They carry our full guarantee—the same kind of guarantee the Buick factory gives on new Buicks. And we back up this guarantee with new car service.

Ask to see these Gold Seal Buicks at our used car showroom. We will be glad to explain how Buick's Gold Seal protects you.

NEW CHRYSLER MODELS BEING DISPLAYED HERE

Six Body Styles of "Great New '62" Distinguished by Low Bodies, Small Wheels.

Sweeping lines, low bodies and small wheels are distinguishing features of the "Great New '62" Chrysler model which is being displayed in St. Louis for the first time by Midwest Motors, Inc., Chrysler distributer. The new line includes at present two-door and four-door sedans, priced at $1145 and $1245 list, respectively, roadster and coupe styles priced at $1175 and $1245 in the order named, a phaeton which is priced at $1095, and a landau sedan priced at $1295 list.

Engine and chassis developments combine numerous features which are termed new in the price class of this model and several that are most significant.

Corresponds to "60" Model.

The new model corresponds in a general way to model "60," which has enjoyed wide distribution in recent months, but has been stepped up in speed and acceleration, as the new designation indicates.

Longer bodies, closed-car roofs curving downward in the rear, well streamed lines, late design drum headlights and other features contribute to the freshened aspect of the line. As for comfort, saddle spring cushions, such as are found in cars of much higher price, fine figured mohair upholstery material in the closed bodies and leather in the open types, are to be noted, along with other refinements.

Catering to the individuality of the driver, the steering columns on all these new cars are adjustable to three positions. The front seat in the touring car is adjustable to six positions. Worm and sector steering gear has been adopted. The power plant is mounted on rubber insulators at the rear to insure quieter performance. The transmission is larger and heavier, while ball and trunnion type universal joints are employed. Among other engine changes is an improved water circulation thermostat, while cellular type radiators are used.

New Crankcase Ventilator.

A brand-new feature is the crankcase ventilating system which is unique in its way. The crankcase filler, located at the front of the engine on the left side, is provided with an air cleaner, similar to that attached to the carbureter. Air is drawn in through this device and whirled around in the case by the motion of the crankshaft. At the rear of the case is a cored hole leading downward and backward through which the air is exhausted after cooling the interior of the base and removing steam and excessive oil spray.

Circulation is established by the suction caused by the fan and also by the forward motion of the car, so that a current of filtered air sweeps around and through the case at all times. This provision is an important addition to the equipment of the machine and serves to increase its "life expectancy" and dependability of operation very materially. Also by maintaining an even and lower temperature it renders lubrication more effective.

CHAMBERS AND LONG, INC., INCREASING FLOOR SPACE

In anticipation of the volume of business that is expected to follow the arrival of the new Ford models here Chambers & Long, downtown Ford dealers, are remodeling their building at 1123 Pine street to provide additional display space and better facilities for handling the new cars.

570 PER CENT INCREASE IN SALES OF REOS IN ST. LOUIS

Large sales increases since introduction of the new Reo "Flying Cloud" and "Wolverine" models are reported by Reo St. Louis, Inc.

Retail sales of Reo cars in the St. Louis metropolitan district increased 350 per cent in May, as compared with Reo sales in May, 1926, the company reports. The sales increase in June was 570 per cent over June, 1926.

Reo sales this month are running at an even faster rate, the firm reports. This is ascribed both to the striking improvements in the "Flying Cloud" and "Wolverine" models in speed, power and appearance, and to the fact that there are to be no changes in Reo design this summer or fall, Reo confining model changes to the first of the year.

NEW TIRE TIME PAYMENT FINANCING PLAN IN ST. LOUIS

The General Tire Acceptance Corp., which finances time payments on auto and truck tires, has entered St. Louis. Formed as a subsidiary of the General Tire and Rubber Co., Akron, O., it will handle time sales by the General Tire distributor here, which is the General Tire Co. of St. Louis.

Under the plan, the purchaser of a General tire may pay for it on a time basis without interest, commission or brokerage charges, these being absorbed by the distributor. Prices of tires sold under the plan are according to the regular retail schedule.

It was explained by the General Tire Co. of St. Louis that the unusual feature of the plan was that it provided for time payments without heavy charges.

CHRYSLER MAKES 3175 MILE TRIP IN 89 HOURS

A standard Chrysler "70" recently was driven for 3175 miles around the Union of South Africa in high gear at the rate of more than 35½ miles an hour. The running time was 89 hours and 26 minutes, the factory says. The Chrysler used in this run already had a reputation in South Africa, says the factory. It was the same car that last year ran from Johannesburg to Cape Town and beat the "Union Express," a crack railroad train of South Africa.

"The car's speedometer showed more than 32,000 miles of driving before the start of its latest run."

In the Spotlight of highest public favor
more than ever Riding is like flying

The starter on the instrument board is especially appreciated by women, and a particular convenience in starting on hills. The new sliding seat arrangement illustrated above, permits entry and exit without disturbing front seat passengers. One merely leans forward in the seat to allow passage room; then leans back to restore the firm position shown by dotted lines.

New advantages never associated with this price-field, single out the Greater Essex Super-Six with spotlight brilliancy, marking it farther than ever above all comparison.

And public acceptance, intensified by knowledge that the most popular Essex of history was withdrawn to make way for it, has swept the country in a nation-wide buying fervor that quickly outran the greatest of all Essex production schedules.

All that the previous Essex stood for—speed, reliability and a riding ease that was like flying—is here in greater and more enjoyable degree. There is greater power, pickup and performance. There is greater luxury and comfort in these longer, roomier, more beautifully finished bodies. But no words can adequately describe the totally different thrill of this new transportation. No price comparison can give any expectation of the quality, value and zestful performance exclusive to this car.

A ride will reveal a silky flow of power—a smooth indifference to road conditions—a quiet, ease and simplicity of operation that will delight you.

In price, maintenance and long life these qualities are economical to own and employ. Even though production is greatest in Essex history, demand is so large that we must handle all deliveries on the basis of priority of orders.

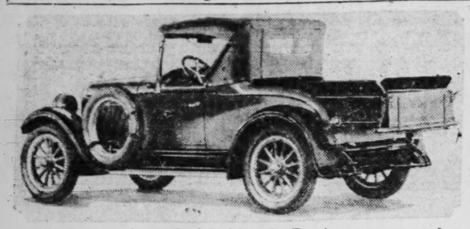
New Pontiac "Slip-On" Commercial Body



This body can be used with either the Pontiac coupe or roadster. A closed panel body is also being offered.

What's New in Cars

New Dodge 6 Cabriolet on Display

A four-passenger cabriolet roadster with rumble seat, the second of the new Dodge six-cylinder models, is on display by Tate Motor Car Co., Dodge distributor. The new car is a companion car to the four-door, five-passenger, six-cylinder sedan which was originally displayed here several weeks ago.

"An entirely new feature of this car is the way in which the top is constructed. The front of the top is built integral with the windshield pillars. Only the back quarter can be lowered, the break being made at the pillars at the rear of the doors. This type of construction represents an advanced idea in design and has the important advantage of giving unusual rigidity and strength to the top.

"The entire front of the car is distinctively new. It is built like the popular six-cylinder sedan, with deep radiator.

"The rumble seat is spacious, and upholstered in fine leather, harmonizing with the other details of interiortrim."

New Colors for Hup "8" Sedan

A new color combination on the Hupmobile 8-cylinder, 5-passenger, 4-door sedan is being displayed by the Weber Implement and Automobile Co., Hupmobile distributor.

The car on display has a black body and running gear and red disc wheels.

The top likewise is black and is set off by red window reveal.

A double black beading with a gold centerline is carried around the body. A single black beading with gold centerline is carried out along the hood.

Hood louvres are striped with gold.

Radiator shell and drum headlamps are nickeled.

Elcar Landau and Sedan on Display

A 4-passenger landau with rumble seat and collapsible top, and a 5 pasenger, 2-door sedan are the newest Elcar 6 models to be displayed by Benjamin Motor Co., Stutz-Elcar distributor here.

The 4-passenger landau is priced at $1495 list and the sedan lists at $1395.

The landau has a gray body and black running gear. Wheels are wire done in green.

The body beading is black with two parallel hairline stripes.

Upholstery is both front compartment and rumble seat is mottled gray Spanish leather.

The sedan has a sea green body and top. Wheels are natural wood. Upholstery is blue velour.

The body beading is pea green and is carried along each side of the hood.

Gardner "King's Roadster" Introduced

A new model on the Gardner "80" chassis—the "King's Roadster"—is being shown by the Steinger-Tuthill Co., distributer.

This is one of the most striking-looking cars seen in St. Louis in a long time. It is done in a three-color scheme—red upper body, Burgundy lower body, running gear in black, with six disc wheels standard.

The bead is in cream, with red striping, and the doors carry each a horizontal panel outlined in red-striped cream, with sky blue center.

Both front compartment and rumble seat are upholstered in pigskin.

Two tops go with the car—one in khaki, the other in black, the one not in use being stored in its own compartment.

This Gardner may be obtained with a special read-end motor camping trunk, fitted with a refrigerator and a full set of dishes.

New Colors of Nash Advanced 6 Sedan

Among the interesting color combinations on the new Nash Advanced Six line is that on the four-door sedan of this model being displayed by Southwest Nash Co., Nash distributer. This car is gray-green below the moulding, black above the moulding and black above the upper moulding. There are two ivory stripes with carmine center stripe on the black moulding. Special moulding on Nash maroon panel is carried on the rear doors.

Window reveals are gray-green.

This car is priced at $1925 list.

Days of the "Flying Cloud" and Its Fellows Recalled by Showing of "The Yankee Clipper."

The days when American sailing vessels ruled the seven seas and the "Flying Cloud," after which the larger of the two new Reo models has been named, was the swiftest of them all, are recalled by the moving picture, "The Yankee Clipper," which is being shown this week in a St. Louis theater.

An American ship's fight with storm and wave in a 16,000-mile race for the prize of Chinese commerce is one of the dramatic episodes of the photoplay.

The story of the film deals with Hal Winslow, a young seaman whose father has invented the design of a fast clipper ship. The son sails the vessel to Foo Chow, China, for a cargo of tea. Here Winslow meets Jocelyn, a beautiful girl who is engaged to a man named Richard, who proves himself both a coward and a cad.

At a dinner given by Chinese merchants, it is agreed that two ships—"The Yankee Clipper," commanded by Winslow, and "The Lord of the Isles," a British ship owned by Jocelyn's father—shall carry cargoes of tea to Boston, and that the vessel winning the race shall have the monopoly of the tea-carrying trade.

On the day that the race begins, Jocelyn and Richard go aboard "The Yankee Clipper" to bid Winslow good-by. Winslow decides to keep both aboard the vessel so that Jocely may learn the real character of Richard.

The interest of Americans in the clipper ship era, as depicted in "The Yankee Clipper," is largely due to the Reo Motor Car Co. in naming its new line of passenger cars after the most famous of all the clippers, the "Flying Cloud." This ship was launched in 1851, and embodied endurance and beauty never surpassed by any other sailing vessel.

F. N. DELAVAN SALES CHIEF FOR SOUTHWEST NASH CO.

F. N. Delavan has been appointed general sales manager of the Southwest Nash Co., St. Louis Nash distributer. He succeeds O. C. Hazelrigg, who has resigned to organize the Laclede Nash Co.

Delavan has been associated with Nash for the past eight years, in Philadelphia and Pittsburg. Hazelrigg has been with the Southwest Nash Co. since 1920, the last four years as general sales manager.

HARDING MOTOR CO. TO SELL WILLYS-KNIGHT, WHIPPET CARS

Ray C. Harding, president and general manager of the Harding Motor Co., 622 St. Louis avenue, East St. Louis, has just announced that, effective immediately, his organization will be devoted to the handling exclusively of Willys-Knight and Whippet cars. The Harding Motor Co. is one of the large auto dealers in this region. For the past eight years," Harding said, its sales have been more than 400 cars per year."

Although the firm did not announce the taking over of the Willys-Overland franchise until today, it has been operating for 12 days as Willys-Knight and Whippet dealer and in that time delivered 24 new cars.

Thirty people are employed by the firm. This number undoubtedly will be increased when it is settled in its new building on St. Louis avenue," Harding said. "We will probably be able to deliver 250 Willys-Knights and Whippets in East St. Louis in the balance of this year, and next year with business normal our deliveries should approximate 600 units."

AUBURN INCREASES CAPITAL STOCK TO 500,000 SHARES

At a meeting of the stockholders of the Auburn Automobile Co. in Chicago last week an increase of the capital stock from 120,000 shares of $25 par value to 500,000 shares of no par was approved.

The company reported that the profit for the first six months, ending May 31, was $865,869, against $560,848. This was after taxes and charges.

Business of the Auburn company so far this year has practically equalled the entire year of 1926, says its president, E. L. Cord. The outlook for the future remains good, both from the standpoint of profits and sales volume.

Modern—The only light car offering 4-wheel brakes as national standard equipment.

Most economical car in America—proved in a nation-wide test among more than 5,000 owners who average 38.6 miles per gallon. Whippet holds the A. A. A. Coast-to-Coast economy record.

Higher speed—You can do 55 miles an hour in a Whippet. The low gravity center keeps the car safely hugging the road.

Quick pickup—Fastest of any car of its size and weight. 5 to 30 miles an hour in 13 seconds.

Oversize balloons—For extra mileage and added comfort.

Snubbers—Another reason why the Whippet is the easiest-riding light car on the road.

Adjustable steering post—Easily fitted to any driver of any size or stature.

Force-feed lubrication—the oiling system you find on the highest-priced automobiles.

Roominess—Plenty of leg room for tall people in the front seat.

Full-vision body—Narrow front pillars on the enclosed bodies enable you to see clearly on all sides.

The unique bdoy and dash construction of the Whippet provides several more inches of leg room for the front seat passengers, greatly increasing comfort

GREAT NEW "62"

New Standards of Performance— New Quality—New Value—New Luxury

WALTER P. CHRYSLER and his engineers present today a new car—the great six-cylinder "62"—which carries the name Chrysler still more emphatically to the head and front of the procession of engineering and manufacturing progress, and gives the buyer higher quality and greater value than was ever before possible in its class.

The great new Chrysler "62" surpasses even its predecessor the "60," hailed heretofore as the finest piece of six-cylinder engineering and mechanism ever produced in its field.

It was conceived and executed in obedience to the Chrysler conviction that the pioneer of new motoring principles and greater values must keep on pioneering to deserve and hold the leadership the public confers on him.

The great new Chrysler "62" is deliberately designed to give so much more for the money invested than any or all of the fifteen-odd sixes of similar size and type now made in this country, that the shrewd buying sense of more than 500,000 American buyers will bring realization that they simply cannot approach "62" value in any other cars.

No one can see, or drive, or even read the general specifications of the great new "62" without marveling at the value which Chrysler Standardized Quality has packed into its appearance, its manufacture and its unapproached performance.

Standardized Quality—extending its benefits to four great lines of cars—specifying uniformity in high grade steels and all other materials—setting new close limits of precision manufacture—establishing new standards of accuracy of inspection—cutting down costs but always raising quality to higher levels—this exclusive Chrysler principle makes it possible to produce in the great, new Chrysler "62" a six that leaps beyond the bounds of all competition.

Drive the great new "62" today. Any Chrysler dealer will gladly give you complete proof of its supreme value.

New Chrysler "Red-Head" Engine— Greater Power, Pick-up, Hill-Climbing Ability

The new Chrysler "Red-Head" engine offers the fullest advantages of extra speed, acceleration and hill-climbing ability inherent in modern high-compression gas.

"Red-Head" high-compression engines—identified by the red color of the engine head—are standard equipment on the Roadsters of the new Chrysler "62". They are also available for all other body types of the "62", as well as on all body models of the "70" and Imperial "80" at slight extra cost.

Chrysler's new "Red-Head" can now be included also in the earlier "60", "70" and Imperial "80" models at a low and reasonable charge.

We will gladly give you full particulars and an impressive demonstration of the "Red-Head" engine advantages.

AMERICAN-BUILT CARS POPULAR IN EUROPE

Sturdy Construction, Better Performance, Cause, Says Moon Export Head.

Back from a three-months trip through Europe, during which time he visited Moon and Diana distributors in eleven European countries and Morocco, Edmund H. Serrano, director of exports for the Moon Motor Car Co., said in a recent interview, concerning the automobile situation as he found it in Europe, that the most significant thigh regarding the automobile situation in Europe at the present time is the growing popularity of American made cars over there.

"This, too," said Serrano, "despite the high tariff imposed upon American cars in a number of the European countries. This tendency toward American cars is undoubtedly based upon the superb performance, built-in quality, ease of handling and the sturdy construction of American automobiles.

"France, Italy, Germany, Spain and Switzerland, all of which have made great progress in recent years in road building, now have under serious consideration even greater road building programs, and England, a world pioneer in building fine roads, is contemplating an enormous expansion in her road building program. There is much to be done before the proposed network of special motor roads becomes a reality. Meantime, a greater part of highway traffic in Europe is still of the horse-drawn variety.

"The used car situation in Europe is very much the same as in this country, especially in England, Spain and Sweden. In Italy, France and Belgium the used car situation is becoming somewhat of a problem as the potential market for used cars is small since the trade-ins are mostly old European models.

"Few, if any of the larger banks in Europe finance automobile sales. Ready money is comparatively scarce. There are, however, a number of special banking institutions which make a business of financing retail dealers and purchasers who buy their automobiles on the deferred payment plan, a procedure much along the lines as used here except that the rates of interest are much higher than in the United States."

DEBAKER SHIPPING NSW DELIVERY MODELS

Distributor to Have Units on Display Next Week.

deliveries of its new ¾-ton delivery units have been started by Studebaker Corp. of America, and will be displayed in St. Louis this week for the first time by Cartwright Motor Car Co., Studebaker-Erskine distributor. It is reported this week that several shipments were on the way from the factory.

These commercial cars, designed in response to the demand for delivery units of high quality and attractive appearance, were first announced by the Corporation early in June. Although actual deliveries were held up somewhat, distributors and branches have been working on the new line and report a substantial amount of advance business, based solely on photographs and the reputation of the Studebaker Standard 6-x chassis on which the panel and screen models are mounted.

Both bodies are finished in rich blue with contrasting belts and body stripping. The color combination, of which there are several variations, harmonize beautifully with the black enameled fenders and dust aprons. Both cars sell at $1195 at the factory.

WHIPPET FIRST BIRTHDAY CELEBRATED WITH A CAKE

A large Whippet birthday cake, is attracting attention at the retail store of Willys-Overland, Inc., Twenty-third and Locust streets. The cake, featuring a guessing contest, marks the first anniversary of the first European type light car built by an American manufacturer.

Commenting on the anniversary of the Whippet and on the general acceptance of this type of construction, W. A. Elliot, branch manager of Willys-Overland, Inc., recalled that it had established a remarkable record in the first year of production, in which time sales reached 110,000. This, he said, was a notable achievement for a car in its first year.

"The Whippet birthday cake will be on display in our retail store at Twenty-third and Locust streets for the next 10 days," Elliot said. "One is at liberty to come to the showroom and ask questions and make an inspection of this cake at any time."

LEE SEALS SPEEDOMETER IN CAR FIGURING IN CONTEST

"When Fred D. Turrill, retail sales manager of Willys-Overland, Inc., St. Louis, asked me to superintend the setting of the speedometer on a car which figures in a guessing contest," said Capt. Robert E. Lee, manager of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' Association, "I said to him: Do you want this contest to be absolutely square?' 'We do,' he answered. Then I said, 'take the speedometer out and give it to me.'

"The speedometer was taken out of the touring car, and I took it to the Stewart-Warner service station, 3210 Locust street, where with the aid of Dan Hyland, manager of that business, we dissembled the speedometer, which is a Stewart. Then I personally set the figures Then I pasted a sticker over the glass so nobody could see the number and the mechanics put the speedometer together and put it on the testing machine. On that testing machine I ran it up approximately 200 miles more, took it off of the machine myself and took it back to my office.

"There I pasted surgeon's tape over the number and put my signature on it so no person could see under it, and the speedometer was sealed so that the number could not be changed.

"As it now stands, but one person in the world knows what this number is and that is me."

WAYNE BODY PLANT SOLD BY GRAHAMS TO PAIGE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, Mich, July 9.—Another important step in the expansion plans of the Paige-Detroit Motor Car Co. came with the purchase of the Wayne body plant by Paige from the new Paige heads, the Graham brothers.

The Wayne plant, acquired sometime ago by the Grahams from Wayne Body Corporation, was built by Harroun Motors and recently was appraised at $1,250,000. The original plant affords 200,000 square feet of floor space and an addition of 40,000 square feet is under construction.

Capacity production at the body plant, with a force of 1000 skilled men, is expected to be reached during the fall of this year.

The transaction was closed without profit to the Grahams, the three brothers having turned the plant over to the motor company at the same advantageous price at which they purchase dit.

CONSTRUCTION OF $175,000 FIRESTONE PLANT HERE BEGUN

Construction was begun this week of a three-story brick and concrete building at 4332 Forest Park boulevard which will be headquarters of the St. Louis branch of the Firestone Tire and Rubber Co. The building, which is being erected at a cost of $175,000 including site, will be completed in October, according to W. G. Sabine, local manager of the Firestone Tire and Rubber Co.

It will front 60 feet on a 120 foot site facing Forest Park boulevard and will be 173 feet deep. The lot on which the building is being built is 192 feet deep. The space in the rear of the building will be used for a shipping switch from the main line of the Wabash Railroad.

The first floor of the new building is to be used for an order and delivery department. The executive offices will be on the second floor. The third floor will house the stock departments.

The present office of the branch is at 3203 Locust street.

FOUR SCOUT TROOPS GRADE 100 AT CAMP

Unusual Record Made at Lions' Den Reservation During Fourth of July Holidays.

Four troops, 18, 52, 206 and Webster Groves 12, were awarded grades of 100 for conducting perfect camps at the Lions' Den Reservation, the week-end camp of the St. Louis Boy Scout Council, near Imperial, Mo., during the Fourth of July week-end encampment. Ordinarily it is unusual for even one troop to make a perfect score, as judgment is based on the way the camp is set up, conduct of the boys while there, participation in camp activities, work accomplished, and the condition in which the site is left after camp is broken.

Nine troops took advantage of the Lions' Den accommodations during the holidays, making, all told, 140 scouts in camp. Besides the four winning troops mentioned, Troops 33, 70, 157, 195 and 220 were on the reservation. Each troop built an individual council fire Saturday evening, but on Sunday night all gathered around a central fire for a combined Stunt night, each troop putting on one stunt. The stunt event was won by Troop 157. The Mothers' Club of Troop 206 came to camp on the Fourth and spent the day with the troop.

A total of 868 scouts and scoutmasters have attended the Lions' Den this spring and summer, although it has been officially opened for use every day only during the last two weeks.

The Reservation, which has accommodations for about 300 boys, is in the charge of Merle Shippey, field executive of the South District. Shippey also is in direct charge of the Unattached Camp, for scouts who may come to the den unaccompanied by adult leaders. All scouts who come with leaders are in their charge, the leader being responsible to Director Shippey.

The camp is free to all St. Louis—city and county scouts, scout leaders and troop committeemen, but application for reservations must be made in advance at local headquarters, no one being allowed to camp without a permit. Equipment may be taken along, or may be rented from the camp quartermaster for a nominal sum. Supplies and personal effects, however, must be furnished by the camper.

The Lions' Den may be reached by automobile by way of the old Lemay Ferry road to Sieckman, about 30 miles south of the city. The St. Louis Council maintains a bus service from the end of the Bellefontaine car line. The fare is 25 cents each way.

Boy Scout Troop Notes

North District.

Three scouts of Troop 3 took a 14-mile hike to Falling Springs yesterday. At the last meeting five scouts passed the first-aid test. Seven visitors present complimented the boys on the work the troop is doing. Scoutmaster Simons is leaving for camp today.

Troop 206 took a hike to Lions' Den over the Fourth of July. Outdoor Committeeman Godtt, Educational Committeeman Judge, Thrift Member Committeeman Knollman, Scoutmaster Herzog, Assistant Scoutmaster Cameron and 13 scouts were present. Monday morning 21 visitors came out, including the mothers of some of the scouts.

Troop 122, of the Sherman Park Community Center, went on an overnight hike to Gilmore, Mo., on Frank Dittsmeier's game reserve last Saturday and Sunday. Thirty-two scouts, five fathers, Scoutmaster Frank, and Assistant Scoutmaster Charlwood were present. Saturday night they had a council fire and a few stunts were given. Sunday morning everybody went to church at Dardeur. The afternoon program was made up of different tests and games. Several scouts passed their swimming tests. Troop 122 now has 23 boys signed up for the third section in camp and six for the last section. This troop has filled its second quarter's objectives.

Troop 237 went on an overnight test-passing hike, to Monks Mound, Ill., last week-end, under the leadership of the senior patrol leader. Watches were kept Saturday night, as several men had threatened to raid the camp. The men did come back that evening, but did no damage, as the father of the scribe was with the boys. The troop defeated the Eagle patrol of Troop 243 in a baseball game on Sunday by a score of 11 to 4. Second class tests also were passed that day.

The Wolf and Tiger patrols of Troop 42 are tied with one award ribbon each, in an inter-patrol contest being conducted by the troop, the Wolves having won the first weekly contest, in knot-tieing, and the Tigers the second, in fire-building. Contests will be held weekly for two months, the winners being awarded these ribbons for their totem-poles. The patrol with the largest number of ribbons will win the contest. The event this week will be first aid. The troop attended an investiture ceremony at the Bethany Church June 17, at which time Troop 144 was admitted as an active member of the North District. Field Executive Jack Wright gave a talk on scouting, and showed motion pictures of Camp Irondale.

The scouts of Troop 214 took a three-day hike to Cedar Hill last week-end, making the trip by truck. Sunday was spent fishing, hiking and playing games, with singing around the council fire in the evening. The parents came out to camp Monday, the scouts hiking three miles to the road in the morning to meet them. After a dinner of hunters' stew the afternoon was spent fishing and playing cards. Camp was broken at 5 o'clock.

South District.

Troop 157, of Advent Lutheran Church, held its first overnight hike of the season at Lions Den over the Fourth of July, 13 scouts, two committeemen, Mr. Schmidt and Mr. Buergler, and Scoutmaster Skinner composing the party. The troop, led by Scout Nicholas Koestner, won the inter-patrol campfire stunt contest held Sunday evening. A nature hike was held, at which time the scouts collected specimens for their troop museum.

Troop 141 left on a week-end hike Saturday, July 2, and came back Monday evening. Fifteen scouts and four adults were in attendance. Chairman of the Troop Committee Velton and Junior Assistant Scoutmaster Guletz were in charge of the hike, as Scoutmaster Stockhausen was ill and was unable to attend. Tests were passed and many games were played.

Troop 141 took a week-end hike last Saturday, Sunday and Monday out on Geyer Road, about a mile south of Big Bend Road. Fifteen scouts and four fathers were present, most of them going out early Saturday morning while the rest followed in the afternoon. A number of the scouts passed their cooking and fire-building tests. A number of games were played.

Troop 219, of the St. Marcus Evangelical Church, McNair and Russell, took a camping trip to a farm about three and a half miles southwest of Jefferson Barracks, over the Fourth, going in automobiles to the camping grounds. Bird and tree study hikes were taken, and games were played. The troop was treated cordially by the owner of the farm who gave it every courtesy possible, joining, with his family in playing games, the council fire and serving refreshments. The troop voted it to be the best hike it had ever taken.

Troop 143 went on its annual three-day camp at Big River July 2, 3 and 4, leaving at 1:45 Saturday and arriving at camp at 4 o'clock. Twenty scouts, Troop Committee Chairman Hartman, Assistant Scoutmaster Jones and Mr. Wollman and Mr. Burge were present. The scouts had an opportunity to give first aid in two automobile accidents, and did very well, showing they were scouts living up to the motto, "Be Prepared." Scout Hartman has just been commissioned senior patrol leader.

West District.

The overnight hike season for Troop 87, of United Hebrew Temple, began June 25, when they hiked to a log cabin near Rock Hill. The dew was so heavy early in the morning that blankets and scouts, who were sleeping in the open, were drenched. The scouts passed several tests before leaving home about 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon. This troop has been holding its meetings in Forest Park for the last month.

Four of Troop 30's hikers went to the Lions' Den last Sunday. The scouts made the entire trip, 20 miles in all, from the city limits to the reservation and back to the scout trading post in less than five and one-half hours. Scouts Francis Klein and Edward Hopper hiked the distance as a part of the Hiking Merit Badge, while Scouts Dave Priver and Morris Gollub made the trip merely to limber up for the summer hiking season. An interesting time was had at the reservation, and the scouts assisted at the campfire by putting on a short stunt.

The scouts of Troop 23 take this opportunity to thank Mr. Wuschke for letting them camp on his property over the Fourth. Scout Wuschke and another scout went ahead to lay a trail for the rest to follow. Scoutmaster Usher is planning to have another picnic in Forest Park soon. This troop is holding its meetings this summer in Forest Park.

Scout Abraham Light of Troop 59 has become a second-class scout. At the last meeting of this troop the boys received instructions in the correct way to fold the American flag.

Several boys were transferred to Troop 44 to a new troop, 94, at a joint meeting of the two at St. Rose's School, the meeting place of 44, last week. The Troop Committee of 94 met at St. Barbara's Hall Friday evening to formulate a program for the troop.

The Officers' Council, composed of the boy officers of Troop 30, planned and carried out the entire program of the troop's hike over the Fourth of July. An unusual feature was the assigning to every older scout of a younger one, to whom he was to give individual instruction in passing needed tests. The plan proved so successful that finally the Scribe formally requested the troop to suspend the system until he could get caught up on his test-passing records. The troop has adopted as its summer slogan "All scouts first class by school time." Group instruction in scouting tests, and patrol meetings occupied the last meeting of the troop. Eight scouts leave this week for the next section of Camp Irondale, and two others already are at Irondale, in the Tepee, or All-Summer, camp. The troop's library has been incorporated with the regular Y. M. H. A. Library, which has been made available to all scouts.

Suburban District.

Twelve boys of Webster Groves 10 were presented with their second class pins at an investiture ceremony held around a council fire at the troop's camp grounds west of the Webster Groves Orphans' Home. After swapping stories, the troop returned to the home, where a watermelon party was given in honor of the birthday of one of their new members.

Webster Groves 12 spent the Fourth of July holidays at the Lions' Den, where they were one of four troops awarded a grade of 100 for conducting a perfect camp.

Six scouts from Webster Groves 3 are attending the present section at Camp Irondale.

300 EAST ST. LOUIS SCOUTS GOING TO CAMP MENNENSAH

For Three Weeks They Will Live in Tents and Engage in Drill and Maneuvers.

About 300 Boy Scouts of East St. Louis will start to morrow on a three weks' vacation at Camp Mennensah, five miles south of Waterloo, Ill. Upon their return the Negro scouts will go to the same camp for a week. About 200 Girl Scouts of East St. Louis, who left for the camp on June 20, returned home July 5.

The Scouts, under the supervision of Scout Executive A. H. Gentiss, will live in tents and will engage in drill and maneuvers. On "Aviation Day" an army airman will fly to the camp.

ARCHBISHOP GLENNON TO LAY CORNERSTONE OF CHURCH

20,000 Expected to Attend Exercises of St. Joseph's Croatian Edifice Today.

Archbishop Glennon, assisted by the Rev. W. F. Linck and the Rev. Edward Amsinger, will officiate this afternoon at the corner-stone laying of St. Joseph's Croatian Church, Twelfth and Russell boulevards.

A parade, headed by mounted police, will march from Eleventh street and Chouteau avenue to Twelfth boulevard, and south to the new church. The parade, which will be led by William G. Piskulic, grand marshal, will include Zouaves, Knights of Columbus, Knights of St. George, children of St. Joseph's parish, Married Ladies' Sodalities, Young Ladies' Sodalities, Married and Young Men's Sodalities, Western Catholic Union, benevolent societies, and visiting parishes.

About 20,000 people are expected to attend the exercises, which will be held at 3 o'clock.

BOYS IN PARIS BUILD PLANES

Lindbergh's Flight Gives New Fad to Children in French Capital.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, July 9.—Lindbergh has changed the course of life for Paris children. They are building airplanes. Their great summer sport long has been sailing boats, chiefly on the fountain basins of the Luxemburg and Tuileries gardens. Big and little boys and even the girls make trips to Le Bourget airfield now to get ideas for designs and to worship the big machines that remind them of their American air hero. Airplanes are in the toy store windows. Airplane kites are having a new vogue. The really chic thing, however, is to build a plane with a twisted rubber to turn the propeller shaft, and "The Spirit of St. Louis" and "NX-211" scrawled over it.

RUHR MINING TOWN HOLDS WEEK OF SHAKSPEARE

Plays by Bard of Avon Draw Capacity Houses of German Workers.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, July 9.—Shakspearean plays draw capacity houses even in a mining and industrial city like Bochum. Bochum is a Westphalian town of 150,000 in the heart of the Ruhr coal district. Ambassador Jacob Gould Schurman learned this to his surprise when he was recently invited to attend the annual Shakspeare week.

This yearly event usually takes place at Weimar, the idyllic, almost dreamy Thuringian capital famous for its memories of Goethe, Schiller, and Liszt. To show that an industrial community also has an appreciation of such things the Shakspeare week was successfully transferred to Bochum.

"It is a great thing," Ambassador Schurman said, "for a commercial and industrial city like Bochum to make possible a Shakspeare week. Nowhere on earth is there anything like it. Nowhere else did anybody think of placing the works of the great poet right amidst the hard labors of everyday life—a symbol, as it were, of the close connection existing between the practical and the spiritual life of humanity. That Shakspeare's works should experience a modern resurrection in Bochum is a sign of the high culture of Germany."

WJAX JOINS BLUE CHAIN

Station WJAX at Jacksonville, Fla., has become a member of the Blue network of the National Broadcasting Co. Its first chain broadcast will be Wednesday evening when it will put the Maxwell Hour on the air. For the present this is the only WJZ feature that will be heard through WJAX, which is on a wave length of 890 kilocycles or 336.9 meters.

A Tip When Wiring.

A good plan to follow when wiring, from a blueprint or diagram is to place a crayon mark on the diagram over every completed connection after each lead has been connected up.

Correct Volume for Faithful Reproduction.

Try to keep from turning the controls of the set that will make the reproduced voice and music sound harsh and raucous and sound badly. To overcome such unsatisfactory results in a small apartment or house the volume control should be turned down so that the voice of an announcer issues from the loud speaker with the same intensity as ordinary human conversation.

Nowhere A Single Compromise With Quality

Knowing Hupmobile's reputation for high quality, you will be frankly amazed at the extra value in beauty and equipment that now surrounds the new Hupmobile Six—the closest-priced Six in America.

Distinctive low body lines with varied colors, clear vision bodies; genuine mohair upholstery; tilting beam headlights controlled from steering wheel; highest grade hardware; instruments grouped under glass, indirectly lighted; solid walnut steering wheel—all bespeak the attention to exterior details.

Supporting these features of comfort and luxury is an unusual ease of driving and control, due to advanced steering design and positive four-wheel brakes.

Smoothness is inherent in the Hupmobile Six engine by reason of the extra heavy, rigid crankshaft, balanced reciprocating parts, manifold heat control and a special vibration damper.

Now incorporating a full 10% higher quality with no advance in price, Hupmobile Six stands out and apart as the one great Six value in the medium-priced field. Arrange now to see and drive this car before making a final decision on your purchase.

What Station KSD Is to Broadcast This Week in Detail

The high level held by KSD's broadcasting thus far this summer is maintained this week with an American Legion program by Roxy's Gang, an Eveready organ recital and a concert by the Goldman Band among the features which begin this evening with the Capitol Family and Atwater Kent programs.

Several new members of Maj. Bowes' Capitol Theater Family will be heard tonight. Among them will be Dorys Le Vene, brilliant New York pianist, and Pauline Haggard, an exponent of concert songs, who plays her own piano accompaniments.

Paul Althouse, tenor, who will sing again in the Atwater Kent Hour tonight, through KSD, is to feature "Take All of Me," written by William Stickles, an American pianist-composer, in his Samoan love-song cycle. Althouse also will feature the tenor aria, "La Fleur que tu m'avais Jetee," from the first act of Bizet's opera "Carmen," which he frequently sang at the Metropolitan Opera.

The program follows:

"The Last Song" .....Rogers
"Moon Marketing" .....Carver
"Little House of Dreams"...Glass
"La Fleur que tu m'avais Jetee" .....Bizet
"Sacrament" .....MacDermid
"A Smile" .....Fromer
"Take All of Me".....Stickles

Monday on KSD

Two novelties will feature the program of Roxy and His Gang tomorrow evening. The American Legion will present the ritual of initiation of a member, and Gertrude Lang, petite blond singer dicovered by Roxy several years ago, now scheduled to play the leading role in "Half a Widow", will appear as guest artist.

The initiation ceremonies of the American Legion will follow the usual ritual, but the various parts in the ceremonies will be assumed by high officers and honor men of the Legion. In addition, Roxy will utilize various soloists of the Gang, supported by the hundred-voice chorus, the Russian Choir, the large organ, the group of syncopaters known as the Jazzmanians and the Cathedral Chimes of the Roxy Theater.

Tuesday on KSD

Lovers of the organ may dial in with anticipatio.. on Tuesday evening's Eveready Hour program.

Among the orchestral numbers planned in which the organ will have a prominent part are "In a Persian Market," "The Evening Star" from Wagner's "Tannhauser," Rubinstein's "Kamenoi Ostrow," and Bartlett's "A Dream."

"Nola," the piano novelty, has been transcribed by Nathaniel Shilkret for organ and orchestra, which also will play a transcription of one of Chopin's Preludes.

The 15-minute period of dance music, with which the summer Eveready Hours conclude, will complete the program.

"The Four Bards" on Tuesday evening will give a musical version of a night spent on a park bench in New York. "The Four Bards" will be assisted by the Angelus Trio.

The program follows: "Night," Schubert; "Serenade," Widor, Trio; "Mighty Lak a Rose," Nevins; "Ma Lil' Banjo," Dichmont; "Pastel Minuet," Paradis, Trio; "Water Lillies" Lindner; "Sleeping Beauty's Wedding," Tschaikowsky, Trio; "Stars of the Summer Night," "Narcissus," Nevin, Trio.

Coney Island, New York City's great summer playground, is the scene of the action surrounding Vivian, the "Coca-Cola Girl," and Freddy and James, in the episode to be broadcast through KSD on Tuesday evening.

Ray Scudder, virtuoso of the double Hawaiian guitar, will be featured in the "Cavalcade" through KSD Tuesday evening.

Several years ago he decided that the six-stringed guitar, universally used by steel guitar players, had a range too limited for complete harmony and his expanding musical ideas. He designed a special instrument with 12 strings. With this, he is able to play more involved selections, although he finds it necessary to employ 13 different tunings in major and minor.

Among those who will be included for "The Cavalcade" Tuesday evening will be Augustine Jacquilard, soprano, who will sing "The Indian Love Call" from "Rose Marie;" Peter Harrower and Dorothy Hemenway, the Farnassus Trio, Mack and Lennie in their own composition, "I Love You;" Mary Leaf, ukulele, and Horace Taylor in recitations.

Wednesday on KSD

Marsh McCurdy, noted American organist, will play in the organ master recitals through KSD Wednesday evening.

One of the selections which McCurdy will play is "The Afternoon of a Faun," by Debussy, which may be said to have crystallized the French modernists' early gropings for expression. The flute part gives expression to the Pipe of Pan played by the faun in a limpid, pastoral theme.

The program follows: Overture to "Midsummer Night's Dream," Mendelssohn; My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice from "Samson and Delilah," Saint-Saens; "Posseni Numi," Mozart; "Menuet," Veracini; "The Afternoon of a Faun," Debussy; medley from popular musical comedies of George Gershwin.

Following is the program of the Ipana Troubadours for Wednesday evening through KSD: "Smiles," "Sometimes I'm Happy," "Leonora," "Dawn of Tomorrow" 'cello solo, "Doll Dance," "Charmaine," "Just the Same," "Wrigo's Serenade" (string trio), "Ya! Ya!" "I'm in Love Again," "Smiles."

The Goodrich Silvertown Cord Orchestra and the Silver Masked Tenor, as usual, will conclude KSD'S broadcasting Wednesday night.

Thursday on KSD

The two-act comic opera, "The Mountebanks," will be presented for the first time by the National Light opera company in its broadcasting program Thursday evening through KSD.

This will be followed by dance music by Janssen's Hofbrau Orchestra.

Friday Night on KSD

In the program of the Cities Service Concert Orchestra and the Cities Service Cavaliers to be broadcast through KSD, Friday evening, Francis J. Lapitino, harp soloist, will participate.

The program follows:

"Cities Service March" (Bourdon); Overture to "Mignon" (Thomas); "Crazy Words," "Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep," quartet; "Madrlene" from "Le Cid" (Massenet); "Indian Dance" from "Wonderland" (Herbert); harp solo, Francis J. Lapitino, "The Swan," Saint-Saens; "Valse des Fleurs" Nutcracker Suite) (Tschaikowsky); "Forsaken," "I Don't Mind Being All Alone" quartet; 'cello solo by Lucien Schmit, "Orientale" (Cui); "Dragon Fly" (Strauss), harp solo by Francis J. Lapitino; "Carry Me Back to Old Virginny," quartet.

The half-hour "Musical Miniatures" to be broadcast Friday evening, through KSD is to be dedicated to California. The presentation will be by an orchestra, a male quartet and an alto soloist.

The program follows:

"To Mission San Francisco" (Strickland), orchestra; "The Lamp in the West" (Parker) male voices unaccompanied; "The Bells of San Gabriel" (Wenrich), alto; "In a Monastery Garden" (Ketelbey), orchestra with male voices (refrain); "The Voice of the Chimes" (Luigini), orchestra; "Angeles," from "The Serenade" (Herbert), alto solo with male voices and orchestra.

The La France Orchestra and "The Baritone With the Golden Voice" will broadcast as usual through KSD Friday evening.

A trio of violin, flute and harp will present through KSD on Friday evening a program of music entitled "Moon Magic," as follows:

"Down in the Forest .....Ronald
"On Wings of Song"..Mendelssohn
"Moonlight" .....Schumann
"Auf Dem Wasser Zu Singen—Schubert
"Du Bist die Ruh".....Schubert
"L' Heure Exquise".....Hahn

KSD's broadcasting Friday night will conclude with a period of dance music from WEAF, New York.

Saturday on KSD

Edwin Franko Goldman has found a few selections for children and a few more that are a little "grown up" in character which he has placed on his program for KSD Saturday evening. Del Staigers, cornetist, is to be the soloist. He will play Roger's "A Soldier's Dream."

The program follows:

"Wedding March" ....Mendelssohn
"Poet and Peasant" Overture—Suppe
"Melody in F".....Rubinstein
"Heart Wounds" .....Grieg
"Country Dance" .....Beethoven
Excerpts from "The Mikado"—Sullivan
Excerpts from "La Traviata" Verdi
"A Soldier's Dream .....Rogers
Del Staigers, Cornetist.
"The Baby" .....Bial
"The Mice and the Trap ...Kohler
"Central Park" .....Goldman

EFFORTS TO AMEND U. S. RADIO LAW ARE EXPECTED

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, July 9.—At least two concerted moves will be made in both houses of Congress next season to amend the laws relating to radio and communications control. Minor radio bills will be introduced, but the strongest backing and the strongest opposition probably will be concentrated on two bills which contemplate these objects:

1. To make the Federal Radio Commission a permanent control authority, instead of having its regulatory powers revert to the Secretary of Commerce on Feb. 23, 1928, when it is to become a sort of first court of judicial review over his decisions, as now prescribed in the radio act of 1927.

2. Extension of the powers of the Federal Radio Commission to cover all subjects of communication, i. e., telephone, telegraph and cable lines, as well as radio. The regulation of wired communications now is vested by law in the Interstate Commerce Commission, which has never had occasion to exercise its authority because no application for such regulation has been made.

There are those who still feel that no need exists for continuing the newly created radio body beyond the one-year span of life given it by the law passed last session, arguing that the Department of Commerce, which formerly exercised radio control, can easily resume that authority after the present broadcasting tangle is unraveled by the commission. President Coolidge himself argued against creation of another independent agency of government, such as Senator Dill and others wanted.

Careful Tests Save Trouble.

When building a receiver, always test parts first before wiring and lining them up on the baseboard. Hurriedly put together coils, hastily followed diagrams and quick wiring can never aid the successful completion of a receiver. Every unit should be electrically perfect before assembly.

"Box Seat" Reception!

If you were to go to hear Marion Talley sing, or President Coolidge speak you would want seats where nothing could escape you—seats in a box or in the orchestra circle, not back in the gallery. So in listening to the splendid things of radio, you want a "box seat" too—and it is the Stromberg-Carlson Receiver which provides it.

Indeed the necessity of a Stromberg-Carlson grows as the importance and magnificence of the broadcast programs increase. A Stromberg-Carlson, with its totally shielded coils, enables you, first to select the program you wish and to exclude all others. Then it brings in a singer's notes or a speaker's words with every inflection as pure as rendered. Finally, it has remarkable ability to build up volume of sound, even from remote stations to adequate strength.

The owner of a Stromberg-Carlson may be pardoned a pride in his Receiver. When friends are invited to share the pleasure of some magnificent radio concert the Stromberg-Carlson provides "box seat" reception.

INVESTORS TURN TO REAL ESTATE, INTEREST PICKS UP

DOWNTOWN SITES VIEWED WITH FAVOR

Memorial Plaza, New Court House and Street Widening Add Strength to Demand for Locations.

By Berry Moore.

While sales were not in large volume the week witnessed a renewed demonstration of interest in real estate, especially in investment properties, supplementing an already speculative demand.

This presages, it is believed, substantial investments in real estate of the record dividends and interest disbursed July 1, and augmenting an already unprecedented supply of available capital in banks and trust companies. The volume of surplus funds in these depositories has been swollen by the flood of capital incident to the recent liquidation in the stock market, which was a source of rich profit to those who bought in the early stages of the game.

Real estate is the most attractive form of investment for wealth thus acquired, and at this time it is more alluring than ever with prices at comparatively low levels, as a result of the readjustment to which it has been more or less subject during the last year.

This applies especially to apartments, etc., which in many instances now may be acquired on a highly lucrative investment basis. Many advantageous investments also are available in the business district, both east and west of Twelfth boulevard. While prices in other sections have mounted, there have been no appreciable advances in this area.

Expansion Indicated.

With the completion of the Memorial Plaza, new Courthouse and the street widening program, embracing principally, Olive, Market and Morgan streets, Franklin avenue and Twelfth boulevard, the downtown section will be characterized by new strength, with a resultant increase in values east as well as west of Twelfth boulevard. Notable speculative interest has been exemplified in Olive, Pine, Market and Morgan streets, and Franklin avenue, which will be benefited directly by the civic improvements, and which are scheduled for development on a large scale.

From all indications, the scope of the market is on the eve of a broad expansion which bids to be on a substantial basis by fall. An optimistic feature of the situation is the curtailment in apartment and office building construction. As a result, the demand and supply promise to be fairly well equalized within a comparatively short time, with the growth of the city constantly being accelerated by new industries. Incidentally, construction has been on an unprecedented scale in all the large cities.

Apartment Contracts.

Contracts of sale were executed during the week for several apartment structures. These include a large University City hotel apartment, recently completed at a cost of $1,000,000 or more and an apartment in the central West End costing $700,000. Another building of this type, just west of Grand boulevard, changed hands at around $500,000. There is a noteworthy demand for the more sumptuous buildings in this category.

A number of deals are pending in the business centers, notably in downtown and uptown centers. The more important of these, however, will not reach a definite status before fall owing to the vacation departures of capitalists. Several of these involve Washington avenue sites with large building plans, and Grand boulevard corners being sought as a speculative investment. The outlook is rather reassuring, to say the least.

A. R. SCHOLLMEYER SELLS SIX HOMES UNDER NOVEL PLAN

The A. R. Schollmeyer Real Estate Co. reports activity in its new plan of providing homes. The Schollmeyer Co. erects the frame-work of the building and the purchaser agrees to put in the partitions, do the painting and make the connections with the water and electricity. Six families have recently acquired homes in this manner and ten more homes are now under construction. The subdivision that is being sold is on the Manchester road, just west of the Kingsbury road.

INVESTORS TURN TO REAL ESTATE, INTEREST PICKS UP

By Berry Moore.

While sales were not in large volume the week witnessed a renewed demonstration of interest in real estate, especially in investment properties, supplementing an already speculative demand.

This presages, it is believed, substantial investments in real estate of the record dividends and interest disbursed July 1, and augmenting an already unprecedented supply of available capital in banks and trust companies. The volume of surplus funds in these depositories has been swollen by the flood of capital incident to the recent liquidation in the stock market, which was a source of rich profit to those who bought in the early stages of the game.

Real estate is the most attractive form of investment for wealth thus acquired, and at this time it is more alluring than ever with prices at comparatively low levels, as a result of the readjustment to which it has been more or less subject during the last year.

This applies especially to apartments, etc., which in many instances now may be acquired on a highly lucrative investment basis. Many advantageous investments also are available in the business district, both east and west of Twelfth boulevard. While prices in other sections have mounted, there have been no appreciable advances in this area.

ATLANTIC AND PACIFIC CO. OPENS 3 ST. LOUIS STORES

As the first links in a chain it purposes to establish in St. Louis and in its vicinity, the Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co., has leased three stores, at 5605 Delmar boulevard, 6689 Delmar boulevard and the southwest corner of Vandeventer. St. Louis avenues. Both Delmar stores were placed in operation yesterday.

The store at 6689 Delmar bl. extends through to Enright avenue and is in University City. It was acquired through Henry R. Weisels, Inc. Negotiations for the Vandeventer avenue store were conducted through the Wolf-Pollock Real Estate Co.

The company also is negotiating through the Mercantile Trust Co., the Mullen-Walters Realty Co., and Harry Newman, Inc., for other locations for stores.

Announcement was made yesterday by officials of the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co., one of America's leading grocery chains, of its intention to give St. Louis the same type of service given to New York, Philadelphia, Boston and Chicago

The St. Louis stores will carry a complete line of nationally advertised brands of food, fresh fruits, fresh quality meats and imported groceries, and others will follow immediately.

"We are prepared to give St. Louis as many A&P stores as it wants" said an official of the company yesterday. "Chicago and New York have hundreds. We are here to fill the demand of St. Louis housewives, however great that demand. Other stores will be opened as soon as locations are available.

Sixty-eight years ago the Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. opened its first store in New York. Today it is recognized everywhere as one of the greatest business institutions in America, and its success has been due to a combination of policies, which has insisted first of all upon the highest quality merchandise available.

The entire A&P organization from the store manager up, comprehends fully that the American housewife is sovereign in her domain and that her wishes regarding purchases for her table must be satisfied. Upon this platform the A&P has developed into the most extraordinary institution of its kind in the world.

Sales by Albert Wenzlick Co.

The Albert Wenzlick Real Estate Co. reports for the week, the following sales: Double flat 1911 Blair avenue, for Helen Kerksieck to Michael F. Billicki; double flat at 4938-40 Itaska avenue, for

14-STORY HOTEL GOING UP AT 18TH AND PINE

Plans have been completed for a 14-story hotel to be built at the northwest corner of Eighteenth and Pine streets. The estimated cost of the project is $900,000. It will be known as the Robert E. Lee Hotel.

The building has been leased for a 25-year period to Percy Tyrrell. Tyrrell operates a chain of hotels known as the Robert E. Lee Hotels, and all bear that name. They are located at Laredo, Tex.; San Antonio, Tex., and Kansas City, Mo. Tyrrell was formerly manager of the Gunter Hotel of San Antonio, which position he held for 15 years. He has built up a big patronage in the Southwest and has championed the "room and a bath for two and a half."

The St. Louis hotel will contain 221 rooms, each with bath. The Real Estate Mortgage Trust Co. of St. Louis, has underwritten a first mortgage bond issue of $425,000 to bear 6 per cent and maturing serially over a period of 20 years. The site fronts 109 feet on Eighteenth street by 100 feet on Pine street.

The basement and first floor will cover the entire site, while the 13 floors above the first story will have a depth of 48 feet on Pine street and a full frontage on Eighteenth street.

The main floor will contain the lobby, coffee shop and four stores. Entrances to the hotel will be on both streets. The coffee shop will be on the Pine street side.

The entire property, including the building to be erected, is owned by a syndicate headed by John S. Lionberger, vice president and trust officer of the Security National Savings Bank and Trust Co.

"ENVIRONMENT DOES MAKE A DIFFERENCE"

AMATEUR WORKMEN SHOULD READ UP ON THEIR LINES

Men Who Intend to Paint This Summer Should Get Technical Knowledge First.

Many a home owner sets aside his vacation period, or a portion of it, each year to renovate the home or, at least, to add a coat of paint to the front porch, the kitchen or the bathroom.

Possibly the job may be only refinishing the floors or enameling the walls or the living room furniture or the porch chairs. In any case, he will make the job more interesting and satisfactory if he reads up on the subject of paints and finishes.

Several commercial paint and enamel firms have prepared booklets and handbooks on the subject, and the man who intends to turn painter during his vacation will be repaid by absorbing the paint knowledge contained in these publications, which in most cases may be obtained for the asking.

Difficulties that the amateur finisher experiences in doing odd painting, varnishing and enameling jobs around the house are due largely to lack of knowledge about getting the surface ready to finish. The novice may try to supply enamel without getting the proper foundation with enamel undercoat, or he may try to apply paint on new wood without first priming the surface.

GOOD BUILDING MATERIAL IS WORTH THE INVESTMENT

Strength and Wear Are Sure to Get You a Better Return in Rent or Sale.

The combined opinions of experts in the building line resulted in the decision that good building material is worth the cost.

According to these statisticians the first cost of a well constructed, durable and fire-safe residence of modest proportions is only from 5 to 10 per cent more than the cost of one in which cheap and destructible materials are used.

Home builders will be interested in another generally accepted principle of home financing, namely, that one-quarter of the income may safely be expended or set aside for financing the purchase of a home.

If a family pays a sixth of its income for rent, it may be able to devote one-fourth or more to buying and maintaining a house, for the amount thus used may include both rent and savings.

BEAUTIFY THE HOME LOT

How One Home Owner Increased the Value of His Property.

How beautifying the home place lot will automatically increase the money value of the investment is exemplified by an owner who erected a cement wall on the east and south side of his property adjacent to the sidewalk. The east wall was capped with brick and the wall of blocks along the street carried a coping.

On the east side he laid out a miniature sunken garden with two terraces with flower beds. A flight of stairs divides the upper and lower parts of the yard.

The plot in front of the house was filled in and topped with rich earth. According to estimates the improvement has added $3 to the permanent value of the place for every $1 expended.

Out Door Trash Burner.

Almost every home owner has use for a trash burner. If built of cement it may be very ornamental as well as utilitarian. The average handy man can make a trash burner that will be not only a joy forever but also an attractive addition to the home place, particularly if the receptable be decorated with colored terra cotta tile or other ornamental placques which may be set in the forms. The effect is most attractive.

Homes Are Less Formal.

In selecting building materials for the new home, the suggestion is offered that price is but one of the reasons for buying. Convenience, the element of time, credit, security, safety, comfort, beauty, style of house, type of construction and dozens of other factors may enter into the transaction. Competition does not necessarily mean meeting prices.

Concerning the Attic.

To obtain more space in the attic and distribute the thrust of the roof to the end of the walls, use diagonal tie plates extending from the center of the ridge along the under sides of the rafters to the lower outside corners of the roof.

Touch of Exclusiveness.

In beautifying a suburban home place an attractive gate costs but little extra and adds much to the home. One with pillars and wrought iron hardware is both good looking and substantial.

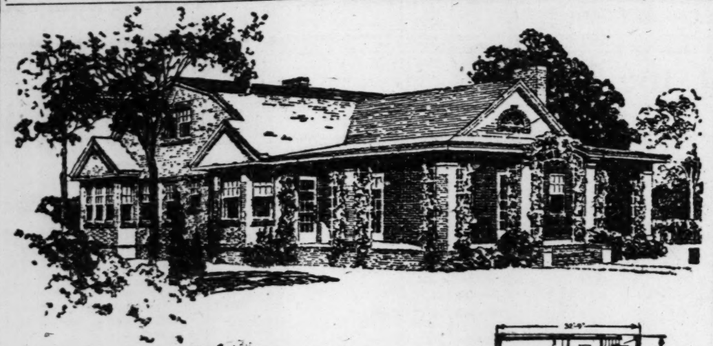
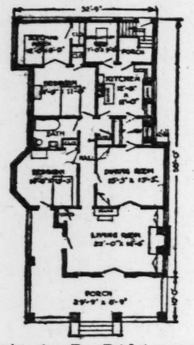
A House of Architectural Merit





Six-Room House No. 611 — Designed for American Face Brick Association

A Small House Designed On Correct Principles

Containing Spacious Living and Dining Rooms, Airy Bedrooms, a Convenient Kitchen and Attractive Porches.

Bungalows no longer mean heavy, over-hanging eaves, uninteresting wall surfaces, and massive porch columns. Architects are today designing bungalows that have real architectural merit and which will be as attractive 50 years from today as now because they embody correct principles of design.

The combination here of a gambrel with two flanking bays on the side and a gable toward the front makes exceedingly attractive roof lines and surfaces. There is a suggestion of comfortable spaciousness. The front porch, as a wide colonnaded and brick-paved terrace, extends around the side to the bay.

The living room, occupying the entire front of the house, is accessible from the porch either on the front or side. The fine brick hearth is flanked by bookcases which suggest delightful winter evenings. The dining room, with its built-in corner china closets, is entered through folding doors from the living room or through the hall, and opens to the kitchen through a pantry provided with cupboards and butler's sink. The ample kitchen, with all modern conveniences, has a service porch and breakfast room.

On the opposite side of the house are two bedrooms, a bath, and sleeping porch. Two more bedrooms and bath could be installed very nicely, under the gambrel, as occasion required.

The basement is provided with laundry, heating apparatus, vegetable cellar and proper storage rooms, but may be restricted in area at the option of the builder.

The ceiling height is 9 feet. The content of the house 41,300 cubic feet.

No. 34 WASHINGTON TERRACE

JUST COMPLETED—THIS ULTRA MODERN HOME
12 ROOMS—4 MASTER BATHROOMS

This truly gorgeous residence has been completed without regard to cost of the finish as is evidenced by the craftexed and canvas finish throughout; the tile-walled kitchen, the luxuriously fitted baths with showers on the second floor, and the hand-rubbed gum millwork throughout.

This residence not only is wonderfully constructed, but as soon as you step inside and walk through the two-story living room with its imported mantel, and stroll through the solarium and inspect the master bedrooms with their adjoining baths, you will immediately realize its extreme attractiveness.

To those seeking sound construction, elegant finish and pronounced attractiveness in a house conveniently situated and yet highly restricted and surrounded by St. Louis' finest homes, this new residence must appeal.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

The Post-Dispatch reserves the right to reject any query. Personal and telephone calls or answers by mail cannot be given attention, except letters on medical questions of undoubted sincerity when accompanied by stamped addressed envelope.

GEORGE V.—Inquire at the Big Brothers' organization, Rialto Building, regarding the information about the baseball tickets.

J. B.—Write to the Superintendent of the New Los Angeles Times Building regarding the inscription you wish.

INFORMATION — You should consult the Missouri Association for the Blind in the Metropolitan Building regarding the blind pension.

OLD READER.—John D. Rockefeller, founder or the Standard Oil Co., is 87 years old; Joseph G. Cannon, former Congressman from Illinos, was 90 years old when he died and Thomas Edison is 79 years old.

LOU.—The area of Greenland Colony is 827,300 square miles and the population according to the 1921 census was 14,355, of which 274 were Danes and 14,081 Eskimos. The area of Africa is 3,871,357 square miles and the 1921 census give the population as 50,525,175.

LEGAL INFORMATION

(By a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association)

FRED M.—You can sue the lady for the money, she was supposed to put in the bank for you.

A FRIEND.—The conditions, you state, would not bar you from getting your naturalization papers.

M. S. — You can garnish your husband's salary, to collect your alimony. Consult a lawyer.

LOU.—If you mean second cousins, such marriages are permitted in most states. If this is not what you mean, please write again.

JANE B.—You can attach the furniture of your tenant and sue them out, in a Justice of the Peace Court.

SUBSCRIBER.—You can claim a reasonable amount from your stepfather for your work, whatever the prevailing wages were in that locality at that time. Consult a lawyer.

MRS. C. H.—If the furniture was in a defective condition when the company sold it to you, you can return it and refuse to pay for it. If they sue you, consult a lawyer or the Legal Aid Bureau.

M. M. M.—Your husband has a dower interest in the property.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnosis or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

T. M. B.—A teaspoonful of the chlorate of potash to a teacup of water used two or three times daily as a mouth wash should prove beneficial in taking the coating off the tongue.

EYE TROUBLE.—You can have your eyes treated free of charge at the City Dispensary or City Hospital, or at any of the large hospitals, such as Barnes, St. Mary's, Mullanphy and the like.

DOT.—Such cases as you describe may be used for massage, manipulation and the like, but at the best the process is slow and doubtful. Practically all such cases have to be treated on for quick and safe recovery.

MAUDE R.—To increase your bust measure mix the following ingredients and apply the ointment with a circular rubbing movement each night for 15 minutes: Melt 1 ounce each of lanoline, cocoa butter and oil of sweet almonds over hot water and beat them into an ointment as the mixture cools.

JUNE.—To develop the bust and neck, make an ointment of one ounce each of lanoline, cocoa butter and oil of sweet almonds. Melt together over hot water and, after removing from fire, beat until cold. Lay hot cloths on the neck and breast each night, then rub in the mixture, gently but firmly, in a circular direction for 15 minutes.

DISCONTENTED OLIVE—Both the troubles you mention are more than likely due to indigestion and constipation. You should be relieved by taking 1 or 2 grain tablets of caroid and bile salts, 3 times daily after meals. Also send stamped, self-addressed envelope, repeating your question and we will mail you a diet list for your guidance.

LADY.—The greatest possible care must be taken in deciphering an X-ray picture to avoid errors. Only six expert X-ray workers should be relied upon for a correct translation. Ordinarily the dark or shadowed part of the picture is due to local indicating abnormalities, but there being exceptions to this rule is why we recommend the greatest possible

"An Incident of the French Revolution"

The Legend of M. de Sombreuil and His Daughter as Told in Canvas by Julian Story, the American Artist—This Painting Is a Part of the Permanent Exhibit of the St. Louis Art Museum in Forest Park.

By JULIUS KLEIMANN
of the Post-Dispatch Staff

NEXT Thursday Paris will be up early. Most mornings Paris contents itself with getting under way about nine o'clock; a little before that hour, customarily, young men and young women run to the nearest cafe, bolt down a croissant and a cup of chocolate, run for the nearest bus or the handiest subway station, and their day has more or less begun.

It will not be that way next Thursday morning. Paris, young and old, will be up betimes. Up betimes and on the street. Music will emanate from anything that may be coerced into giving out music or anything approaching music; uniforms of sometime soldiers will mix with the uniforms of the army of France today; the boulevards will turn into open-air dancing spaces; there will be much laughter, much gayety and an altogether tremendous amount of noise. For France will be celebrating July 14, Bastille Day, the day symbolic of the disappearance of the arms of the Bourbon kings and the succession of the interwoven F and R, the standard of the French Republic.

The people of France didn't win the right to place the entwined F R on their public buildings easily. They had to fight for that privilege and the fight was long and excessively bloody. It involved the slaughtering of hosts of innocents and the slaughtering of hosts not so innocent. It was mob rule with all the terrors and ferocity and injustice of mob rule. It was bad business aimed at a good end. The people of France rose up and put their alleged betters on the figurative rack. There was vengeance in their souls but there was the light of liberty in their eyes. That vengeance is a mean business leaves no room for argument; we can never condone it, but we can often understand it. When the citizenry of France put its aristocracy to the sword without the semblance of a decent hearing, it was doing no more to its aristocracy than its aristocracy had done to it.

Here, then, on this cover of today's magazine, we have "An Incident of the French Revolution." The painting is the work of Julian Story and it hangs in the City Art Museum in Forest Park, one of the institution's permanent collection. It is the story of the aristocrat Sombreuil and his daughter; it is a vivid cross section of the French Revolution.

Alphonse de Lamartine in his "History of the Girondists, or Personal Memoirs of the Patriots of the French Revolution," has this to say of the incident upon which Story based his canvas:

"Confined in the Abbaye were Sombreuil, the Governor of the Invalides, and Mademoiselle de Sombreuil. His daughter had permission to quit the prison, but refused to leave the spot to which filial affection bound her, and inhabited a chamber, with Madame de Tourzel, de St. Brice, and the daughter of Cazotte. Since the commencement of the massacre, she stationed herself at the wicket of the tribunal, watching for her father, and protected by the pity of the guards and the gaolers. Sombreuil appeared—he was condemned. The door opened, the bayonets were at his breast, when his daughter threw herself before him, shielded him with her body, and entreated the assassins to spare her father, or to let her die with him. Her gestures, her sex, youth, beauty, and the sublimity of her devotion, touched these ruffians. A cry of mercy burst from the crowd. The life of her father was granted her, but on horrible conditions; they demanded that, in proof of her abjuration of the aristocracy she should drink a glass filled with blood. Mademoiselle de Sombreuil seized the glass, raised it to her lips, and drank to the safety of her father. This action saved him."

Again Carlyle in his "French Revolution" tells the story, his version a little more dramatic, perhaps a bit melodramatic. He says:

"It is edifying to note what thrillings of affection, what fragments of wild virtues turn up in this shaking asunder of man's existence. Note old M. de Sombreuil, who had a Daughter:—My Father is not an Aristocrat: O good gentlemen, I will swear it, and testify it, and in all ways prove it; we are not; we hate Aristocrats! 'Wilt thou drink Aristocrats' blood?' The man lifts blood (if universal Rumor can be credited): the poor maiden does drink. 'This Sombreuil is innocent then!' Yes, indeed—and now note, most of all, how the bloody pikes, at this news, do rattle to the ground; and the tiger-yells become bursts of jubilee over a brother saved; and the old man and his daughter are clasped to bloody bosoms, with hot tears; and borne home in triumph of Vive la Nation, the killers refusing even money! Does it seem strange, this temper of theirs? It seems very certain, well proved by Royalist testimony in other instances; and very significant."

Such are the versions of Lamartine and Carlyle. But Fleischmann in his "Behind the Scenes in the Terror," speaking of Mademoiselle's supposedly gallant deed, says: "Alas! This is another legend that must be destroyed!" So to Mr. Fleischmann's history:

"Francois-Joseph Virot, Marquis de Sombreuil, had been promoted from brigadier-general at Lille to the governorship of the Hotel Royal des Invalides in Paris," Fleischmann tells in part. "His faithfulness to the monarch had set him at variance with many of the pensioners, who were partisans of growing liberty. However, no serious incident had interrupted his duties when the outbreak of August 10th, 1792, occurred. He was arrested and transferred to the Abbaye, and the red month of September found him there with his daughter.

"A popular tribunal was formed at the Abbaye under the presidency of Maillard. The prisoners appeared in turn before him and those who seemed guilty to the judges heard the words:

"'To La Force!'

"At the prison of La Force, where massacres were going on at that very hour, the formula was the same. The guilty were dismissed with the phrase:

"'To L'Abbaye!'

"It was nothing but a hideous trap. At the Abbaye the condemned was at once pushed into the Rue Sainte-Marguerite and was felled by blows from sabres, knives, and hatchets. Judge Maillard would note on the prison registry in regard to the name:

"'Judged and put to death by the people.'

"Sombreuil was called, and the old man entered, accompanied by his daughter. The touching spectacle would certainly not have entirely won the case for the Governor of the Invalides, but he found an obscure defender among the spectators, a man called Grappin, who had come to claim certain prisoners in the name of the Contrat-Social section. Mademoiselle de Sombreuil, encircling her father with her arms, was imploring the inflexible judges, who were dumfounded in the presence of the tears streaming down a beautiful face.

"Then it was that Grappin intervened, as he had on behalf of several accused. Grappin's defense was especially intended to gain time. Was it necessary to know the opinion of the Invalides about the Governor's civism? Was he among the people's foes on 10th August? All these reasons decided the improvised tribunal to send him to the Invalides to make inquiry.

"Grappin sets forth the Governor's position. But the old soldiers, to whom he denied the right to be Republicans and to rise to the great, sturdy appeal of liberty, rise up against him as accusers. Grappin then knows that a lie alone can save the Governor. He returns to the prison of L'Abbaye.

"Then Grappin speaks, extolling Sombreuil's true civism; he lies; quotes the Invalides' favorable opinion: he lies.

"The crowd seems to approve him. Mademoiselle de Sombreuil's suppliant beauty has penetrated their hearts with an instinctive pity, and when Grappin stops, Maillard, consulting the meeting with a glance, utters the words:

"'Whether innocent or guilty, I believe it would be unworthy of the people to dip its hands in this old man's blood.'

"And," Fleischmann goes on to say, "the tumbler of blood? you ask. I look for it in vain. It seems clear that this was a legend that arose on the morrow of the Terror, at the time of the reaction against the fallen regime, when the most dubious stories and testimonies, the most barefaced lies, were credited and authorized without investigation."

There you have it: the opinions of Carlyle and Lamartine and Fleischmann, whose book was first published in America in 1915. You can take your choice, then, of the romantic tales of Lamartine and Carlyle or Fleischmann's more factual sounding one.

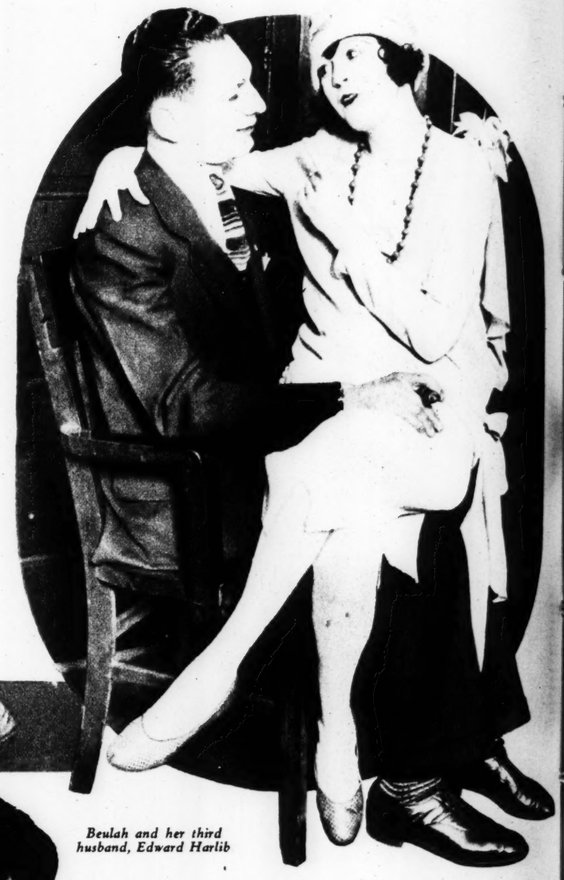
Julian Story, who, for the purposes of his art, at least, chose the romantic version, was born in England, of American parents, in 1857. He died in 1919. His painting, done in '87, is a strong, steadfast piece of work, a bloody testimonial to bloody days. He employs the technique of the dramatist, as he well needed to, to put over his desired effect; he has so arranged his painted stage that the entire action plays upon one central point: Mademoiselle de Sombreuil protecting her father with one hand while she reaches for the morbid cup with the other. And then, adding the skill of the artist to the treatment of the dramatist, he has so manipulated his coloring that the lighter shades of Mademoiselle's gown contrast with the darker garb of her father and the mob, with the bleakness of the prison and the ominous sky.

Poor Mademoiselle de Sombreuil. Whether her beauty and Grappin's eloquence wooed the mob, or if she coerced it by draining her bloody cup, the mercy she won for the old aristocrat was of short duration. On the 17th June, 1794, Sombreuil was brought before the Revolutionary Tribunal; he was convicted and sent to the guillotine the same day, a victim of that sordid regime which took murder and terror by fraud from the edict of a royal seal and placed it in the claws of an equally hideous rabble. Horrible years of transition that today have not brought perfection, but have turned innocent men into the open and the masonry of the Bastille into a bronze site marker.

Beulah Gets Her Third DIVORCE

Beulah Annan Harlib

The "Most Beautiful Woman Ever Tried for Murder in Chicago" Refuses to Stay in Obscurity



Beulah and her third husband, Edward Harlib

Albert Annan showed his intention of standing by his wife by posing with clasped hands.

CHICAGO.

IT MUST have been written in the stars that Beulah May Annan should be a defendant in a murder trial. Hardly can it be denied that she was eminently fitted by nature and appearance to be a rage in a courtroom. She was beautiful and red-headed and had big, wide, blue eyes. She had tender, white skin of that translucent sort which looks so well on a witness stand. Even in Chicago, where competition is keen, Beulah rose at once to the top. No sooner had she been arrested for killing her lover than Chicago came right out and proclaimed her the most beautiful murder defendant it ever had.

And, unlike most beautiful murder defendants whose place in the fickle public taste is soon usurped by some presumptuous upstart, Beulah May has held to her laurels against all comers. Now, in Maurine Watkins' play, "Chicago"—the title being a condensation of "The Spirit of Chicago"—it wasn't that way. Not exactly. In the play, which was one of the stage hits of the New York theatrical season, the heroine is Roxie Hart, who kills her lover as Beulah killed hers. She rides a wave of popularity as Beulah did, but as the drama closes she does an ignominious fadeout. Another jane shoots her boy friend and grabs the spotlight. And the reporters, photographers and sympathizers up and leave Roxie flat and run away to make this other woman happy.

But, as before stated, Beulah didn't do a fadeout like Roxie. No! She kept herself right up there on page one. She still does that, after a three years' reign as queen of love and shooting.

It was just three years ago that Beulah May Annan was acquitted. After a stirring and pictorially successful trial, she was acquitted of the murder of her lover and drinking companion, Harry Kalstedt.

IT WAS told on the stand how she danced for three mad hours around the body of Kalstedt, played "Hula Lou" on the phonograph and smoothed his hair and danced and danced. Then, with the trial over, she left the courtroom arm in arm with her husband, Albert Annan, who financed the defense. She was going to behave from that time on. But the next day she announced that Albert was "too slow" for her and cramped her style in public life. She left him and two years later she divorced him. All of which was good for page one with a lot of pictures.

Again the story was told all over again when she eloped to Crown Point, Indiana, which, with its marrying justices, is to Chicago what Clayton is to St. Louis, and was married to Edward Harlib, ex-pugilist and well-to-do garage owner.

A few weeks ago she sued Harlib for divorce, charging he was unnecessarily brutal. The decree has just been granted by Judge Joseph Sabath, who is Chicago's most active divorce Judge. Judge Sabath probably hears more divorce cases than any other Judge in the United States, and something he heard apparently inspired him to write a play, too. He is the author of "Trial Divorce," which, some time ago, moved on to New York after a successful winter run in its home town.

As to Miss Watkins' play, "Chicago," there is every evidence that Beulah May Annan was the inspiration. Miss Watkins, who was a reporter on a Chicago paper, covered Beulah's trial. In her play, which appeared later, the slayer, Roxie Hart, is photographed, interviewed and made the center of tremendous ado on the part of the public and all the good angels of rescue. Before the smoke has stopped curling from her revolver they rush in, take the case away from the police and conduct her career as it ought to be conducted to fit the traditions. They make Roxie a blazing success. Then they drop her.

SO WAS Beulah Annan the center of much ado. She posed in every conceivable position in her cell, in the courtroom and in the corridors between. She posed sitting, standing, hat on, hat off, legs crossed, knees covered, smiling, brooding. She was interviewed on every intimate detail of her young but stormy life. But after a first and a second term, Beulah refused to step down and give some other struggling beauty a chance, as is customary, and as Miss Watkins imposed upon her heroine.

On the afternoon of April 3, 1924, Beulah's hard-working husband, a stolid, steady mechanic, was trying to diagnose the ills of a Ford truck and had his hands covered with grease when he got a telephone call from home. Beulah told him she had shot a man. Albert Annan got the police and hurried to the Annan flat. There he found Kalstedt dead on the bedroom floor and Beulah dancing around hysterically and playing the phonograph. She had played it all afternoon—one record over and over again—"Hula Lou," a syncopated Hawaiian melody about "the girl who couldn't be true."

Kalstedt had been a fellow employe of Beulah's. He worked in the laundry where she was bookkeeper. It was their day off. He had called that morning, bringing two quarts of wine. They played the phonograph, drank the wine, and then they quarreled. A revolver lay on the bed in the next room. They raced for it. Beulah won the race and the revolver. Kalstedt got the loser's share, which was death.

And, just as Salome, perverse and passionate daughter of Herodias, danced to the beat of drums and the weird wailing of pipes over the mute and bloody head of John the Baptist, slain at her whim, Beulah May Annan danced over the body of her laundry-worker drinking companion. She kissed him and fondled his hair and face. On and on went the phonograph wailing about the "girl who couldn't be true."

SHE carried on this mad carnival three or four hours before she got worked up to the proper hysterical state and called her husband. When she told faithful, plodding Albert what she had done, his chivalry and generosity rose to her support. "Beulah has shot a man," he cried to his startled fellow workers. "She mustn't be made to suffer. I'll tell the police I did it."

He did actually try to make the investigators believe it was his shot and not Beulah's which killed Kalstedt. But when the wine fumes cleared from Beulah's befuddled brain and when she heard the police and the press declaring her the most beautiful woman slayer in a long, long record of Cook County homicides, she demanded her rightful place in the spotlight. Albert was stealing her thunder.

It was then that Albert's loyalty wavered for a moment. He had been dumb. He admitted it. He saw it all now. He had just been a meal ticket, working on greasy Ford engines, while Beulah was having a good time drinking, dancing and shooting. He wouldn't be duped again.

The next day, however, his faith must have been restored, for he hastened to his wife at the county jail. He pledged his last nickel to save her and he stood steadfastly by her through all the interviews, the court preliminaries and the trial itself.

Just as Roxie Hart dressed for her "great scene" in "Chicago," Beulah clothed herself with special attention to jury appeal for the trial. When first arrested, she had put on her most modest outfit, a simple fawn-colored suit with a skirt very long even for 1924. For the pre-trial interviews and photographs she wore the same suit plus a white lace collar, a white bodice and a small dark brown fur piece. In court, she wore a new dress of navy twill, tied at the side with a moire bow. An innocent looking white collar and a string of old-fashioned crystal and jade beads helped to bring out the red in her hair, the blue in her eyes and the clear whiteness of her complexion.

BEULAH had been in Chicago only seven years before she won recognition. Somehow, Fate directed her where she could best make use of her talent. She came from Kentucky, having been born on a farm near Owensboro in 1898. John Sheriff, her father, was well-to-do. He also was straight-laced.

While she was still small, Beulah's parents were divorced. Both married again. The mother, now Mrs. Mary Neal, lost her second husband by death and followed Beulah to Chicago. She was a pathetic figure at the trial.

When only 15, Beulah, still a Kentucky farm girl, married Perry Stevens, a youth of 17. After a son was born to them, Stevens divorced her in Louisville, keeping the child. It was in Louisville that she met Annan, who followed her to Chicago and married her in 1920. There had been four years of apparently happy married life before Kalstedt entered Beulah's life. Annan was slow, but he furnished a good home and was a good provider.

It may have been the waning of Kalstedt's affection that led to the fatality at the drinking party. Anyway, the drinking was interrupted by a quarrel. Kalstedt had served a prison term for a statutory offense against a young woman, so when Beulah was reproaching him she called him a "jail bird." They drank some more, played the phonograph some more and quarreled more bitterly. Other unpleasant names were hurled back and forth. Albert Annan's revolver lay on a bed.

"He started for the bedroom," Beulah testified at the trial. "Maybe he was a step ahead of me, but by the time I got to the bed I was even with him. He grabbed for the gun, but I got it first. Then he put up his hand and said: 'I'll kill you yet.' He came toward me. I pushed his shoulder with my left hand and pulled the trigger."

She told then of how she had bent over the prostrate man, calling to him, and how she had smoothed back his hair and caressed him. In a previous statement, she had told about playing the phonograph and dancing crazily about the apartment.

THE State prosecutors painted her as a vampire and an enticer of men. They charged she killed Kalstedt only because she feared she was about to lose him.

Then the defense attorneys got up and told what a hard-working girl she was; how eager she was to do the right thing and how she had been led astray by men. And look there at her poor old mother! They were able to state positively that she had fired only in defense of her honor and her life.

The jurors heard it all and admired Beulah's pretty red hair and white, white skin. They looked at her and thought what a pity it would be if she had to be locked up in prison. What did that man Kalstedt amount to, anyway? Probably a good riddance. So they retired and after two hours came out with a verdict of not guilty. Beulah thanked each juror very prettily. So did Albert, but, of course, the jurors hardly listened to him. Poor, old, hard-working Albert.

Then Beulah and Albert left the courtroom arm in arm. Beulah had a farewell word for the reporters to put in the paper.

"I'm going to live clean—clean," she announced. "Albert has been wonderful and I'm going to work to repay him everything."

Twenty-four hours later she told those same reporters:

"Yes, I've left Albert. He's too slow. He won't go anywhere and won't let me go anywhere. Life's too dull with Albert."

Maybe it was the best way of repaying Albert, after all. But she did wait two years before suing him for divorce. It was granted in July of last year on grounds of desertion.

LAST February, Beulah was married to Harlib, the former prize fighter, who now is doing well in the automobile livery station business. He gave her a nice bungalow for a wedding gift and she declared she had found "a man in a million."

The new life, however, endured only a few months. Back she came into the divorce courts with a charge that the ex-pugilist kept in training by practicing his art upon her. She told Judge Sabath she was afraid he would kill her and Harlib admitted that maybe some day he might. "It's just as well," he said after the decree. "Some day I might hit her a little too hard over the heart."

Beulah was to get her surprise then. When the divorce trial was over there bobbed up a Mrs. Inez White Harlib. She had been married to Harlib all the time, and she led the pugilist away with her in triumph. He had to leave the $5000 bungalow behind, however. Beulah claimed that in the divorce settlement, and got it.

There the matter rests and Beulah still holds to her place in the spotlight. The successor depicted in Miss Watkins' play has not yet appeared. Indeed, in Beulah's case, it was she who robbed another woman of first position. Until Beulah did her "Salome slaying," as the papers called it, Belva Gaertner was the queen of murder defendants. She, too, had killed a lover, Walter R. Law. She had killed him, she said at first, because she loved him so. Then it turned out that he was killed by accident when they were "fooling with a gun."

Anyway, Belva welcomed Beulah to "lady murderers' row" in the Cook County Jail and coached her on how to grab the glory. It was generous of Belva, because Beulah promptly grabbed it all.

They had assembled from half a dozen states to hold an old-time pow-wow among themselves and greet the National Editorial Association on its tour of Nebraska and the Black Hills. Old men now, but there was still about them a dash of romance, a breath of chivalry, of insouciance; a dash of poetry. With their wide hats and buckskin, it was as if they had stepped from the pages of the old yellow-back novels and across 40 years into the present. It seemed too bad there were no longer any redskins to bite the dust.

But there were other marvels, too, in that parade. That gigantic figure in the buffalo coat at the head of the column—that was a man, still living in the year 1927, who had killed 30,000 buffalo. It was Doc W. F. Carver, 87-year-old veteran of a dozen Indian campaigns and the most famous rifle and pistol shot who ever lived. The Indians walked in superstitious dread of his marksmanship. They called him the "Evil Spirit of the Plains."

The wiry little figure behind Doc Carver was Lute North, Captain of the famous Pawnee Scouts, who still bears on his brow the scar left by an Indian arrow. There was the picturesque, long-haired Idaho Bill (Colonel W. B. Pearson), plainsman, scout and big-game hunter. There also was Pawnee Bill (Major Gordon W. Lillie), who led the Oklahoma "Boomerangs" when that territory was opened to white men, and who later was a partner of Buffalo Bill Cody in the Wild West show business. Somewhere in the crowd—they were too far along in years to hazard a ride in a pouring rain—were "Boney" Earnest, brawny old Indian fighter, who helped tame Wyoming in its wildest days, and the venerable Colonel Curt Alexander, plainsman, guide and former comrade of Buffalo Bill, his long white hair tucked up under his hat.

ALL of these men helped to make the history of the West. All were interesting. But somehow special affection seemed to center upon the two Dicks. What schoolboy of this or any other generation of the last 40 years had not heard of Deadwood Dick and Diamond Dick? What schoolboy of the eighties or nineties or early nineteen hundreds had not braved perils almost as great as those of their heroes to read of their exploits in paper back dime novels concealed behind a big geography?

Probably the majority of readers, long before passing the age of childhood, abandoned all hope and belief that either ever had any real existence, and the conviction is still general that the dime-novel characters were only legendary heroes akin to such semi-mythical daring rogues as Robin Hood and Dick Turpin. They were. That is, they were mythical as far as concerns the exploits attributed to them in the old paper backs of W. B. Lawson and Ed L. Wheeler—lurid tales which came by the gross from the presses of Beadle & Adams and Street & Smith. But the original characters around whom this network of fiction sprang up actually lived and are still living. And they were not only dime-novel heroes. They were real heroes.

Deadwood Dick is Richard W. Clark, grizzled prospector who still clings to the rugged fastnesses of the Black Hills, eking out a living from the gold-bearing sands. He is 78 and not so steady with his aim as he used to be, but he will never grow old. He exhales the spirit of eternal youth.

Diamond Dick is Dr. Richard Tanner, a practicing physician of Norfolk. After his hard-riding, quick-shooting days on the plains he traveled for many years with a Wild West show as Doc Carver's only rival in rifle and pistol virtuosity. Then he quit shooting, put away his guns and diamonds, cut his long hair and studied medicine. He has been practicing here for 17 years. With his white goatee and wide-brimmed hat, he imparts authority to Doc Carver's pronouncement that "in the old days Dick was the handsomest dog that ever rode the plains."

AN INDIAN fighter in the 21st Infantry, later a Custer scout and still later a pony express rider and treasure guard in the Black Hills, Deadwood Dick, in his buckskin suit, looks his history with more fidelity than any member of the celebrated group. He is picturesque. His long gray hair and deeply lined face lend an unmistakable resemblance to Mark Twain, and, with perhaps somewhat less precision, to Paderewski. Seventy-nine years of the West's most rugged history speak from the furrows of his countenance, but a waggish light sparkles in his eye. He is still the happy-go-lucky, improvident adventurer. His right forefinger has been shot away; his forearms are pitted with bullet marks, and it is said he still carries about a pound of lead in his body, but there is lightning quickness in his movement when he draws the big Colt's .45 which dangles at his belt. It is the same revolver—a huge cannon of a weapon—which he carried in the Black Hills in 1876.

"How many notches has he on that gun for Indians?" Doc Carver was asked while Dick was giving an exhibition of hammer fanning.

"He hasn't any," was the reply. "You see, Dick only notched a gun when he missed."

Dick himself refuses to commit himself on how many Indians he killed during his career. He says it was impossible to tell, because often when a "redskin bit the dust" nobody knew which one of the four or five shooting at him really got him. Neither does he know precisely how he came to be dragged into print as a dime-novel hero. He says two Deadwood Dick novels were already in print before he even knew about it. That was when he was driving a stage in the Black Hills. Some of his old acquaintances, however, say it was a real and not a fictitious incident in Dick's career which gave rise to the series of novels.

WHEN Dick was a young man, they relate, he used to get gloriously tight on occasions, and on one of these occasions, when he was feeling particularly waggish, armed himself with a stick that looked like a rifle and went up in the hills near Deadwood, where he lay in wait for the stage coach. As the stage drew near, Dick rose from the brush with his savage-looking stick aimed at the driver. At his command, up went the hands, and the driver begged him not to shoot. Somebody else threw out all the money in the coach. Dick gathered it up, took it all back to Deadwood and told everybody in town how he had held up the stage with a stick. They say he had gambled most of it away before he got sober, but everybody regarded it as a prank and nothing was done about it. Not even his enemies ever charged that Deadwood Dick was dishonest.

Dick now is one of the survivors among the frontiersmen who played a leading part in the Black Hills gold rush. In those days he was a scout, riding through the hostile Sioux country in advance of the troops and penetrating many miles of dangerous territory to deliver dispatches for Generals Custer, Terry and Crook. Later his fighting talents were directed against the desperadoes who preyed upon the gold cargoes of the stage coaches. Dick's job was that of an outrider, guarding these shipments of gold on their way to Omaha and other points outside the hills. His record stands without a blemish. Deadwood Dick never lost a shipment.

Richard W. Clark, otherwise known as Deadwood Dick.

The hills were Deadwood Dick's world from the time he was 12 years old. They are still his world. Until he came down here to Norfolk on a flying visit, he hadn't been out of them in 30 years. Every incident of their turbulent history was enacted virtually within his sight or earshot. He saw Wild Bill sitting with his back to the door playing poker in the old Bella Union saloon, two minutes before the gun fighter was killed.

"I could never figure out," says Dick, "what made him sit down there with his back to the door. It wasn't like Bill. He never did it before, and I wouldn't do it now."

DICK was next door at the time and heard the shot that killed Bill. Some time later he was at Yankton when Jack McCall was arrested, and he also was present at the hanging. He knew all of Deadwood's famous characters. He used to see Calamity Jane drunk in the streets every night. He knew Sitting Bull and Crazy Horse, Rain-in-the-Face and Gall. He was an intimate acquaintance of Custer. The death toll of the Custer massacre was like a roll call of Dick's personal friends. Their memory is fresh in his mind. To him the fight of 51 years ago was but yesterday.

"How many men were killed with Custer at the Little Big Horn?" somebody asked him.

"Two hundred and six," answered Dick in a husky whisper, "and I knew every last one of them." He began to cry, and it was five minutes before he could speak.

The Custer massacre was the principal subject of discussion and bone of contention when the old-timers got together in their pow-wow after the reunion banquet. They sat around a table with Deadwood Dick's big .45 lying in the center. First Dick and then Doc Carver would pick it up and flourish it. And the argument was heated. Custer committed suicide. Custer didn't commit suicide. The recent article in the Cosmopolitan Magazine about the Custer fight was substantially true. The Cosmopolitan article was all a damned lie.

So the controversy raged. The battle was fought all over again, Doc Carver contending that Custer did take his own life when his command had fallen (the Indians themselves had told him so) and Deadwood Dick and Captain North contending that he didn't; that there was so much dust in the air the Indians couldn't see when Custer fell or who killed him, and that his body was found with bullets through the heart and the head, either of which would have proved fatal at once and thus prevented him from firing the second.

On several points, however, there was general agreement:

That the only Indians Buffalo Bill Cody ever killed were those killed on watermelons at Coney Island. (Unanimous.)

That Doc Carver, at fancy shooting, "could beat any damn man that ever stood on the face of the earth." (Carver dissenting.)

That Diamond Dick wore more diamonds and was the handsomest man the West ever saw. (Diamond Dick dissenting.)

That Captain Lute North knows more about the old West and Indian fighting than anybody living. (North's dissent overruled.)

That the Cheyenne warriors under Crazy Horse were the best cavalrymen this country ever produced, and that Crazy Horse was the bravest Indian who ever took a scalp.

THEY liked to talk about each other, these old plainsmen. It was a sort of mutual admiration society. Diamond Dick came in for a lot of it. They delighted especially in recalling his grand appearance.

"Forty-four years ago," declared Doc Carver, "Diamond Dick had the finest palace car in the world, and he could go out and shoot the prettiest exhibition you ever saw. He was always covered with diamonds. Diamonds even on his hat. He looked like the headlight on a steamboat coming up the river. In Des Moines 10,000 boys and girls followed that man up and down the street. He was the only man I ever took my hat off to for looking better than I did. He would walk into a theater and stop the show."

Born in Taylorville, Ill., Diamond Dick came into the West when he was a boy of 7. He learned to ride and shoot in necessity's own school. Like Deadwood Dick, he declares he never knew how he came to be made a character in blood-and-thunder fiction. Indeed, he is not very proud of it and lays no claim to being the sort of hero described in the yellow backs. When he quit the show business in 1905 to study medicine he discarded the name and kept his identity a secret until two years ago, when somebody got wind of it and induced him to appear in an American Legion parade. If anybody doubted his genuineness before, they did not doubt it after his reunion with the pals of his youth. His meeting with rugged old Deadwood Dick was enough to convince the skeptics.

The devotion of this pair—two old men running about almost hand in hand—was touching. So was their parting. When Deadwood Dick started back to the hills next day both were deeply affected.

"Good-by, Dick," he said to Doctor Tanner. "I have had the best time I ever had in my life."

Deadwood Dick shook hands and went in to his seat. When the train pulled out he had his handkerchief over his eyes and tears were streaming down his face. Deadwood Dick's holiday was over.

The Man Behind the TRANS-ATLANTIC MOTORS

What C. L. Lawrance Did for Aviation When He Perfected the Air-Cooled Engine Shown by Lindbergh, Chamberlin and Byrd.

C. L. Lawrance and the Wright Whirlwind motor.

NEW YORK CITY.

WHEN Charles A. Lindbergh, sitting in the little cabin of the "Spirit of St. Louis," made his lone swoop across the Atlantic Ocean, there ensued such a series of ovations, abroad and at home, as no private citizen ever had won before. The world marveled at his courage as a man, his skill as a pilot, the modesty and poise with which he wore his honors.

And as the successful New York-to-Paris flight was a triumph for Lindbergh's daring and skill, so was it also a triumph for the men who produced his equipment.

The builders of the Ryan monoplane had done their work well. The earth induction compass and other scientific instruments kept him on his course, even through hours of fog, rainfall and sleet. And engineering genius of a high order had provided him with a remarkably powerful and reliable motor—the tireless engine which flew his ship across 3600 miles.

Among the men whose careful work beforehand made possible the intrepid feat of Lindbergh was Charles Lanier Lawrance, who perfected the Wright Whirlwind motor, the J-5. Lawrance, another modest individual with solid achievement to his credit, now is president of the Wright Aeronautical Corporation.

A PIONEER in the adaptation of air-cooled motors to air navigation, he had the courage to oppose the use of water-cooled airplane engines at a time when they were regarded by almost everyone as the only type of engine for the purpose. He has spent more than 20 years in experimentation to prove his theory and to perfect the Wright Whirlwind. And now, while still in his middle forties, he has lived to see his faith completely vindicated.

Lawrance's motor carried Lindbergh to France. It carried Chamberlin and Levine to Germany. It took Commander Byrd over the North Pole. The slightest imperfection of the motor in any of these flights would have resulted in failure and probably in death. Commander Byrd's giant Fokker is equipped with this motor. Seven Wright Whirlwinds now are under construction for pilots who will attempt the flight across the Pacific. Lawrence could not receive more eloquent praise than that.

Lawrance's career has not been that of the impoverished inventor struggling through many years of failure and need to eventual recognition. He has never been pinched by want. He is a member of a socially prominent family and has had every advantage that wealth, education and social position can give. Yet his success is as much his own as any man's can be. He was the first man in this country to foresee the highly important results which would follow the development of air-cooled aviation engines. And instead of coasting through life in any one of the comfortable and lucrative positions his social prestige could have obtained for him, he devoted himself to a life of study and labor in order to give concrete form to his vision.

Lawrance's interest in motors began back in the nineties, when he was a student at Groton, Massachusetts, although he did not actually begin to tinker with combustion engines until after he had entered Yale in 1901. At college he took the liberal arts course, and it was simply for his own amusement that he rigged up a workshop and laboratory. But this workshop was one in fact, not merely in name. He built two automobiles during his college days, equipping one of them with a three-cylinder and the other with a two-cylinder motor of his own construction.

IN ADDITION to this form of "amusement," Lawrance gave liberally of his time in an endeavor to make the Yale 'varsity football team. After three years of effort, it was his bad luck to suffer a football injury in his last year at college which prevented him from winning his "Y." Even now, when thousands of telegrams have poured in on him congratulating him on the great achievements of his latest motor, he is unable to stifle a regret for not having been able to get his letter in football.

The two cars which he had built worked satisfactorily, so after his graduation in 1905 Lawrance decided to manufacture automobiles. Two friends helped to finance the venture. Their names were Breeze and Moulton, so the automobile was called the "BLM." They manufactured 20 cars, one of them for the Vanderbilt cup races. The business promised to be a success, but the panic of 1907 hit the young manufacturers and ruined their venture.

"The failure was a great disappointment to us," says Lawrance, "but there was nothing to do about it. I had been working very hard, so I decided to take a vacation by visiting my aunt in Paris."

Both his parents were dead then. He had an income which made him independent. He could easily have spent his days in Paris in the usual pleasure-seeking manner of young men of leisure. Instead, he devoted himself to the severest and most exacting study for a period of three years at the Ecole des Beaux Arts. Admission to this famous school is by competitive examination of an exceptionally difficult nature. He passed his examination creditably and began his advanced scientific studies. His chief study was architectural engineering, including an exact training in mathematics and intimate contact with all mechanical and structural problems. At the end of three years he obtained his hard-won diploma and returned to New York long enough to marry Emily Dix, daughter of the then rector of fashionable Trinity Church.

IT IS indeed fitting that Lawrance's motor should have completed the first New York-to-Paris flight, for it was while studying in Paris that his interests turned definitely toward aviation. His first serious study of aerodynamics began while he was a student at the Ecole. In 1912 he developed an airplane wing section known as the Lawrance wing, or Eiffel No. 32 wing. This wing was tested at the Eiffel Laboratory in Paris and showed results which at that time were considered remarkable, in that the center of pressure did not shift and that the wing offered very little resistance. During the war this wing section was used by both the allies and the Germans. At the outbreak of the European war he returned to New York with his wife and child to engage in engineering.

Before leaving Paris, however, he had constructed his first airplane motor, a 200-horsepower, V-type, water-cooled affair. "It was only a fair motor," he admits, "and since the Hispano people a little later came out with a much better motor built along the same lines, I did nothing with it."

It was soon after his return to the United States, in 1914, that he began his first work on an air-cooled motor.

"The idea of using an air-cooled motor in an airplane was not original with me," Lawrance says. "The Italian engineer, Anzani, had built one for the plane in which Bleriot crossed the channel, and the English aviators used some during the war, although they were crude and not very successful. Aviation and military experts favored the water-cooled motor and were of almost unanimous opinion in condemning the air-cooled motor as impracticable. The reason was that the few air-cooled motors in existence at that time were much more extravagant in their fuel consumption.

"BUT I attributed that not to any inherent weakness in that type of motor, but simply to the fact that the air-cooled motor had not been sufficiently developed. I could see no reason why a perfected air-cooled motor would not be just as economical, if not more economical, of fuel than a water-cooled engine. And the big advantage in having an air-cooled motor was the fact that it would dispense with all the superfluous weight of radiator and water. I determined, therefore, to build an air-cooled motor that would do the work."

Lawrance and his daughter, Marjane, getting the news of Chamberlin's successful flight.

"I AND MY ENGINE"

"I am no Viking old!
My deeds are young and bold.
We came through all that cold—
I and my engine.
Before you have toasted me,
Hailing my victory,
Let those nine pistons be Honored with mention."

—From an anonymous poem in the Nation.

Lawrance then organized the Lawrance Aero Engine Company. It occupied very modest quarters in New York City. It had a working capital of only $17,000. That was a very small sum with which to undertake the work on hand, and on more than one occasion Lawrance had to turn his attention from engineering to finance in order to keep his company solvent.

In 1916, the year his company was organized, he produced his first air-cooled airplane engine, a two-cylinder, 35-horsepower design. This was soon improved to a three-cylinder, 60-horsepower engine.

"After it was perfected," Lawrance relates, "I offered it to President Wilson's Aircraft Board, but they would have none of it. The Navy, however, ordered 450 of them, for their grass-cutter type of training plane. Then I was given an order for a number of air-cooled engines for airplanes to be carried by submarines. These were great little power plants, and some of these motors are still in use today."

WHEN the United States entered the war Lawrance was not permitted to go overseas, but was ordered to continue his laboratory researches and to go ahead as rapidly as possible with his development work. In the year following the war he started to work on his first 200-horsepower engine. It was radial, air-cooled and much like the present Wright Whirlwind. It was a success from the first.

"There were many problems in connection with our early work," says Lawrance in discussing the development of his motor. "In the old rotary engine the cylinder revolved. We had to design a nine-cylinder engine in which the shaft revolved and in which the many rotating parts created great forces which had to be counterbalanced perfectly. The design of the shaft and the connecting rods was a radical departure from previous engineering practice. One cylinder is hooked onto a master connecting rod and all the other rods are fastened to this."

By 1923 Lawrance had established the superiority of air-cooled engines so conclusively that the Navy decided to buy no more water-cooled motors up to 200 horsepower. It was at this point that the Wright Aeronautical Corporation became interested in Lawrance. The Wright corporation, which had been making Hispano water-cooled engines, suddenly found itself deprived of an important market. The Lawrance Aero Engine Company was then the only concern in the United States making air-cooled motors. The Wright company was faced with the choice of going into competition with Lawrance or buying him out. It was decided to pursue the latter course since that would add Lawrance's great ability to the Wright staff.

Thus it was that seven years after Lawrance had started to manufacture air-cooled engines, with a capital of $17,000, the Wright corporation paid him a half-million dollars for his designs and patents and induced him to join their organization as vice president and general manager. The following year he became president.

FIVE models have followed the original nine-cylinder, 200-horsepower engine, and the name has been changed to "Wright Whirlwind." There has been no radical change from the first model, but steady improvements have been made each year. The present model, J-5, conceded to be the finest air-cooled engine ever developed, was first made last year. In discussing it, Lawrance said:

"Everything about an airplane must be light without sacrificing its efficiency. The Wright engine weighs only 500 pounds. It develops 200 horsepower, is easily repaired in case of emergency and has never been known to quit so long as gas and oil could reach the cylinders."

He does not regard aviation as a sport, but as a business which is to provide the logical rapid transportation of the near future. And he has a way of deprecating his own share in the development of the famous Wright Whirlwind motor.

"Oh, of course, it's a development of my original motor," he admits with pressed, "but its present excellent condition is due more to the staff of engineers we have at the plant than to myself. I can't imagine any better staff than we have. E. T. Jones, our chief engineer, is one of the greatest experts on air-cooled motors in the world. His tests and experiments to study the fuel consumption of air-cooled motors have made the present development possible."

WHEN Miss Lizbeth A. Borden, wealthy recluse, died here not long ago in her spacious home, there passed away the principal figure in what has been called the most interesting and perhaps the most puzzling murder which ever occurred in this country.

It was 35 years ago that the name of Lizzie Borden became notorious, almost over night, as a suspect in the murder of her father and her stepmother. The elderly couple were killed in two different rooms of their home, between 9 and 11 o'clock in the morning. The method used for the slaying was particularly brutal.

At that time, Lizzie Borden had led a blameless life for 32 years. She was a member of the Central Congregational Church and active in charitable organizations, the Christian Endeavor Society and the W. C. T. U. She taught a class of young people at a church mission. She had an excellent social standing in the community, where she was born and raised.

Then came the fiendish killing of Mr. and Mrs. Borden by one who left no trace or clew. Not even the weapon with which their heads were battered in, evidently an ax, could be found. But such circumstantial evidence as there was pointed toward Lizzie Borden. The grim theory of the prosecution was not that she had guilty knowledge of the slaying or that she was an accomplice, but that she herself was the actual murderer.

Because of the family's wealth and social position, the defendant's sex, her relationship to the victims and the shocking details of the crime the affair created a nation-wide sensation. FALL RIVER, Massachusetts.

WHEN Miss Lizbeth A. Borden, wealthy recluse, died here not long ago in her spacious home, there passed away the principal figure in what has been called the most interesting and perhaps the most puzzling murder which ever occurred in this country.

It was 35 years ago that the name of Lizzie Borden became notorious, almost over night, as a suspect in the murder of her father and her stepmother. The elderly couple were killed in two different rooms of their home, between 9 and 11 o'clock in the morning. The method used for the slaying was particularly brutal.

At that time, Lizzie Borden had led a blameless life for 32 years. She was a member of the Central Congregational Church and active in charitable organizations, the Christian Endeavor Society and the W. C. T. U. She taught a class of young people at a church mission. She had an excellent social standing in the community, where she was born and raised.

Then came the fiendish killing of Mr. and Mrs. Borden by one who left no trace or clew. Not even the weapon with which their heads were battered in, evidently an ax, could be found. But such circumstantial evidence as there was pointed toward Lizzie Borden. The grim theory of the prosecution was not that she had guilty knowledge of the slaying or that she was an accomplice, but that she herself was the actual murderer.

Because of the family's wealth and social position, the defendant's sex, her relationship to the victims and the shocking details of the crime the affair created a nation-wide sensation. It should be remembered that, in the very mysterious circumstances involved, were several which could not be reconciled with the theory of Lizzie's guilt.

THE morning of Thursday, August 4, 1892, was intensely hot and Andrew Jackson Borden, who was about 70 years old, did not walk fast as he returned from a call at one of the downtown banks to his home, a modest frame house on Second street, which was only a few steps from the principal business thoroughfare.

There the family lived simply, one might say economically, a fact which had been the cause of some dissension, with Lizzie and her older sister, Emma, arrayed against their parents. For Mr. Borden was president of the Union Savings Bank and a director in one or two other banks and in several manufacturing companies. He owned several farms and more than one house in the city, and had built one of the best business blocks in Fall River.

An upright man and respected by everybody, Mr. Borden has been described as hard about money matters. His expression usually was stern. The girls had no means of knowing that their father's estate would be worth $500,000, but they realized that his income was sufficient for them to live in much better style and to entertain on a more lavish scale.

Lizzie is said to have been the more aggressive of the daughters in these differences and to have felt more dislike for the stepmother, whom Mr. Borden had married in 1865, after the death of his first wife. Although the dissensions were kept quiet, it does not seem to have been a very happy household. Still, such jealousy and friction as had been in progress did not suggest anything like murder. A weak point in the State's case against Lizzie Borden was the supposed motive, as outlined above. As for Emma, she was out of town when the murders occurred.

MR. BORDEN arrived at his home about 10 or 15 minutes before 11 o'clock. The side door stood open, but the screen was locked, and he went to the front door and tried his key. The servant, Bridget Sullivan, heard him fumbling at the door and went from the sitting room to let him in. She found the door locked with bolt, key and spring lock, which was contrary to custom, although the Bordens as a family were rather curious about keeping things locked up.

The slight annoyance occasioned in opening the triple-locked door caused Bridget to make an exclamation. "Oh, pshaw!" Thereupon, as she testified later, she heard Lizzie Borden, at the head of the stairs or in the hall above, laugh. This hall opened into Lizzie's room and into the guest room.

Mr. Borden entered his house and went into the dining room, where Lizzie came to him and asked about the mail. Lizzie said: "Mrs. Borden has gone out; she had a note from somebody who was sick." The father went up the back stairs to his bedroom, came down again very shortly and sat by a window in the sitting room.

Lizzie came into the kitchen from the dining room, where she was ironing handkerchiefs. Bridget, whom Lizzie always addressed as "Maggie," the name of a former servant, was rinsing out some cloths which she had used that morning in washing the downstairs windows. Lizzie asked:

"Maggie, are you going out this afternoon?"

"I don't know," replied Bridget. "I might and I might not. I don't feel very well."

After breakfast that morning, Bridget had gone out into the back yard and vomited. It was a strange breakfast for a hot summer morning—mutton broth, mutton, johnny cakes, coffee and cookies. The mutton broth may have been responsible for Bridget's illness, although none of the others was affected. But on the preceding Tuesday night Mr. and Mrs. Borden had been violently ill and had vomited. Lizzie testified that she, too, had been ill that night.

Lizzie talked about the sickness on Wednesday to Miss Alice Russell, a friend, and expressed her suspicion that the milk might have been poisoned, intentionally. Lizzie said she feared her father had an enemy and declared she slept in fear that they will burn the house down over us." Then she mentioned a daylight burglary of about a year before, when her father's desk had been broken into and more than $100 taken.

A LITTLE while after Lizzie's query to Bridget, she came into the kitchen again and said:

"There is a cheap sale of dress goods at Sargent's this afternoon, at 8 cents a yard." Or perhaps instead of the words "this afternoon" Lizzie said "today." Bridget testified later. Bridget replied:

"I'm going to have one."

Then Bridget went up the back stairs to her own room, where she lay down on the bed for a rest, as was her custom when she had a little spare time. There was nothing for her to do until 11:30 or 12 o'clock, when she would prepare the midday meal. Bridget testified later that she heard the clock in the city hall strike 11, shortly after she reached her room. She was quite sure that she did not fall asleep and that she did not hear a sound in the house, not even the opening or closing of a door, until some 10 or 15 minutes had passed. Then she heard Lizzie's voice, vibrant with alarm:

"Maggie, come down!"

"What is the matter?" asked Bridget.

"Come down quick; father's dead; somebody came in and killed him!"

Maggie went downstairs at once and found Miss Borden standing near the side door. The servant started to enter the sitting room, but was checked by Lizzie, who said:

"Oh, Maggie, don't go in. I have got to have a doctor quick. Go over. I have got to have the doctor."

Diagonally across the street lived Dr. Bowen, the family's physician and friend. Bridget learned that he was not at home just then and hurried back to the Borden house. She asked:

"Miss Lizzie, where were you when this thing happened?"

"I was out in the yard," said Lizzie, "and heard a groan, and came in, and the screen door was wide open."

NOW, Lizzie directed Bridget to go to Miss Russell's house and bring her. Bridget departed. The coming and going of the agitated servant had attracted the attention of Mrs. Churchill, next-door neighbor. She called to Lizzie, who was standing inside the screen door, and asked if there was any trouble.

"Oh, Mrs. Churchill, do come over," replied Lizzie. "Someone has killed father." The neighbor woman hurried to her.

"Oh, Lizzie! Where is your father?"

"In the sitting room."

"Where were you when it happened?"

"I went to the barn to get a piece of iron."

"Where is your mother?"

"I don't know; she had a note to go see someone who is sick, but I don't know but that she is killed, too, for I thought I heard her come in. Father must have an enemy, for we have all been sick, and we think the milk has been poisoned."

Mrs. Churchill offered to go in search of another doctor. She crossed the street to a stable and asked for help. One of the men who heard her telephoned to the police station. City Marshal Hilliard thus received the news at 11:15 and sent an officer to the house.

Before the police arrived, Mrs. Churchill had returned to the Borden home, where in a few moments Bridget came back, followed by Dr. Bowen. Then, for the first time since the alarm was given, somebody entered the sitting room. Upon a large sofa, in his customary position for taking a nap, lay the body of Mr. Borden, his head and face so hacked as to be unrecognizable even to his friend and physician. There was no sign of a struggle.

Dr. Bowen believed that Mr. Borden had been killed by the first blow, while asleep, but as to the other wounds which had been inflicted, in order to make death certain, he commented:

"Physician that I am and accustomed to all kinds of horrible sights, it sickened me to look upon the dead man's face." Mr. Borden had been dead, so he thought, not more than 20 minutes.

By this time Miss Russell had arrived and, with Mrs. Churchill, was comforting Lizzie Borden. From various accounts it appears that Lizzie was calmer than any of the other women present. But grief shows itself in different ways with different temperaments. Finally, Lizzie asked them to try to find Mrs. Borden. Bridget refused to go upstairs alone, but went with Mrs. Churchill from the kitchen to the front of the house and up the front stairs.

Bridget went into the guest room for a moment. Mrs. Churchill, who had seen something through its open door as she went up the stairs, did not enter. The pair went downstairs again, hastily. Mrs. Churchill sank into a chair in the kitchen, with a groan. Miss Russell asked:

"Is there another?"

"Yes, she is up there," said Mrs. Churchill.

On the floor between the dressing table and the bed, face downward in a pool of blood, was the body of Mrs. Borden. Her head had been ferociously hacked and battered, like her husband's. But her wounds were not so recent. Blood had ceased to flow from them and the blood on the floor had coagulated. She had been killed, the medical experts decided, fully an hour and a half before the murder of Mr. Borden.

"THERE have always been many to assert that a prompt and intelligent search of the house, with all that this implies, would have solved the mystery at once," says Edmund Lester Pearson, who has written at length of the Borden case in his book, "Studies in Murder." Pearson believes that the police did, within 24 hours, discover nearly all the evidence that it was humanly possible to find.

As the investigation progressed, it became clear that the crime had been committed by a person of considerable cunning and extraordinary audacity, who was aided by an incredible series of lucky chances.

To be successful, the murderer must encounter Mrs. Borden alone and kill her without alarming Lizzie or Bridget. He must remain concealed in that small house for an hour and a half, and then take Mr. Borden by surprise. He must choose a time, not exceeding 20 minutes in all, when Lizzie had gone out to the barn and Bridget was in her attic room. The day must be that of Emma's absence from the city. The murderer must have finished his work before the return to the house of John Vinnicum Morse of Dartmouth, Massachusetts, a brother of the first Mrs. Borden, who had arrived the day before. On Thursday morning Morse was away from the house, calling upon a nephew and niece who lived some distance away, and he strolled into the Borden yard shortly after the alarm was given. Had Morse returned even 10 minutes sooner he probably would have caught the murderer red-handed.

Then the killer, having profited by all these unforeseeable conditions and having slaughtered two persons in a barbarous way without getting any bloodstains upon his clothing, must conceal the dripping instrument of death and depart in broad daylight by a much frequented street.

Such a series of coincidences did not seem possible to the police nor to some of the public. Bridget never was under serious suspicion, because of her good character and the lack of motive. Lizzie also affirmed her belief in Bridget's complete innocence.

LIZZIE'S story about her own actions varied a little. At the inquest she testified that she went to the barn to look for some lead, since she planned a fishing trip and wanted sinkers for her lines. She was out of the house for about 20 minutes, she said, saw nobody enter or leave the house and heard nothing suspicious. When she returned to the house she put her hat in the dining room, found her father murdered and called to Maggie. She told of a strange man who had quarreled with her father a few days before the tragedy and who had been ordered out of the house. Lizzie did not testify at her trial for murder.

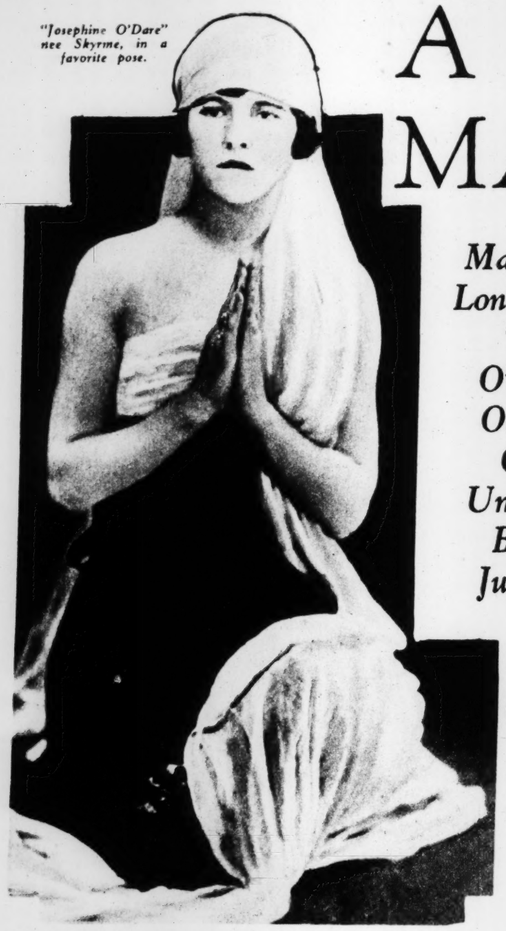
The defense could not shake the evidence as to motive, such as it was. Nor could the defense destroy the proof of ample opportunity, although it showed that the screen of the side door was not locked at all times. Neither the note said to have been received by Mrs. Borden, nor any writer of such a note nor the messenger who brought it could be found. The defense suggested that the note might have been part of the murderer's plot. Lizzie's inconsistent statements were attributed to excitement.

The strongest point of the defense was the utter lack of bloodstains on the person of Lizzie and all her clothing. Half a dozen persons had seen her within 10 minutes of the second murder and had seen no stains. There was medical testimony that the slayer must have been spattered. Blood was absent, also, from a hatchet and two axes found in the house.

The jury was out only a little more than an hour when it returned a verdict of not guilty. The jurors are said to have been agreed from the start and to have delayed the verdict only because they did not want to appear in the light of having failed to consider the State's case.

After the acquittal, Lizzie became Miss Lizbeth A. Borden and continued to reside in Fall River, despite the fact that the verdict of the jury by no means cleared her in the minds of many people. She lived secluded in a handsome residence and was charitable in a quiet way, but always under suspicion. Emma always maintained her belief in Lizzie's innocence—a question which at the time was debated from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Emma's recent death at Newmarket, New Hampshire, nine days after the death of Lizzie, removes the last of the family and perhaps means that the mystery of this terrible affair never will be solved.

A COUNTRY GIRL DUPES MAYFAIR



"Josephine O'Dare" nee Skyrme, in a favorite pose.

Many Fashionable Londoners Thought "Josephine O'Dare" Was One of Their Own Kind Until She Was Brought To Justice As An Accomplished Swindler.

LONDON.

JOSEPHINE O'DARE was the daughter of a Herefordshire farm worker. She was reared in the country, and there lived until she was 23. Then she came to London, a pretty girl with country manners, a country lass, garbed in country clothes, who didn't know Seven Dials from Half Moon street.

But before long her clothes became the attire of London, her manners were those of London society, she met the best people and mixed with them; she went to their functions and they were glad to be asked to hers. Soon she moved into Park street, Mayfair, London's best residential section. She was a part of social London and social London was glad to have her. She spoke of the horse she was training for the Derby; she declared she would be the first woman to own a Derby winner. But last Derby day, Josephine O'Dare was not at Epsom Downs.

Rather, she stood before Recorder Sir Ernest Wild and heard him sentence her to four years and six months' penal servitude for conspiracy to forge a will and for uttering forged cheques, and instead of the shouts of the Derby crowd she listened to the general opinion that London had been rid of its worst band of crooks, the O'Dare gang, so called by Scotland Yard because of Josephine O'Dare, the gang chieftain. And at the same session that sent her to gaol, she heard her five confederates, four men and a woman, sentenced to punishments ranging from 12 years' penal servitude to 15 months in jail.

Josephine O'Dare's real name is Teresa Agnes Skyrme. One flag day she was treading the streets of Hereford selling flags. And, so engaged, she met one William George Davis. That was 10 years ago, she was 18 at the time, he was 19. They became very friendly, soon they spent their time together.

It was in 1922 that she first came to London, a country bumpkin unused to metropolitan life. In the meantime her partner, Davis, had swiftly gone from bad to worse. He was a daring criminal, a forger of great ability. His penmanship was becoming excellent and his crimes audacious.

ONCE in London, Teresa Agnes Skyrme became Josephine O'Dare. And as her name changed, so did her manners. From the daughter of a poor workingman she became a pseudo lady, a woman of something approaching breeding and learning.

Her efforts to improve herself were pointed at a particular goal. It was the idea of herself and Davis that she must be capable of putting on such a front as would admit her to polite society, to allow her to become one of the social set, enjoying their friendship and to some degree and in some instances their confidence. For Josephine O'Dare and her accomplice were not after small fry, they wanted to make money and big money through their unlawful work.

A late portrait of "Josephine."

Before long the pretty Miss Josephine O'Dare came to be known in London society. She was invited to teas, receptions, to dinner parties and dances. She rode every morning in the Row. And then, her social engagements over for the day, she returned to Davis. Her life was a paradox. She attended the luncheon of some fashionable hostess only on leaving it to return to her gang and her other associates, those she had known since first she came to London—criminals, many of them with years behind them spent in prisons.

She progressed swiftly in her evil work. So swiftly that in a few years she had made $100,000 by her fraudulent ways. One of her victims was Poole, her butler. She got from him his savings of $7000.

She moved into a house in Park street, Mayfair. There she entertained lavishly. And her guests were from the highest aristocracy in the land. At the same time the lower part of her establishment was nothing more than a gathering place for thieves, the resort of convicted forgers and others of the criminal world.

So she went her way, living by her thievery. She spoke of a fictitious horse; she said she had it in training and that it was so good it would win the Derby in 1928. And she declared that her ambition was to be the first woman owner to win the Derby.

THEN in May, 1926, bankruptcy proceedings were started against her. A month later she was adjudged bankrupt. She owed more than $55,000. Her assets, she said, were $75,000, money she claimed left to her under the will of the late Mr. Edwin Docker, a solicitor who lived in Birmingham. Then it was discovered that the will was forged.

But before the discovery was made, Josephine O'Dare and her gang reaped many a dishonest gain.

Davis, who actually forged the will of Docker, used various names in his shady procedures. He was known as Captain Heller, Lord St. Heller, Captain Danvers, D. S. O., of the Tank Corps.

He and Josephine O'Dare, aided by two of their confederates, Adrian Morton and his wife, Dolita Morton, began a systematic swindling of banks in and around London, assisted by John Noonan and Frank Miller.

Dozens of letters were stolen from places in the west of London and cheques were extracted from these letters. Noonan was the expert letter-box robber. His method was to place a sheet of paper beneath a door, before the delivery of morning letters to offices, and then when the letters had been dropped through to extract the sheet and a letter or two with it.

Various accounts were opened in London banks with the stolen cheques, which had forged endorsements. By this means approximately $17,500 was obtained within three months.

On one occasion Josephine O'Dare, Davis and the Mortons drove in a hired motor car to Sunningdale, and before their return had defrauded a local bank of $2500.

The gang was brought to grief largely through the efforts of Detective Inspector Yandall of Scotland Yard.

When the trial came Josephine O'Dare pleaded guilty. Testifying, Inspector Yandall said there was no previous conviction against her, Davis, said the officer, had been sentenced to 21 months' imprisonment in 1921 for forging a cheque and to three years' penal servitude in 1923 for larceny and forgery

While she entertained fashionable friends one part of the house her basement was being used as a thieves' den.

MORTON and his wife, continued the witness, came of highly respectable families and had been convicted before. Miller, in 1922, was sentenced to three years' penal servitude for stealing mail from telephone boxes. Noonan's record was very bad; he had a number of convictions for theft and fraud.

In passing sentence, Sir Ernest Wild said to Davis:

"It is dangerous to the community for a man like you to be at large."

The Recorder turned his glance to O'Dare, a drooping, girlish figure in a neat blue costume and low-cut jumper.

"It is immaterial to me," he said, "what your real name is. You have had a bad upbringing, and you had the misfortune, as a young girl, to become associated with Davis. I dare say a good deal of your subsequent conduct may have been directed by him.

"I do not say that against him, but I say it in your favor. All the same it is clear that for some years you have been living as a social adventuress, and amassed a large sum of money by means into which it is better not to inquire."

Josephine O'Dare went deadly pale as she heard her punishment. She was brave as she faced the eyes of the crowded court, but only for a moment. As the hand of the wardress touched her she burst into tears.

THE problem of what to give for a girl's birthday is important, as you cannot hope to get by on that occasion with the box of candy-coated almonds obtainable over the week-end at one pound for 38 cents and two pounds for 89. You have got to be discriminating, which is simply another word for spending tin. Many a well-meaning buzzard has been wafted to the great outdoors because he came through with something inexpensive and insulting such as a waffle iron or a sewing kit. The average girl doesn't know what a waffle iron is, unless it could be a roulette wheel; and as for a needle, she thinks it is something that plays a phonograph record. At any rate, you have to kick in with something dogged up in white tissue paper and pink ribbon, and you surrender this saying: "Many, many returns," because it will be returned and exchanged.

Tactics of Girls
The Gift Problem

HAPPY BIRTHDAY TO YOU

A Few Suggestions
Why Not Be Original?

THE problem of what to give for a girl's birthday is important, as you cannot hope to get by on that occasion with the box of candy-coated almonds obtainable over the week-end at one pound for 38 cents and two pounds for 39. You have got to be discriminating, which is simply another word for spending tin. Many a well-meaning buzzard has been wafted to the great outdoors because he came through with something inexpensive and insulting such as a waffle iron or a sewing kit. The average girl doesn't know what a waffle iron is, unless it could be a roulette wheel; and as for a needle, she thinks it is something that plays a phonograph record. At any rate, you have to kick in with something dogged up in white tissue paper and pink ribbon, and you surrender this saying: "Many, many returns," because it will be returned and exchanged.

The procedure by which a girl acquaints the universe with the date of her birth is very insidious, as she will go around for an entire month preceding the event taking an uncanny interest in jewelers' shop windows, and not for the purpose of dusting the beak. She utters such remarks as: "Aren't those sweet?" "I hope I get one like that." "Mother promised me something like this." "I adore imported things." And, "That would look nice on a white-gold setting." You ask for an explanation and she says: "You hush up." But you wheedle and third-degree until she reluctantly admits that her birthday falls on the fifteenth of the month. She may add: "Deliver all parcels in rear." There is nothing but your curiosity to blame—if you had had foresight, you would have walked along whistling absently or would have changed the subject and asked what she thought about the latest trunk murder.

WHILE these tactics accomplish a great deal, it is expected that some girl eventually will cast diplomacy to the winds and run an item in the classified advertising section, reading: "Notice to Gentlemen Friends: My birthday falls July 28. All donations gratefully acknowledged. Bertha Gook. P. S.—I have plenty of atomizers." Some may even go a step further and rent an hour's time on a radio program and present a mixed quartet and a trombone soloist with announcements to the effect that "the music comes to you through courtesy of Miss Catharine Dazzle, 4356 Rope street, fifth floor east, whose birthday is July 30."

Some of these mining engineers are not above having two or more birthdays per annum for the sake of corralling what is known in the underworld as swag or boodle, although there is a peculiar lack of synchronization between the age and the number of birthdays. Before buying a girl a present it is advisable to saunter down to the city hall and look up her pedigree and date of birth to make sure she is not sloughing. A girl may tell you she has a birthday in July and a few months later, when she begins to tire of the bar pin, she will ask what are you going to give her on October 10. You rack your brain to recall the list of memorable dates, and finally ask whether October 10 is "Sweetheart Day," "Bon-bon Day," "Orchid Day" or "Give-Your-Girl-a-Tiara Day," and she replies in the negative. Accordingly, you ask whether it is the anniversary of the sinking of the Spanish Armada or the anniversary of the discovery of gunpowder, and if so, why is a present necessary? She says you are all wrong, that October 10 is her birthday, and while you are tempted to draw her attention to the fact that she has had one birthday this year, no gentleman would pursue that course, so there is nothing to do but order a box of cream centers and a shock of weeds and postpone the instalment on the automobile to a later date.

ORIGINALITY is what the girls are looking for these days, and most of them have tired of the inevitable candy and flowers, although this weariness has not yet reached the state of refusing them. If you want the lady's face to shine with rapture you will give her something unusual, always remembering to distinguish between a gift, which is anything priced over $5, and a present, which includes such items as calendars, memo pads and book markers. If she is one of these hungry women, you might give her a meal ticket to a restaurant of the better class. If you are a plumber by occupation you could call at her home on her birthday and volunteer to fix the sink or fit a few gas pipes at no cost.

If the girl lives in a flat, a few tons of coal would make a delightful gift. The coal could be placed in a freshly painted wagon and drawn by a pair of spanking horses decorated with young nosegays. The driver would be all Sundayed up in formal morning attire and he would ring the doorbell with the little finger of his fawn-gloved hand, take off his top hat and remove from the lining, not a crumpled, thumb-stained receipt, but a perfumed note reading: "The warmth of this anthracite coal is only equaled by the warmth of my affections," or some other suitable expression. This, like Babe Ruth taking a somersault dive, would go over big.

A HALF-DOZEN duplicate keys to the door of your sweetheart's residence would make another acceptable gift, as most girls have only one key and cannot find it. It is a fearsome thing to bring your girl home and see her dive frenziedly into her handbag and exclaim: "Great Galloping Ghosts! I've lost my key!" She is then forced to ring the doorbell, whereupon a light strikes up and a sour-tempered old gent unleashes a volley of bleacher oratory and opens the door cautiously and says: "Is that you, Myrna? Do you know it's 1:30?" This performance will put the queer on any date, as the gentleman will figure he is about as welcome around there after that as the anti-lynching law in Georgia.

To give keys, take a lump of wax with you the next time you go calling and slyly get the impression of the keyhole. Of course, it would be disastrous if you got caught, inasmuch as the family would have you jugged and the Chief of Police would have the laugh of his young life when you explained your real purpose. Granting you secure the impression, you have the keys made and place them in a purple box lined with satin. This gift will enable a girl to go on dates for a few months without wondering whether she is going to get in the house by climbing through the kitchen window or by shinnying up the rain pipe to the second floor.

There are some girls who spend, on the average, one night at home out of a possible 30, the only reason they stay home that night being an attack of pneumonia. If it were only paralysis, they would probably go out in a wheel chair. At any rate, they are out the vast majority of the time, and they fall asleep about four dates out of five, regardless of whether the escort is John Barrymore or Ben Lyon. A box of caffeine cubes would be a happy gift for the escort as well as the lady, as it would end his remonstrances and keep her as chipper as a metropolitan squirrel on the golf links.

ALL I know is what I read in the papers and we ain't been getting none lately on acct. of the lady news dealer at Great Neck having a peculiar idear that you ought to pay for them once in a wile, so this wk. will half to try and satisfy you with a few of my personal experiences in regards to matters that concerns only myself and what I lovingly refer to as my Long Island public and I realize it may not maybe be interesting to you so don't stay away from church or lodge to read this article.

Well in the first place it seems they was another benefit show the other day for the Authors league of America which I am one of them through a slight misunderstanding but any way this show was to be put on at a place called Jackson Heights which you can't avoid passing it when you drive in to N. Y. city from where we live and the boys in charge put up big posters all over Long's Island saying who was going to be in the show and my name was amongst same and between you and I dear reader I hadn't never been consulted and don't never appear in shows except a little pantomime once in a wile during the few minutes it takes me every 3d. day to shave.

SO I DIDN'T pay no tension only to wonder what and the he—ll and at noon time on the day the show was coming off the phone rung and her who I always think of as the madam answered the phone and it was George Creel on the other end of the wire and my madam talked to him civilly on acct. of he being Blanche Bates's husband and he exclaimed that he was in charge of the show and wanted to know if I would be sure and show up. So the madam said why my husband ain't never been informed that he was to take part in no show and Mr. Creel said we realize that and the reason we are calling him up so late is because we figured that if we took him by surprise he might consent to take part. Well it was a well thought out scream and the only trouble with it was that by that time I was over in Philadelphia spearing hazel nuts so I guest the show must of been a flop, at least I have seen several people since that was in attendants, and they all looked just the same as ever.

Another big event down our way was the opening of the Lakeville golf club which after you have paid the initiation fee to same, why you'd half to worry no more about where you are going to go for the summer because you ain't going no place. The Lakeville club has got a club house as big as the Yale bowl or Gene Buck's living room and if you go in the front entrance and from there to the caddy house to get your clubs, that counts for nine holes and you only have to play nine more. The showers is so attractive that a great many of the members that never took a bath before has been strongly tempted to try it and in time this is expected to work towards a better and cleaner Great Neck.

In regards to the golf course itself I was only over it once but managed to make a few changes in it though as a rule I left the fairways alone. They have got a great time saving device on the first hole. On most golf courses when you slice your drive off of the first tee it takes a long wile to find out where did it go to. On this course they have imported one of the Great Lakes to catch these kind of drives and you can keep on playing without no doubt in your mind in regards to the whereabouts of your tee shot.

THE first gleam of hope for a golfer of my caliber occurs at the fourth hole which seems to be the first hole that wasn't laid out by Nurmi. I come within two strokes of making a birdie on this hole and speaking about birdies, why I and the funny looking golfer I was playing with was disgusting the question of why do they talk about birdies and eagles and if so, why don't they delve further into the archives of the Audubon society and pick out some nicknames for the kind of golfers we are.

Like for inst. suppose they's a hole that the par for same is 4 and you make it in 5. You might call that a parakeet which in Brazil means par (par) akeet (not quite). If the hole is a par 4 and you take 12 shots without getting towards it and finally you pick your ball up, that would be called a hoot owl on the grounds that if you kept on you might make it during the night.

That is about all the news except that the other evening it sprinkled which means that the electric lights went out and so did the telephone and of course that happened to be the night when I was planning to read a few chapters of the old testament to say nothing about expecting a call from the White House but instead of that had to set down to the piano and see how many of Irving Berlin's songs I could remember.

And oh yes I recd. another one of these chain letters which says if you will keep up the chain you will have good luck and it met its final resting place in my house namely the waste basket. Let them send me a letter that guarantees good sense and I will act different towards it. I don't need no luck. RING LARDNER.

These "Tired Business Men" Make Their Own Music

The Chicago Business Men's Symphony Orchestra at its spring concert in Orchestra Hall.

Symphony Orchestra of Ninety Members, Manned by Industrial and Mercantile Leaders of Chicago, Reaches Climax of Its Remarkable Career.

CHICAGO.

IN MEDIEVAL Nuremburg a group of tradesworkers known as the Mastersingers exercised a jealous and affectionate stewardship over German music. By day they were tinsmiths, coppersmiths, cobblers and what not, but by night they were artists—carrying on the tradition of the earlier minstrels and building up an even finer tradition that was afterward to break into flower in the immortal art of Bach, Beethoven, Brahms and Wagner.

Something similar is happening in America today and, strangely enough, its background is Chicago—Chicago, where pigs are butchered, where the roar of the Loop is supposed to be the glad song of songs for every native son and where the so-called popular American pastime of rolling up the jack is played at its hardest.

True, Chicago hasn't yet developed any known counterpart of Hans Sachs, the poetic cobbler. But she has what is perhaps more remarkable—a group of bankers, brokers and business men who give most of their leisure to the personal cultivation of instrumental music. Ninety of these men now make up what is known as the Business Men's Symphony Orchestra, an organization which has been in existence for six years, but really came of age—artistically speaking—only this year. For at their spring concert they gave a program containing the following numbers:

Cesar Franck's D Minor Symphony.

Rimsky-Korsakoff's Spanish Caprice.

Wagner's "Meistersinger" overture.

Bruch's G Minor violin concerto.

In a sense the members of the orchestra felt that they had been rehearsing this concert for the six years of the orchestra's life. Just how well they did it is best told by Glenn Dillard Gunn, said to be Chicago's leading music critic. Mr. Gunn said:

"MANY professional orchestras hereabouts have made beginnings less impressive than that of these musical business men. They set a fine standard with the Wagner prelude. The tone of the strings was of good quality and surprising volume, this being the first evidence of a well-disciplined ensemble.

"The wood winds made fine display of accuracy and facility in the contrapuntal passages of the development section. The brasses were sonorous, without abruptness. The percussion instruments were handled with discretion.

"Their conductor, Clarence Evans of the Symphony, is evidently an able and inspiring drill master.

"The difficult Franck symphony was attacked with the same confidence that achieved such brilliant results with the 'Meistersinger' prelude. And though it is far more difficult, the interpretation was equally successful."

Two thousand of Chicago's most critical music lovers turned out to hear the debut of the Business Men's Orchestra, which was given in Orchestra Hall. No more discriminating audience could have appeared for a recital by Fritz Kreisler or a concert by the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra.

And the sincere and enthusiastic applause attested to the merit of the performance.

It was not the first concert given by the business men—they have given an average of one concert a month, from September to June, for five years. But it was their first appearance in Chicago's great hall dedicated to fine musical performances.

They have played often at the Edgewater Beach Hotel, rendezvous of society and of wealthy, artistic and famous visitors. They have played before conventions and before fraternal and social organizations high in the esteem of the city, but never before to a representative gathering of critical and appreciative musical devotees.

Members of the Chicago Business Men's Orchestra are not to be confused with small tradesmen of a musical bent, or with unsuccessful professional musicians forced to turn to commercial paths for livelihood. On the contrary, they are all highly successful business men, the great majority of them powers in the city's mercantile, commercial, financial and professional circles.

Mrs. Palmer J. Clark instructs her husband, former conductor of the orchestra, in the technique of the baton.

Emory C. Andrews, a veteran player.

A few have had intensive musical training in their youth, but the vast majority of the 90 men who comprise the full quota of the orchestra are simply, as they call themselves, business men. But business men who love music.

The only woman member of the orchestra is Miss Margaret Sweeney, harpist. She, too, is an amateur musician and a business woman.

The president and moving factor in the orchestra is George Lytton, vice president, general manager and acting president of "The Hub," Chicago's large retail store devoted exclusively to men's clothing. It occupies eight floors of its own 16-story building at State street and Jackson avenue, and is now opening five branch stores throughout the city.

BENNETT GRIFFIN and Lloyd Steere are vice presidents of the orchestra. Avern Scolik is secretary and treasurer and Vernon Cassard is librarian. The board of directors, besides the officers, include John H. Bullen, George Knutson, Herbert S. Conover, Palmer J. Clark, Theodore Werner, C. B. Williams and Harry E. Weese.

Names, all of these, that represent wealth and power on State street and on La Salle street.

The beginnings of the orchestra go back to 1921, when the University Club boasted the usual banjo club, comprised, of course, for the most part of newly graduated college men. George Lytton, son of H. C. Lytton, president of The Hub, was a member of this organization.

Then was formed an amateur orchestra under the conductorship of Palmer J. Clark, with George Lytton as president; Emory C. Andrews of the Philip Ruxton Company, vice president, and Lloyd R. Steere, secretary of the Central Trust Company, as secretary and treasurer.

The first public performance to attract the attention generally of the city was an entertainment in 1922 called "One-half of One Per Cent," given at the University Club under the direction of Lloyd Steere. At this time the orchestra consisted of one bass viol, one bassoon, one trombone, two horns, one oboe, two flutes, two clarinets, two cellos, one viola, three second fiddles and four first violins.

Quite a difference from this modest beginning to the present full-quota orchestra!

From that time on, the growth of the Business Men's Orchestra was steady if not rapid. Musicians are not made overnight. But under the stimulating influence and guiding hand of George Lytton, other musically inclined hard-headed business men were enlisted and made enthusiastic members of the "ensemble," as the critics call it.

At first rehearsals were held in a rambling gallery of the Art Institute, that incongruous red sandstone edifice on Michigan avenue. But acoustics were unfavorable and other conditions were unsatisfactory so rather than to jeopardize success of the orchestra Mr. Lytton tore out half the partitions on the seventh floor of the Lytton Building and had installed a miniature theater.

Here rehearsals are now held, every Friday night from September to June.

George Lytton, founder, president and bass fiddle player of the orchestra.

THE early years of the orchestra were not without tragedy and comedy. The members were "kidded" by their associates. They were often harassed by outside influences. But they kept steadily on.

It is told of George Lytton that he became disgusted with carrying his bass viol, or, "bull fiddle," from one place to another. That he bought one for his Art Institute practice, then another for his town house use, a third for his country home at Highland Park, a fourth for strumming at the University Club.

"It's a wonderful change from the routine of a business office!" said Mr. Lytton. "The boys won't miss a rehearsal on Friday night now for anything. Ninety-eight per cent present every week since we organized. And we're getting better and better!"

First rehearsal of the organization which now has ninety members.

How Emil Marek Involun Won Success and Rich

VIENNA.

IS IT, from a psychological point of view, within reason that a brilliant young man, gifted with many talents and just at the beginning of a promising career, should inflict upon himself a horrible wound that would make him a cripple for life, in order to cheat an insurance company? On the other hand, is it believable that a poor man, living in scanty circumstances, should take out an accident insurance policy of $400,000, and 24 hours after receiving the policy should meet with an accident grave enough to call for the immediate payment on the $400,000 policy?

These were the two questions to be weighed by the Vienna Supreme Court when the sensational case of Emil Marek came up for trial a few weeks ago. It was a strange and unusual affair, full of mysterious details.

EMIL MAREK, a young civil engineer, lived in Moedling, a suburb of Vienna, with his wife Martha, who was many years his senior. Mrs. Marek, before her marriage to Marek, had been supported by an elderly man who had died and willed her the furniture of his modest apartment. This furniture constituted the only assets of the Marek couple. The husband had no position, no income. The wife had never done any work outside of her own household.

Marek, however, had a scheme that promised to yield a fortune if only he could put it over. He had worked out a gigantic and quite feasible plan for the electrification of an Austrian province, the so-called "Burgenland," at a surprisingly low cost and with immense possibilities for industrial development. He negotiated with various cities and corporations which were not disinclined to accept the proposition. But Marek had no money and his project involved the investment of millions.

He began negotiations with certain English banks in regard to the financing of his electrification plan. The banks demanded personal securities, and Marek took out $400,000 life and accident insurance policies, offering these as guarantees.

The negotiations dragged on slowly. Marek required money to keep above water until the consummation of his many contracts, and he worked on an invention which he hoped to sell for a few hundred dollars. It was a mobile

Swam Eight Miles Through Storm to Save Husband

GEORGETOWN, South Carolina.

BY HER heroic swimming, when swimming was necessary to save a life, Mrs. Anita Forster of Brooklyn has made herself a heroine. Not a heroine of the vaudeville circuit or the sport page. At swimming channels she probably wouldn't make any showing worth mentioning. She doesn't perform high diving feats or give exhibitions of fancy strokes. She is a practical, determined swimmer who swims like a bulldog fights.

A few days ago an emergency arose which put Mrs. Forster's nerve and skill to a rigorous test. To save her sick husband, who was drifting out to sea on a disabled yacht, she battled waves and undertow from morning until afternoon. She carried a small boat on her back across the south jetty near here, and then, after it had been overturned by the waves, she struck out for the mainland and swam eight miles through a rough sea, which swept over her at almost every stroke. She was unconscious when she reached the rocks. But she recovered and reached a lighthouse, from which help was sent to her husband.

Captain and Mrs. A. Walter Forster were sailing for Florida aboard their yacht, the Sea Hawk, when the engine of the vessel went dead off Georgetown on June 7. The seaward drift of the yacht foretold disaster unless help reached them from shore. Forster, convalescing from an operation, was in a weakened condition that made violent exertion impossible.

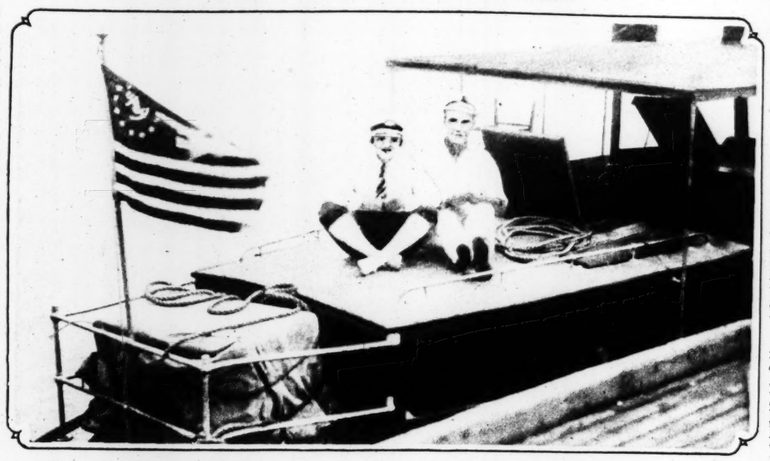
In spite of his protests, his wife launched their small boat and started for the lighthouse. A shoal intervened—she carried the boat on her back across the strip of land. Waves overturned the boat—she swam eight miles to shore. Blackness closed over her as she fell in a faint on the sands—she raised herself, stumbled over rocks that cut her feet and reached the lighthouse.

To a newspaper writer who found the couple recuperating at North Island, Mrs. Forster told the story of her heroic adventure.

"OH, IT was nothing," she insisted in her slightly broken English. "I would do the same again if my husband was in so bad a fix. Somebody had to go for help. The engine stopped running when we were near the south jetty and near the sea. No anchors would hold on the sand bottom, and the wind was blowing so very hard. My husband, he had just been operated on. He could not go. I would not let him, though he plead wid me, and say he would go anyhow. We get the small boat out and I go aboard. I saw the lighthouse way ahead, and knew there was where I must go for help. I pulled the boat hard to keep from turning over, and at last I got to the island they call Bird Shoals.

"On Bird Shoals I had to put the boat on my back and carry it across the south jetty, so I could start again for the lighthouse. But I am strong, you see, and I made it all right. Then I put the boat in the water again, and row as hard as I can. But, my, the waves were high! One big fellow lifted my boat up way high, and then threw it down hard on one side. I rolled out, and the boat turned upside down, and I could not catch it.

"Then I looked up and saw the lighthouse, and I knew I must get there. My husband was alone on the yacht, and if it drifted much more it would go to pieces on the rocks. I told myself I had to get to the lighthouse, so I swim the best I know how. I believe every wave went over my head, and they were so high and so rough. The wind pull me one way and the tide pull me the other. Then a big wave would come and drive me on yards and yards. Soon I did not know what I was doing, and everything went black. I don't know how long it was, but it must have been hours, for they say I went eight miles. The next thing I know I was holding on tight to a big rock, and then I looked up. The lighthouse seemed nearer, so I said to myself, 'I am on north jetty.' I pulled myself up, then I faint. A long time I stay there, because when I waked up the sun was going down. I had started from the yacht at 10 o'clock in the morning.



Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Forster.

"Oh, those rocks were rough to my feet! And so many of them! I would stumble and fall, and then get up again. I saw the lighthouse right in front of me, and I could not give up. And there was my husband waiting for help. I walked and walked, and thought some time I must give up. But how could I give up? 'No, no,' I say to myself, 'you are a big, strong girl, and you can make it.'

"The sun was not very high in the sky when I fall down right by the lighthouse. I called and called, and soon the lighthouse keeper saw me and picked me up. He carried me to his house, and his good wife went to work. She gave me something to drink and then put me in a nice, warm bath.

"I tell them to stop fooling with me and go after my husband. Then they told me that Mr. Chris Danilson and Mr. Charles Danilson had gone out to look for the yacht. Mrs. Criscello, the lighthouse keeper's wife, then put me in bed and told me not to worry.

"After the sun had gone down they came in wid my husband, and, my, how glad I was to see him! When I see he was safe and sound, then I went to sleep."

CAPTAIN FORSTER and his wife have been in this country only a few years. Forster is a native of Switzerland, and Mrs. Forster is from Germany.

While Anita was battling with the waves, Walter Forster was having no picnic. Worried over the fate of his wife, and believing that any second his yacht might be ground to pieces on the jutting rocks of south jetty, he paced up and down the deck, trying to devise some means of effecting a safe landing. The angry seas used the anchors for playthings, the boat drifted on.

Just when things looked blackest, he heard voices and the sound of a motor boat, and in a few minutes a rescuing party was alongside, and the hearty voices of Chris and Charles Danilson, two local fishermen, were booming out the news that Anita Forster had reached the lighthouse.

CAPT. and Mrs. Forster are camera shy, and protest vigorously about being written up "too big" in the newspapers. After much coaxing, Mrs. Forster consented to have her picture taken, but delayed things for some time by hunting for her yachting cap, which she insisted she must wear in the picture.

Anita Forster is a typical German beauty, with bright blue eyes that sparkle continually, pearly teeth, golden curls, and ruddy cheeks. She is plump, and shows the effect of vigorous outdoor life.

Two days after her adventure she was skipping about the yacht, and disporting herself on the sandy beach, calling out to her husband not to be "so slow." Her hands still bear witness to her struggle on the jetty rocks, but are rapidly healing.

Mr. and Mrs. Forster are greatly appreciative of the aid rendered by the lighthouse keeper and his wife, and the two Danilsons. But these folks tell her that to her alone goes the credit for saving her husband's life.

$400,000 for One Lost Leg

VIENNA.

IS IT, from a psychological point of view, within reason that a brilliant young man, gifted with many talents and just at the beginning of a promising career, should inflict upon himself a horrible wound that would make him a cripple for life, in order to cheat an insurance company? On the other hand, is it believable that a poor man, living in scanty circumstances, should take out an accident insurance policy of $400,000, and 24 hours after receiving the policy should meet with an accident grave enough to call for the immediate payment on the $400,000 policy?

These were the two questions to be weighed by the Vienna Supreme Court when the sensational case of Emil Marek came up for trial a few weeks ago. It was a strange and unusual affair, full of mysterious details.

Emil Marek.

EMIL MAREK, a young civil engineer, lived in Moedling, a suburb of Vienna, with his wife Martha, who was many years his senior. Mrs. Marek, before her marriage to Marek, had been supported by an elderly man who had died and willed her the furniture of his modest apartment. This furniture constituted the only assets of the Marek couple. The husband had no position, no income. The wife had never done any work outside of her own household.

Marek, however, had a scheme that promised to yield a fortune if only he could put it over. He had worked out a gigantic and quite feasible plan for the electrification of an Austrian province, the so-called "Burgenland," at a surprisingly low cost and with immense possibilities for industrial development. He negotiated with various cities and corporations, which were not disinclined to accept the proposition. But Marek had no money and his project involved the investment of millions.

He began negotiations with certain English banks in regard to the financing of his electrification plan. The banks demanded personal securities, and Marek took out $400,000 life and accident insurance policies, offering these as guarantees.

The negotiations dragged on slowly. Marek required money to keep above water until the consummation of his many contracts, and he worked on an invention which he hoped to sell for a few hundred dollars. It was a mobile puppet of wood, designed for advertising purposes.

A FEW months ago Marek received his policy from the casualty company. It called for a payment of $400,000 in case of a grave accident.

The next day Marek worked on his invention in the garden of the house in Moedling, where he lived. He chopped some wood as material for his invention. In some way the ax slipped, or else he made a false move and struck, instead of the log of wood, his right leg. It was a terrific blow, which cut through the shinbone and almost severed the leg from the body.

Marek was rushed to a hospital, where amputation was performed. Simultaneously he was arrested on the charge of attempted fraud. He was accused by the insurance company of having cut off his leg intentionally to get the money.

The affair created an immense sensation. Its peculiar and contrasting points were hotly debated in the public press. It seemed incredible that a man should cut off his leg in such a savage way in order to get money fraudulently. On the other hand, the evidence against Marek was overwhelming. A famous Austrian surgeon—he was the expert for the insurance company—testified that the severed leg could not have been so cut off with a single blow and that the bone bore marks of manipulation after the "accident."

A servant at the Moedling Hospital, where Marek was treated, testified that he saw the wounded man tampering with the severed part of his leg and when he threatened to call the attention of the doctors to this fact Mrs. Marek offered him money to forget what he had seen. The long speech of the prosecutor to the jury when the case came up in court revealed the past of Mrs. Marek, and certain damaging episodes from the life of the defendant. He said that Marek assumed titles to which he had no claim, and as to his wife, she was for years the mistress of the deceased elderly gentleman who supported them both. She nursed her "benefactor" in the hope of inheriting his fortune. When the old man died she married young Marek and got him completely under her influence.

TOWARD the end of the trial, however, the aspect of the case underwent a sudden and unexpected change. The first indication that at least a part of the circumstantial evidence against Marek was dubious was the testimony of a famous Austrian alienist, who, as the expert of the court, made a scientific analysis regarding Marek's character. He said that Marek was an extraordinarily gifted, ambitious young man of original ideas, of an iron will and of a naturally upright character.

The second blow the prosecution received was the testimony of the managers of those corporations with which Marek had negotiated regarding his Burgenland electrification scheme. All of these men asserted that Marek's project was brilliant, absolutely feasible and that they seriously considered its acceptance.

The court, wishing to clear up this point completely, asked the president of the Vienna University to pronounce upon Marek's project. The witness, an honored scientist himself, corroborated the report of the various corporation managers, and said that he considered Marek not only a very able young man, but really a genius.

Still, the main point—namely, whether Marek had cut off his leg intentionally or by accident—remained undecided.

AT THIS juncture, just three days before the end of the trial, the dramatic testimony of a new witness cleared away the last doubts. The witness was a woman, stricken with a fatal illness, and practically on her deathbed. She was the wife of an apothecary in Moedling, living only a few doors from the Marek apartment. She testified that she had been an eyewitness to the accident and saw exactly how it happened. The leg, she said, was actually cut off with a single blow. She told the details, and her testimony was so precise in every way that there could be no doubt she was telling the truth. On the same day the accident happened the woman had a severe heart attack and was taken to a hospital and did not see the newspapers. She knew nothing of the Marek case, and when she learned of the young engineer's being accused of fraud, she immediately sent word to the prosecutor, offering to testify.

THE court suspended trial for three days. These were days of high-pitched expectation for the Vienna public, days of guessing what the verdict would be. The most important witness, the wife of the apothecary, died 24 hours before that verdict was to be pronounced. On the final day scores of newspaper correspondents arrived in Vienna and the crowded courtroom listened in breathless silence to the words of the Judge.

The court acquitted Marek and his wife.

It was a touching, dramatic moment when, after the pronouncement of the acquittal, Mrs. Marek ran to her husband, who had gone through the ordeal of the trial lying on a cot, still suffering agonizing torture. The crowd sympathetically applauded.

Now lucrative offers are being showered upon Marek. His Burgenland project will be put under way, and he will be a rich man in a few years, even independently of the $400,000 which the insurance company must now pay to the man who involuntarily became famous and rich at the sacrifice of his right leg.

MY MOST THRILLING AIR EXPERIENCES

By CASEY JONES

One of a Series of Articles by Famous Air Pilots, Which Will Appear In the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine.

THE most uncomfortable flight I ever made was last September, taking Gene Tunney from Strassberg, Pennsylvania, his training camp, to the Sesquicentennial at Philadelphia, where the fight was to be held. Weather conditions were extremely unfavorable for flying, due to low clouds, which hid the top of the mountains and made navigation extremely difficult. I explained the situation to Gene, who asked if I was going to make the flight. I advised him I had to be in Philadelphia in order to bring back pictures of the fight to New York that evening, and he replied that he was going if I did, so we took off. We left the golf links of the Buckwood Inn, Shawnee on the Delaware, where I had picked up Tunney. I started through the Water Gap, where the Delaware River makes two sharp turns through the mountains. Clouds were so low that I was forced down to within 100 feet of the water and after once getting through the gap I did not dare turn around, fearing that the fog had closed in tightly behind me. Until this time I had given very little thought to the responsibility of the flight, as cross-country flights were a matter of every-day occurrence. I looked down at the road which follows the river. Like an army of black ants crowding one on top of the other, I saw a great crowd of cars, all going in one direction—to Philadelphia for the fight, and the crowds continued as far as the eye could see. I suddenly became uncomfortable with the consciousness of the fact that I was in an extremely precarious position. I, and I alone, was responsible for the safe arrival of Gene. I thought of what it would mean if I failed, and the chances of failing were not uncertain at that time.

THE minute I left the river I became enveloped in a thick cloud, so that it would be easily possible to run into the side of a hill without seeing it, and this necessitated following the winding course of the Delaware through the hills. The best of motors do not always perform perfectly in foggy weather; even the most skillful pilots could not be depended upon to outride the elements—a mishap resulting in the slightest fracture of a finger would be a catastrophe for Tunney. If I only had him safely in Philadelphia, I thought as I flew. I was stricken with fear that something might happen and had a mental picture of the storm of criticism I would justly get for having started out with him in such uncertain weather.

Casey Jones.

Well, once a fellow starts worrying, it doesn't take long before everything seems to go wrong. From that time on I had a constant series of minor troubles that almost made me gray-haired, but, fortunately, nothing happened and we landed on the flying field at Philadelphia, somewhat delayed but safely, and, I want to tell you I breathed a deep sigh of relief when he hopped sprightly out of the plane and into a waiting circle of friends who greeted him.

ANOTHER thrilling experience was on my way to Chicago, when I had a forced landing. I ran into a fog and for two hours I flew through it by compass. I had no parachute and it was pretty scary business to plow into a dense fog, where you wouldn't know until you hit something if you did, and that would probably be too late. I finally reached the end of the fog somewhere in Pennsylvania, and I flew low to see if I could find some railroad stations or road posts to indicate where I was. I had just located myself and started to climb up again, when, about 500 or 600 feet up, four cylinders suddenly cut out entirely. Of course, I had to get down to earth as quickly as possible. I was just over a box factory beside a cornfield, and that's where I landed. Just made it at that.

I investigated the cause of the trouble and found that a jet had dropped out of the carburetor. It was something that I could not possibly do without and if lost, it meant that I would have to return to the factory for one or wait until it could be sent, either of which would throw me off my schedule. I made a search of the plane, in the vain hope of finding it somewhere around, and, sure enough, there it was, lying in the corner of the floor of the plane. I put it in and started off again as though nothing had happened.

But I dread to think of what might have happened if the jet had come out just 10 minutes sooner and I had been forced down in that blind fog! I probably wouldn't be here telling you the story of it today.

The SILVER BOWL

By Ellis Parker Butler

EDWARD MINDATON sat reading a book. Until quite recently he had read no books, having been busy making a million dollars; but now he had discovered books, and he was reading them with delight.

This book of the ex-Ambassador's memoirs was like a visit to a newly discovered country. He had an amazing respect for the writer and a keen interest in the incidents set down.

As Ed Mindaton read the page on which his attention was set, he began to smile, then he chuckled, and finally, as he reached the point of the incident the ex-Ambassador was detailing, he laughed heartily. He looked into the distance, playing with an amusing idea of his own.

The book Ed Mindaton was reading was a book of memoirs entitled "The Days Before Yesterday," and he had been attracted to it by the fact that the author was a Lord—Lord Frederick Hamilton. The episode he had just read had to do with a costly necklace of pearls, the property of the wife of a diplomat assigned to the capital of a small Balkan nation. At a dinner party at the British legation in this nameless state, one of the Balkanese gentlemen admired the necklace, and the lady passed her pearls around for examination. On the way around, the pearls disappeared. Evidently some one of the Balkanese was a souvenir hunter! But the Ambassador thought he knew his Balkans.

As in many other stories—although Ed Mindaton had never heard them—the Ambassador locked the doors of the room. He then placed a small silver bowl in the center of the dinner table. "I am now going to switch off all the lights," he said, "and count to 10 slowly. When I have reached 10 I shall turn on the lights again, and—presto! Madame de ——'s necklace will be found lying in that silver bowl!" The room was plunged in darkness; the Ambassador counted slowly up to 10. The lights blazed again; there was no necklace; but the silver bowl had also vanished!

IT WAS certainly an amusing tale. Ed Mindaton began to chuckle again. He walked to the mantel and took from it a bowl slightly smaller than a fingerbowl, a beautifully carved affair, set with rare gems, and —like the bowl in the Ambassador's party—pure silver. Still smiling, Ed Mindaton walked across to the dining room. He moved one of the articles on the mantel there and put the silver bowl in its place. Then he returned to the library.

Mrs. Ada Mindaton, his wife, was giving, the next night, one of the somewhat grand dinners to which she had become addicted. She, too, had a pearl necklace. Ed had paid $50,000 for it, which included the diamond clasp, and his wife invariably wore it at her dinners.

Mindaton recalled that his wife had told him she was placing Mrs. Tulkington Orr at his right and Mrs. Branch at his left. He could not recall whether Mrs. Branch wore a necklace, but Mrs. Orr's diamond necklace was famous, and she would be sure to wear it —she always did. He remembered—and grinned—that, at the last dinner given by Ada, the Orr necklace had become unclasped, falling inside Mrs. Orr's bodice and causing considerable amusement, and this would give him a reasonable excuse, at the coming dinner, for speaking of necklace clasps.

The dinner, the next evening, proceeded excellently for Ed's purpose, except in one respect. Almost at the last minute Mrs. Orr had telephoned that one of her children seemed to have a fever, and that she and Mr. Orr could not be present, and Mrs. Mindaton, in this emergency, seated Cameo Merdin at Ed's right. Mrs. Branch wore some pretty beads, which were passed around for inspection.

Ed caught Ada's eye.

"Ada," he said, "will you let us see your pearls a moment? Miss Merdin wants to see the clasp."

Ada Mindaton raised her hands to unclasp the pearls, but her neighbor on her right, young George Parloss, was quick to aid her. He unclasped the pearls and handed them to his neighbor on his right, Mary (Mrs. Samuel) Ordner, and the pearls passed up that side of the table and on to Noble Hattan, to the noisy Mrs. Branch, and to Ed Mindaton. For a few moments, Ed and Cameo bent over them, and then Ed called to Mrs. Ordner, far down the table.

"What did you say, Mary?" he asked.

"I? Nothing, Ed," she responded.

"Beg pardon," Ed said. "Thought you asked me something."

He returned Mrs. Branch's beads to her and she slipped them over her head, not ceasing talking. Cameo Merdin turned to her neighbor on the right, young John Truesol. This was Ed's opportunity, and he reached his right hand behind him and dropped the pearls into the left-hand tail pocket of his dress coat.

Mindaton saw that Ada was tapping nervously on the table. She was glancing from one guest to another, and her anxiety was evidently multiplying momentarily. Presently she caught the eye of Riggs, and the butler went to her. She whispered something to him, and he walked around the table to Mindaton.

Carter, the under butler, was filling Mindaton's liqueur glass, and Riggs stood still until this was done, and then bent over Ed's shoulder and whispered in his ear that the pearls had not been returned to Mrs. Mindaton. Ed arose, as if to make an after-dinner speech. Carter, with the liquor carafe, went behind the Japanese screen.

"I'm sorry, folks," Ed said, "but my wife passed her pearls around the table, and they haven't come back. They must have dropped on the floor; just look, will you, please?"

THERE was immediate confusion. Everyone looked on the floor, moving chairs, bending down. Everyone moved such dishes as were left before him. Ed himself moved the napkin he had put on the table and stepped back to look at the floor.

When he raised his head, he saw three things that were unexpected. He saw the face of Cameo Merdin turn as ashen as her ash-colored hair; he saw the face of George Parloss—sitting next Ada, at the far end of the table—turn pale, as he looked at Ada; and he saw Ada herself, white as a ghost, but for the splotches of rouge that now appeared brick-red against her paleness.

Even as Ed looked at her, she put her hand to her heart and would have fallen, but George Parloss, on one side, and big Will Turnbridge, at the other hand, were quick to support her. Turnbridge reached for water and Parloss reached for wine. In a moment Ada was smiling, but she ignored Turnbridge and leaned against Parloss, clutching his arm with her hand. Even this unexpected display of emotion did not disarrange the hard tidiness of the little woman: Cameo Merdin, on the contrary, seemed to have aged 20 years, and appeared unkempt and almost slovenly.

The attention of the company turned to Ed Mindaton, for he was still standing.

"Well, well!" he exclaimed, trying to carry on the affair as jovially as he could, with the face of his half-fainting wife before him. "No pearls? But we won't let that worry us—not any of us. We're all honest folks. There's no question of stealing, but that string cost me a good $50,000, and I guess Ada don't want to lose it. What I think is that somebody has been having a little fun with us. Who has the pearls, folks?"

He looked around the table. No one, it seemed, admitted having the pearls.

"All right," said Mindaton; "there's another way. Joke or no joke, none of us wants to leave here with those pearls missing; it might look as if one of us were the thief. I'm going to lock the door, and no one is to leave this room; then I'm going to put a bowl in the middle of the table, and I'm going to put out the light; I am going to ask everybody to walk around the table slowly, while I count 100. At 100, Riggs will turn on the lights. I hope the pearls will be in the bowl. And that will be that. Now"——

AS MINDATON spoke, most of the guests gave him serious attention. But the young lawyer, Noble Hattan, went to Mrs. Mindaton. Ed saw them converse in whispers, but not so secretly that young George Parloss did not put in a word, now and then. Cameo Merdin, as Mindaton spoke, grasped the bag she held in her lap and looked hurriedly from side to side, as if seeking a place to hide it.

It was just here that Mindaton first felt that his little jest might be a mistake, but it was too late to pause. He took the silver bowl from the mantel. Ada and George Parloss and Noble Hattan ended their confab, and Hattan returned to his place. Hattan seated himself, but his eyes never left Mindaton's face.

"I'll use this bowl, folks," Mindaton said. "A good bowl to put pearls in, huh? Shouldn't wonder if it had had pearls in it before—I got it in Florence; paid a lot for it, too. Solid silver. I'll put this dolly in it, so the pearls won't jingle-jangle when they drop into their little nest. Now the doors."

Ada Mindaton and Noble Hattan watched every movement Ed Mindaton was making. One door was a double door, heavily paneled, drawing together out of recesses in the walls, but of this door Ada Mindaton knew something Ed did not know—it had no key; there had been no key in the lock for years; but now Mindaton walked to the door and appeared to turn a key.

"Riggs," said Mindaton to the butler, "you'll turn out the lights when I count one. You and Carter will then join us in the parade around the table. We will all, please, take our seats when I count 100, and you, Riggs, will turn on the lights. Are you all ready?"

"No, we're not ready!" said a hard voice, and Mindaton turned to see Noble Hattan standing. He was a dark-browed man, and, as he stood there, his jaw stuck out menacingly. Across the table Hattan's young wife looked at him with surprise. Ada Mindaton, some natural color now in her cheeks, picked at the tablecloth nervously.

"No, we're not ready, and we'll stop this nonsense here!" said Noble Hattan. "We've had enough of it now; it has gone too far. Mindaton is my host," he said, turning to the others, "and I appreciate that, but you see what this implies—that someone here is a thief. It means I'm a thief, or you're a thief, or another of us is a thief."

Riggs, at the light switch, hesitated.

"If we work this hocus-pocus-count-one-hundred business that Mindaton proposes, what comes of it?" Hattan continued sneeringly. "The pearls are put in that bowl, and we go away, not knowing who is the thief—each suspecting and never forgetting. I am not going to stand for that! I don't care for myself—call me a thief, if you please—but I'm not going to have my wife insulted. There's a right way and a wrong way to find those pearls. Sit down, Mindaton!"

It was not fair for Hattan to steal his jest, Mindaton thought, but he sat down, the smile on his face being rather silly.

"KEEP that door locked," Hattan commanded, "and leave those lights alone. And now attention! What did you do with the pearls, Mrs. Mindaton?"

"I handed them to Mr. Parloss," Ada said.

"Just so! And what did you do with the pearls, Parloss?"

"I handed them to Mrs. Ordner," Parloss answered.

"You had them, Mrs. Ordner? What did you do with them?"

She had handed them to her neighbor on her right, and thus Hattan traced them from hand to hand, until he reached Mrs. Branch, who sat next to Mindaton.

"You received the pearls? What did you do with them?" Hattan asked Mrs. Branch.

"I handed them to Ed," she said, meaning Mindaton.

"All right," said Hattan, with almost vicious promptness. "She handed them to you, Mindaton," and he passed Mindaton and Cameo Merdin and attacked John Truesol, who sat next to Cameo.

"Did you receive the pearls, Truesol?" he demanded.

For an instant Truesol hesitated.

"No," he said then. "They did not come to me."

Next to Truesol sat Mrs. Hattan.

"Dot," demanded the lawyer-inquisitor, "did you have the pearls?"

"No, Noble," she answered.

"Did any of you below my wife, on that side of the table, see or touch those pearls this evening?" demanded Noble Hattan.

None on that side of the table had. Hattan turned to Mindaton again.

"Mrs. Branch handed the pearls to you, Mindaton," Hattan said. "What did you do with the pearls? If we don't find the pearls this way, I have Mrs. Mindaton's permission to search everyone, and I shall begin with you, and, if that doesn't find them, I shall call in the police. I'll ask just one more question: Miss Merdin, did Mindaton hand the pearls to you?"

"No!" Cameo whispered faintly.

"No!" repeated Hattan. "And I know he didn't. Mindaton has those pearls in his pocket. I guessed what his hocus-pocus was as soon as it started. I'll tell Mindaton, here and now, that this joke is just about as bad taste as anything could be, and that he is not the only man who has read that ex-Ambassador's book."

"This implies that some one here is a thief."

"I read it," boomed Turnbridge. "The pearls wouldn't have been in the bowl, but the bowl would have been gone."

"Well, Mindaton?" said Hattan, in the tone of a man who was patient, but not too patient.

Mindaton arose. "I beg everybody's pardon," he said. "I'm sorry. I just thought you folks would enjoy a joke and"——

He was feeling in his pocket, and now a look of amazement came upon his face.

"They're gone! They're not there!" he exclaimed, and, oddly enough, he looked at Cameo Merdin.

"Did you take them?" he asked.

"How dare you!" she began, but Hattan interrupted.

"Look in your other pockets!" he ordered angrily.

Mindaton went through his pockets again and again.

"I can't find them, Hattan," Mindaton said, beads of moisture on his forehead.

ADA MINDATON was grasping the table with both hands, and the fright shown by her face was even greater than that indicated by Cameo Merdin's ashy countenance. Noble Hattan questioned her with his eyebrows, and Ada nodded sharply. The lawyer rapped on the table.

"Mindaton," he ordered, "go behind that screen and search yourself to the skin. My client—I should say my hostess—must have those pearls returned to her before any one leaves this room. I shall make this as easy as I can for you all," he said, as Mindaton stood feeling his pockets. "If Mindaton does not find the pearls, another means must be tried. We shall finish what Mindaton started and file around the table in the dark, while I count one hundred. Those pearls must be found in that bowl, or we must all be searched."

Hattan walked around to the screen.

"One minute, you!" said Ed Mindaton. "You don't go behind that screen alone; you are in this boat with the rest of us."

"Ordner," said Hattan coldly, "come with me."

They went behind the screen and, a minute later, they moved it to a corner.

"The door into the pantry was not locked," said Hattan grimly; "the door into the kitchen was not locked; the whole house can be reached from the kitchen."

Sam Ordner and William Turnbridge now went behind the screen with Riggs, Carter and Mindaton, and the three were searched with thoroughness, but, when they emerged, Sam Ordner announced that the pearls had not been found.

They were interrupted by Hattan, who had been studying the faces of those at the table.

The thing to do, Hattan saw—now that every one was frightened—was to work the count-one-hundred scheme and allow the pearls to be dropped into the bowl in the dark.

"Attention, all!" he said, rapping on the table, and he announced, as Mindaton had, the count-one-hundred plan was about to begin.

"And we may as well understand," he said, "that, if the pearls are not returned to the bowl while we are walking around the table, and before the lights flash on, every person here must submit to a personal search, and that, if the pearls are not then found, we will have the police in. The pearls must be found! Are you ready now? Riggs, turn out the lights. One—two—"

All began filing around the table.

"—three—four—five—" Hattan counted slowly, as he moved around the table. Mrs. Branch laughed rather hysterically.

"Please hold your hands out over the bowl as you pass it," Hattan said. "Six—seven—eight—"

"All around the raspberry bush," said Mrs. Branch, and laughed.

"thirty-five—thirty-six—"

"Wait a minute, Hattan," she called. "There's something wrong here; I can't find the bowl."

"Lights, Riggs," said Hattan, and the lights blazed. All looked at the table. There were no pearls in the bowl—the bowl itself was gone!

Into the silence William Turnbridge's hearty guffaw of a laugh burst, and Mrs. Branch added her almost hysterical merriment. Mindaton, his thumb caught in his waistcoat pockets, stared at Hattan, open-mouthed. Cameo Merdin stood as if frozen.

It was the laughter that angered Hattan most. His first feeling was that everyone had conspired to make a fool of him; his second thought was that, although some buffoon had taken the bowl from the table, the necklace was still missing.

"Funny, no doubt!" he sneered. "But, we are going to find those pearls before any one leaves this room."

"Why not put another bowl on the table, Noble?" Mrs. Branch asked. "Ed Mindaton has lots of bowls."

HATTAN glared at the female jester. He thrust his left hand into the pocket of his coat, and his face became fiery red as his hand touched something hard and convex and rough—it was the silver bowl!

He placed the bowl on the table; but his eyes shone with genuine anger. "Just the same," he said, and his voice trembled, "we are going to have those pearls. Turnbridge, find a telephone, will you, and call the.."

He stopped short, for his hand returned to the pocket and he drew out Mrs. Mindaton's pearl necklace!

"I consider this a most unwarranted and insulting affair!" he said angrily; but Mrs. Branch put her hand on his arm. "Oh! Noble, you great baby!" she cried. "Can't you understand a little fun? I put the bowl in your pocket; I put the pearls there. I took them out of Ed's pocket, when I saw him hiding them, you goose! I think it has been a wonderful evening; we've had some real excitement, for once. Thank you, Ed; and you were wonderful, too, Noble, just being yourself. And here are your pearls in your silver bowl, if that's where you want them."

She took the pearls from Hattan's hand and laughingly dropped them into the bowl.

"I think," Noble Hattan was saying to Mrs. Branch, "this affair has been in extremely bad taste. Certainly, I shall never come to this house again." He thrust his hands into his coat pockets as he turned away, but, as his right hand found the depths of its pocket, a look of dismay came upon his face. His fingers touched pearls —many pearls—a necklace of pearls.

He glanced at Ada Mindaton and saw her fastening the necklace around her throat, and then he drew forth his hand and saw that same necklace, or its replica. He thrust his hand hastily into his pocket again and looked toward Ada Mindaton. She had met Truesol now and was speaking eagerly, but in a whisper.

"John," she was saying, "what did you do? These are the real pearls."

"YES," he said, "I know. I did not dare keep them on me—I might have been searched. I slipped them in Hattan's pocket—the bowl wasn't on the table. But it will be all right, Ada. Your debts are not so pressing as all that; I can get these tomorrow and sell them for you, just the same."

"But you can't," she said. "Where are the others? If Ed has them—if he sees they are imitation—if he learns of my bridge debts——"

"You poor lady!" said Truesol, but he had time to say no more, for Cameo Merdin touched Ada's arm.

"Were you talking of your other pearls?" Cameo asked. "I think Mr. Hattan has them; I'm sure he would like to get rid of them. I think I'll go now; I have had such a pleasant evening."

"Cat!" said Mrs. Mindaton to herself, but she turned to Noble Hattan.

Later that evening, Ed Mindaton sat in his library, waiting until his wife was in her room, for he did not wish to discuss the evening with her so soon. Riggs came to him there.

"I beg your pardon, Mr. Mindaton," Riggs said, "but Carter and myself wish to leave."

"Oh, now, Riggs!" exclaimed Mindaton. "Don't kick a man when he is down!"

"I'm sorry, sir," said Riggs firmly, "but we have quite made up our minds. These merry jests may be amusing to our superiors, sir, but they cause us gentlemen in service extreme mental anguish, if I may use the words."

"Well, I had some mental anguish of my own, for a while there, Riggs," said Mindaton. "Look here, Riggs, you and Carter stay. I give you my word of honor I'll never try to pull another joke."

"Thank you, sir," said Riggs. "That quite alters the case. And shall I replace the bowl in the library, sir?"

"You take that bowl!" ordered Mindaton. "And keep it. And, if I ever see it again I'll shoot you. Understand? If I ever see that silver bowl again, I'll shoot you!"

"Yes, Mr. Mindaton," said Riggs.

"And Riggs," said Mindaton.

"Yes, Mr. Mindaton?"

"If I ever try to work one of these funny jokes again," said Mindaton, "you shoot me."

"Oh, that marvelous rootbeer punch!"

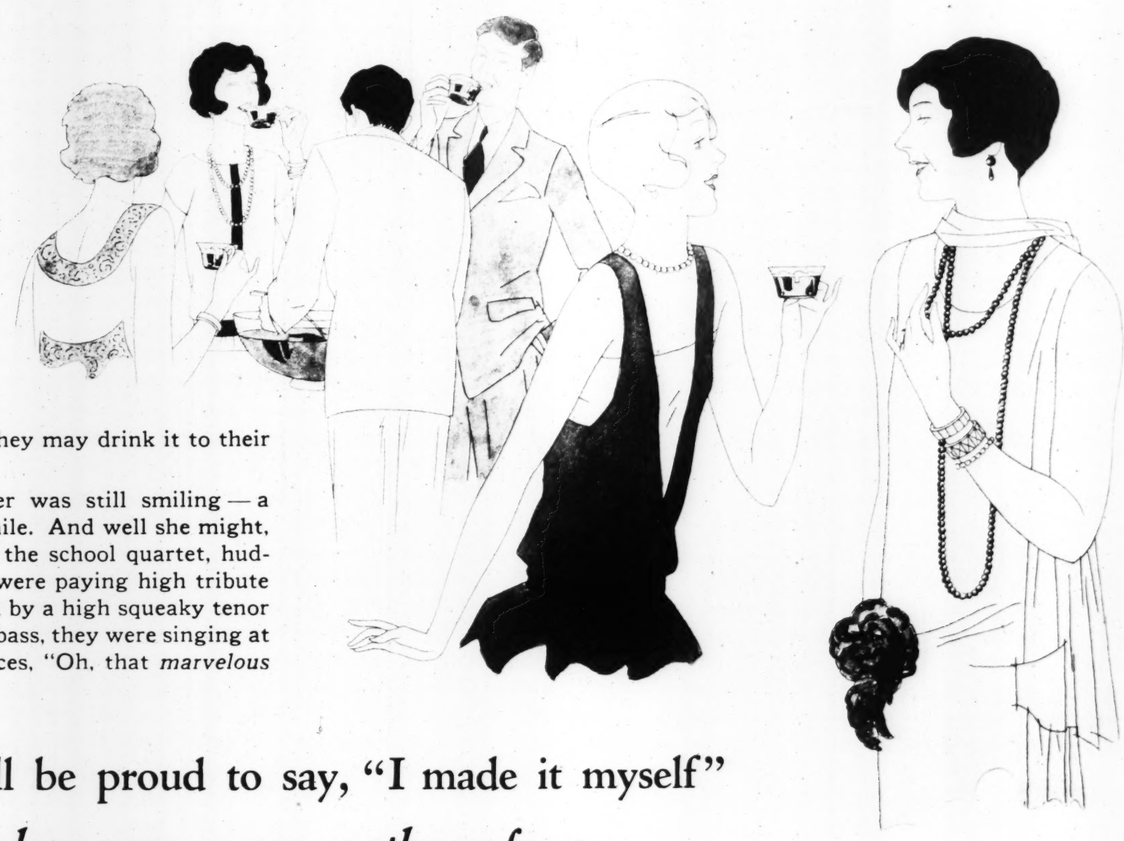
And mother made it from Hires Household Extract

"MOTHER, I simply can't keep them away from the dining-room. Nobody's dancing at all. They all say they're thirsty and keep asking me for more punch."

Margaret's mother smiled as she looked around at her daughter's happy party. High school boys in their Sunday best. Pretty girls in fluffy evening gowns — soft pink — pale green—sky blue. Cheerful, carefree children, with not a worry in the world.

"Let them have every bit they want, honey," said Mrs. Green. "It's simply rootbeer that I made from Hires Household Extract. And it's so easy to fix, so inexpensive and wholesome! They may drink it to their hearts' content."



Margaret's mother was still smiling — a bright, delighted smile. And well she might, for the members of the school quartet, huddled in one corner, were paying high tribute to her art. Featured by a high squeaky tenor and a low rumbling bass, they were singing at the top of their voices, "Oh, that marvelous rootbeer punch!"

You will be proud to say, "I made it myself"

when you serve rootbeer from Hires Household Extract—and the cost is less than a cent a glass

FOAMY, sparkling rootbeer. A drink to delight the taste of every member of your family! You can make it yourself at home, easily . . . inexpensively. And in these days, there's a thrill that goes with the thought of "home-made" things.

A delicious, healthful beverage is the rootbeer made from Hires Household Extract. And this because the whole wide world is drawn upon to make it. From the fields of the sunny southland comes the choicest sugar cane. From the distant Honduras, the tang of sarsaparilla. Vanilla beans from Mexico. Purple juniper berries. Others. A rare blend of nature's own ingredients. There is nothing artificial. No extra coloring or flavoring.

A fine drink for the youngsters

The children will love the rootbeer you make from Hires Household Extract. And it's good for them—you can safely let them drink all they want.

Keep a bottle on ice at all times. Then when callers drop in unexpectedly, your liquid refreshments are ready to serve. When the men come home after a hard day's work, there's nothing that hits the right spot more effectively than a brimming glass of tangy, refreshing rootbeer.

Most economical drink you can serve

From one 30c package of Hires Household Extract you can make 80 glasses—5 gallons. Perfect rootbeer at a cost of less than a cent a glass!

Now is the season to make your family acquainted with the joys of good old-fashioned rootbeer. There were 30 million gallons of rootbeer made from Hires Household Extract last year.

Get a package of Hires Household Extract at your dealer's today. The Charles E. Hires Company, 208 South 24th Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Shall we send you a bottle of Hires Household Extract?

In case your dealer does not carry Hires Household Extract, we will be glad to send you one bottle—enough to make 80 glasses of rootbeer—for 30c (35c in Canada).

Hires Household Extract has many other uses that will be new and welcome to you. Did you know, for instance, that it could be used in flavoring pies, puddings and icings for cakes? Valuable suggestions for summer menus are contained in our new recipe book. We will be glad to send you a copy—free.

Hires Household Extract—for making delicious rootbeer at home easily and inexpensively, and for use as a tasty flavoring in cooking. This is the familiar package seen in thousands of homes throughout the country. Always keep an extra package on your kitchen shelf.

The New Way Dentists Advise for Twice-a-Day Use at Home — Now a Special Film-Removing Dentifrice

LARGELY on dental advice, thousands are discarding old ways of tooth cleansing for a new method based on recent dental findings. Virtually all cases of so-called "off-color" teeth, and many serious tooth and gum disorders, have been traced to a stubborn film that forms on teeth.

This film, according to dental research, spreads over teeth and gums, laying both open to bacterial attack. Film, too, they say, absorbs food and nicotine stains, and teeth look dull and dingy. It invites the germs of acids and decay. Film, too, is the basis of tartar. And tartar, with germs, is the cause of pyorrhea.

Thus modern dentists almost universally advise that film be removed at least twice each day. And for that purpose, the Special Film-Removing Dentifrice, Pepsodent, is commonly used. A tooth paste based on modern dental exactments that is different from all others.

Send for 10-Day Free Tube

Pepsodent first curdles that film. Then removes it in scientific protection of the enamel, thus giving teeth high polish and clearness. Then it acts to firm tender gums; embodying for that purpose the most recent findings in gum protection. Then it neutralizes acidity by multiplying the alkalinity of the saliva—an important factor.

Coupon for 10-day tube

Pepsodent thus cleanses teeth as no old-way brushing ever did. Mail coupon. Ten-day tube to start you toward modern tooth and gum protection will be sent.

SMILES ARE DAZZLING WHITE when film is gone. Teeth sparkle like polished jewels. Gums firm to healthy coral tint. Thus this new scientific way of dental care becomes one of the greatest beauty treatments of the day, and, with its unique therapeutic and prophylactic qualities, a great aid in oral hygiene.

call letters for the PRINCE OF PALES now heard from coast to coast

A RADIO fan started it—this short, easy way of ordering the happiest, friendliest drink that ever graced a dinner table or enlivened a dance . . .

Busch Pale Dry!

So rapidly has the custom spread that today in America's most exclusive homes, clubs, hotels, restaurants and cafes, B. P. D. are the call letters of those whose good taste unerringly divines the right way to treat their guests and themselves.

And no wonder!

For Busch Pale Dry is far different from any other ginger ale you have ever tasted. It is aged in wooden casks for three solid months! Genuine fruit juices are used instead of mere fruit essences. The result is a flavor as subtle and satisfying as that of a rare old wine. Color and bouquet like that of fine champagne. Real life and zest and sparkle.

And real friendliness for other drinks!

Because it is the finest mixer that ever bubbled out of a bottle, Busch Pale Dry changes ordinary beverages into gay, festive drinks . . . and thus transforms simple luncheons and dinners into delightful occasions.

Enjoy it tonight! Phone the nearest dealer for a handy family package of 12 bottles or a carton of 24. Or, if you want only enough for a twosome, have him send you four bottles.

Try it—then try to be content with any other ginger ale!

There is no capsicum in this fine old ginger ale

"CANADA DRY" is a real ginger ale, made from the highest grade Jamaica ginger.

This is an important point to remember, because many of the imitations of "Canada Dry" are not really ginger ales at all, but are made with capsicum (red pepper). That is why they have that burning, biting, synthetic ginger taste.

Buy "Canada Dry," therefore, not only because of its wonderful flavor, but because it is a real ginger ale in every sense of the word. Buy it because it is one of the finest and most carefully made beverages in this country and you know you can depend on it—always!

The minute you taste it you will know it is altogether different from every other ginger ale.
